

Oberly Injured In Grapplers' Win

The wrestling future of sophomore heavyweight Johnston Oberly remains clouded today.

Oberly, who was injured in Penn State's 19-10 victory over a weak Colgate squad at Rec Hall Saturday night, may be lost for the season, according to team physician Dr. Alfred H. Guess.

"He has a badly dislocated (right) knee cap," Griess said yesterday, "and I will probably have to put a cast on the leg before he goes home for Christmas vacation. We'll have to wait to be sure of the extent of his injury. He could be ready in three weeks and then again, he may miss the whole season."

Oberly was injured in an odd accident in the opening minutes of his heavyweight match with Jim Hancock. He had just thrown his foe down to the mats and was preparing to flip him for a first period fall. But in the process of turning Hancock over, Oberly wrenched his knee. Hancock was awarded the match victory much to the displeasure of the 5000 partisan Penn State fans.

Oberly's injury completely overshadowed the Penn State team win and the individual victories of five Lion grapplers. Don Wilson 130; Dan Johnston, 137; Neil Turner, 147; Sam Minor, 157; and Hank Barone, 177, turned in the wins for Penn State and 167-pound George Gray battled to a 0-0 draw.

Turner's victory was the most impressive. The Lion sophomore, who was a surprise starter, handled Bob Swezy as if he owned him in racking up an 8-0 decision.

But it was the method of his win which drew raves from the crowd. Turner never stopped moving in nine minutes of action, working both offensive and defensive maneuvers. But although he had Swezy in several pinning situations, Turner just couldn't find the right pinning combination.

Gray also stood out with his stalemate with the Raider captain, Fred Schull. It wasn't a dull bout, despite the 0-0 score. Time and time again, each man tried to get the advantage with his foe, only to be thwarted by an excellent defensive maneuver.

PhiPsi to Meet DU In Boxing Finals

Phi Kappa Psi soared into a tie with Delta Upsilon in the fraternity intramural boxing tourney last night when Chet Lucido, Dick Gross and Norm Neff turned in semi-final victories, and amassed 15 points to raise their team's total to 50.

The two clubs will come to a showdown in the finals which are slated to get underway at 8:15 tomorrow night in Rec Hall.

Delta Upsilon added five points to its total as Cy Dubinsky eked out a 165-pound decision over Bill Smith of Delta Sigma Phi, but missed a chance for five more when Theta Xi's John Porter won a split decision over Joe Riley in the 155-pound class.

Al Bennet, Jack Maher, and Dubinsky will carry the DU banner into tomorrow's card and the bout that will probably hold the key to the team championship will be the 165-pound match where Dubinsky meets Gross.

Alpha Chi Rho, which placed two men in the finals last night and currently sports a total of 40 points, maintained a mathematical possibility of tying the loser of the Phi Psi-DU duel for runner-up honors.

Each individual winner in the finals scores 20 points while runner-ups gain 10.

Cagers Play Bullets At Rec Hall Tonight

Still looking for their first win of the season, the Penn State cagers open the 1958-59 home basketball season tonight against the Gettysburg Bullets. Game time is set for 8 p.m. at Rec Hall.

An intrasquad game between the freshmen at 6 p.m. will precede the varsity tilt.

Penn State fans will have their first opportunity to see the Lions' sophomore sensation Mark "The Magician" DuMars. DuMars was the talk of Dixie after his first two performances against North Carolina State and West Virginia.

The 5-10 speedster tallied 27 points in his first two outings and his playmaking bordered on the sensational. DuMars will start out front tonight along with Wally Colender.

Colender hit his stride in the Lions' last outing against West Virginia, tallying 16 points. Last season Colender started out slow but wound up as the third leading scorer with an average of 11.3 points per game.

Bob Edwards is slated to open at center with Ted Kubista and Tom Hancock at the forward slots. Edwards is leading the Nittanians in scoring with 28 points while Hancock is the team leader with a record of 1-3. Their only win came against Albright, 75-73, last week. They have lost to Bucknell, Temple and Villanova. The Bullets have always been one of the top teams in the Middle Atlantic Conference but this year they have been taking their lumps.
