

Cabinet Must Clarify Class Cut Proposals

All-University Cabinet will have to present more definite proposals on class cuts and final examination exemptions before the University Senate will take any action.

Arthur D. Brickman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Academic Standards, said his committee wants "some sort of written communication" from student government explaining the proposals.

"The only communication we have received," he said, "is one stating that Cabinet recommended unlimited class cuts for upper-classmen and final exam exemptions."

Cabinet, for the past several years, has approved recommendations which originated in Student Encampment favoring unlimited cuts and finals exemptions.

However, Cabinet has had no success in its attempts to have the two recommendations passed.

In other business at last week's Senate meeting, a revision was made in the Division of Counseling regulations stipulating that students may not enroll in the division for more than two semesters beyond the freshman year.

The ruling revised one carried over from the old Division of Intermediate Registration which stated that a student could only remain in the division for two semesters.

The Senate approved honors designations for diplomas, also. Students with All-University averages of 3.40 to 3.59 will have "with distinction" added to their diploma, those with 3.60 to 3.79 will have "with high distinction" added, and those with 3.80 and above will have "with highest distinction" inscribed on the diplomas.

Students graduating in honors courses which are now being planned will also have special designations on their diplomas.

Lion's Den--

Jay Feldstein, All-University president, said that he was pleased with the cooperation of the administration in giving students what they wanted.

The original request to extend the Lion's Den hours was made by the Hetzel Union Board in October. Edward Frymoyer, president of the Association of Independent Men, asked that the hours be extended to accommodate freshmen and other independent men and their dates on weekends.

Bermudas Out in Lounges

Women students will not be permitted to wear Bermuda shorts in dormitory lounges during final examinations, as was erroneously reported in Wednesday's Daily Collegian.

Women may, however, wear Bermudas in the dining halls during this period.

Coeds Report Room Entries

Two rooms in Simmons Residence Hall were broken into Sunday night while the occupants were out of the rooms.

Campus Patrol Head Lucien E. Bolduc said there was no evidence of theft, but a radio was damaged when it was apparently knocked off the window sill by the intruders.

According to Bolduc, the screens on both rooms were slashed and the windows opened. The occupants noticed this when they returned to their rooms at about 11 p.m., said one witness.

Bolduc said the intruders apparently fled when they knocked the radio onto the floor, smashing it. One resident, who was in the hall near the two rooms, said she heard no noise during the alleged time of the intrusion.

The rooms were located near the food service entrance to the building.
