

No Classrooms to Be Opened For Study During Exam Week

No classrooms have been officially scheduled for use as study rooms during finals week, John E. Miller, scheduling officer, said yesterday.

"We have had no formal requests from the deans of the colleges to have rooms in their buildings opened for studying," he said. He continued that if such requests were to come in from the deans or from some responsible person in each dormitory, a limited number of rooms of very small capacity could be scheduled.

The Daily Collegian is offering its city room, 8 Carnegie for use as a study room for all students during finals week. The room will be available at all times except 1:10 p.m., Jan. 15; 10:20 a.m. and 1:10 p.m., Jan. 16, and 10:20 a.m. Jan. 17.

Miller listed the problems involved in scheduling rooms for studying as:

●Almost every room on campus has been scheduled for examinations at one time or another. This would mean a daily schedule of available rooms would have to be published.

●Students would have to use care in observing smoking laws and not littering rooms. "Students can make it or break it," he commented.

●In order to set up a system of study rooms for next semester, some campus organization must make a student survey to find out how many students are interested in using these rooms; how many and what size rooms are needed; and where students would like them to be located.

Beginning tomorrow night coeds will receive special hours for finals week. Freshman women will receive 10 p.m. permissions and upperclasswomen will receive 11 p.m. permissions.

With the start of finals just two days away, those in charge of the libraries and the lounges on campus are preparing for overflow crowds. The ping pong tables have been taken out of Waring Lounge in the West Dorms area so students will have more room to study there.

In addition to their rooms, residence hall lounges and study rooms, the Hetzel Union lounges and ballroom and the main library, students may study in any of the college libraries. They are usually open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Finals begin at 8 a.m. Thursday and end by 5 p.m. Jan. 23. Conflicts can no longer be filed. Students who wish to know their final grades before they are recorded on the transcripts and sent to advisers, may turn in a self-addressed postcard with each final test unless told otherwise by their instructors.

This will be the last issue of The Daily Collegian this semester. A special issue will be published on Jan. 30 and regular publication will resume Feb. 3.

Trio to Climax Sharp Campaign

By CATHY FLECK

The Kingston Trio, one of the nation's most popular vocal groups, will appear from 3 to 5 p.m. March 8 in Recreation Building as a climax to the fund-raising Larry Sharp Week.

World University Service decided this weekend to give up the dates for its annual drive in order that Larry Sharp Week might be held as originally planned.

WUS, which last October scheduled March 2 through 8 for its drive, relinquished its priority when it found out that March 8 was the only date on which the Trio could appear. Because the Trio's performance would be the biggest fund-raising project of the week, WUS decided to plan its drive for May 11 through 17.

Although the contracts for the Trio's appearance are still in the process of being approved and signed, Steve Garban, chairman for the fund, indicated that the Trio would definitely be engaged on that date.

Larry Sharp Week had been planned for March when the committee found out that the Trio was appearing at Princeton University on March 7. However, Jay Feldstein, All-University president, announced last Thursday that it would not be possible to have the drive as originally planned because of the WUS drive.

Feldstein suggested that the Larry Sharp committee ask the Jazz Club to co-sponsor the appearance of the Four Freshmen in February and hold the week prior to that.

With the date definitely set, the events for the fund-raising week scheduled so far will be:

March 4—Penny-a-Minute Date Night.

March 5—Tag Day and a fund-raising program over radio station WMAJ.

March 6—Coffee Profit Day.

March 8—The Kingston Trio at Recreation Building.

The committee is planning to work in some event with the Sophomore Class Dance since that is the class in which Sharp would be enrolled.

IDs Needed to Register

You will need a Fall Semester Identification Card to register.

If you do not have one, you should report to the Registrar's Office, 4 Willard, no later than January 19, warned Associate Registrar Robert M. Koser Jr.

University Sets Rules For Bikes

The University has put into effect a new set of regulations to protect students and faculty members—rules for operators of bicycles, motorcycles and motor scooters.

Because of the big increase in the number of bicycles on campus, the University was forced to establish rules to protect automobile drivers and pedestrians, Elwood F. Oliver, director of the division of security, said yesterday.

The regulations go into effect immediately and will be enforced by members of the Campus Patrol. Oliver said students will be given a chance to acquaint themselves with the rules before penalties are given.

