

Econ Prof Paints for Hobby; Pictures Displayed in Boucke

Philip A. Klein, assistant professor of economics, whose paintings are being shown at the Boucke library, says that painting is "strictly a hobby" with him.

The second series of faculty-staff art exhibits, which consists of his paintings, is now on display in the Boucke library.

There are seven paintings, done from 1952 to 1958.

Klein said he paints for relaxation and enjoyment, adding that he has never shown his paintings to anyone but his own family and his colleagues. He considers this as keeping them "in the family."

His original aim in painting was to make his paintings look realistic. Later, however, "color, movement and rhythm, design, perspective and conveying of ideas and feelings" became his goals.

Klein said that one of his paintings on exhibit, a bowl of lilacs, is "realistic," while the others are "abstract in varying degrees."

Other paintings try to convey mood, color or design without having a definite subject, he said.

Klein said his "success" in painting is the relaxation he receives from it.

Slides were shown of Dean Weston's travels in Bermuda, Mexico and Hawaii and of her home in Carnegie and her summer home, "Recess," near Uniontown.

The story was concluded with an impersonation of Dean Weston as a passenger in a jet fighter plane by 1st Lt. Renee Rubin.

Lt. Rubin then explained how concerned everyone had been over Dean Weston on that hot day last summer in an Alabama ROTC camp while she was bravely doing acrobatics at 18,000 feet in a jet fighter.

Dean Weston was a guest at the base for a few days last summer.

Bill White, Alpha Sigma Phi, etched out a unanimous decision over Beta Theta Pi's Fred Kochey, in a 145-pound fight. White carried the fight to Kochey and pummeled his vulnerable defense with rapid left jabs.

John Oberly, Sigma Chi's 275-pound heavyweight, won a unanimous decision as he swarmed all over Sigma Alpha Mu's Saul Lassoff. The gigantic Oberly carried on a roughhouse rushing attack to gain the nod of the three officials.

Wilbert Hobbs, Sigma Nu, gained a victory over Bucky Welsh, Beta Theta Pi, when Welsh failed to answer the bell for the second round.

Thinklish translation: In three-ring circles, this fellow's known as "Mr. Funnyman" (largely because his name is Horace P. Funnyman). When he does his smoke-ring act, the tent's in stitches.