Bicycles may only be driven on roads and not on sidewalks under the regulations and passengers may not be carried on the bicycles unless a seat for this passenger is a part of the vehicle.

Bicycles must have a lighted headlamp visible for 500 feet and must have a lighted tail light or reflector at least one and one-half inches in diameter and visible for 500 feet if they are ridden at night.

The rules stipulate that bicycles are not allowed to be parked on sidewalks, inside buildings, at entrances to buildings or where they may block traffic and cause fire hazards. Bicycles must also have a warning horn.

Fraternity Reports Due

Fraternity membership reports must be turned into the dean of men's office as soon as possible, O. Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men, said yesterday.

Library to Extend Finals Week Hours

By DENNY MALICK

Reading rooms on the first floor of the Pattee Library will be open until 11 p.m. tomorrow through Friday and on next Monday and Tuesday to enable students to study for final examinations.

Ralph W. McComb, University librarian, said the closing hour was extended on an experimental basis.

The library will close at its regular time on the weekend—5 p.m. Saturday and 10 p.m. Sunday.

All-University Cabinet had asked that the closing time be extended until midnight during final examinations. However, the problem of personnel prevented any hours later than 11.

McComb said only a skeleton staff will be on duty during the extra hour.

Rooms 103, 104, 105 and 107 on the first floor will be open for studying. However, services in the reference, periodical and circulation departments will not be operating, McComb said.

McComb has said that only about 250 students can be accommodated in the part of the library that will remain open late.

Although this figure represents only a small number of the student body, All-University Cabinet members felt that it would be some help in alleviating the situation of students wanting to study outside of their own rooms.

Schedule Causes Friday the 13th

Although you may not realize it, today is Friday the Thirteenth.

Yes, the students of Penn State will have the privilege of seeing not just three but four Fridays fall on the thirteenth day of the month during 1959.

This privilege is not due to any lunar mutations that affect only our campus, nor to the fact that our isolation in the Nittany Mountains cause us to lose track of things like the days of the week. No, the administration has caused this confusion to make up for the class days missed at Thanksgiving.

Could this bad luck day be a premonition of our fate to come in the next week-and-a-half??

Withholding Diplomas

IFC to Survey Debt Payments

The Interfraternity Council plans to question individual fraternities concerning the withholding of diplomas to those graduating seniors who owe debts to their fraternities.

A committee, chaired by Hart Langer, recommended at last night's IFC meeting that a survey be taken of the fraternity system as to the prevalence of seniors leaving without paying debts and to the action which is now used by the fraternities in collecting such debts.

Langer said he expects the survey to be completed before the next meeting, Feb. 8, and his committee will meet prior to the IFC meeting to evaluate the survey and propose a recommendation.

At its last meeting the IFC discussed a proposal to request the University to withhold diplomas of graduating seniors in debt to fraternities.

In other business at last night's dinner meeting held at Delta Chi, the Council approved the naming of Edward Evers, director of food service for Simmons Hall, to the board of directors of the Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association.

Edward Hintz, IFC president, announced that University President Eric A. Walker would speak to a combined meeting of the IFC and Association of Fraternity Counselors sometime in February.

Walker will report on the University Board of Trustees decision concerning making loans available for fraternity expansion and

Later Lion's Den Hours OK'd for Next Semester

By ELAINE MIELE

The Lion's Den will be open until midnight every Friday and Saturday night at least until the end of the spring semester, Robert C. Proffitt, director of Food Service, and Albert E. Djem, vice president for business administration, have decided.

Snack bar services will end at 11:45 p.m. for food to be eaten in the Den but students may take out orders until midnight.

Louis A. Berrena, manager of Food Service, presented a report of the sales during the extended hours in the Lion's Den from Nov. 11 to Dec. 19 at a meeting on Saturday.

The 6-week period was used as a trial to determine the number of students who would use the Lion's Den during the later hours. Proffitt said that a loss was suffered during the trial period. Only about 140 sales were made each night the hours were extended, he said.

Popular late hours snacks will be added to the menu to stimulate student interest, Proffitt said. The first of these will be pizza which will be served next semester.

With the addition of new snacks, he said, it is hoped that the sales will increase and that
