

Space Age Rockets Speech Into Orbit

By DIANE DIECK

Contemporary speech, as well as Sputnik and Explorer II, is getting off the ground and into orbit, according to Dr. Brice Harris, professor of English literature.

No longer do we "leave no stone unturned"; today we "get on the launching pad," said Harris.

Space age talk is over a year old, Harris said. He began his collection of "space age metaphors" only this fall.

A few years ago, people "hitched their wagons to stars"; today they "lift their sights."

The "castles in the air" which were once built by neurotics, lived in by psychotics and for which rent was collected by psychiatrists, are now being built by our top scientists.

Harris said these space-age metaphors have infested all phases of our life. Some of his illustrations:

A bulletin issued in October by the commission on the education of women spoke extensively of "feminine fall-out" in college and graduate schools.

York Times reported concerning the delay, "the merger of these two rail behemoths is anchored firmly to its launching pad and the fuse itself appears to be sputtering out quietly."

"To be in orbit is meaningless. To be alive is to be rocketing towards an unknown destination," said the Saturday Review in an article on Jean Genet's "Deathwatch."

Cutler Named Member Of Luncheon Committee

Omitted from the list of appointments to the Faculty Luncheon Club Steering Committee for the spring semester in yesterday's Daily Collegian was Dr. Howard Cutler, director of General Education.

Dr. Thomas Smyth, assistant professor of entomology, has not been named to the committee as was erroneously reported.

Exposition--

Kendall said an attempt should be made to "keep down" recruiting by visiting companies, and if they had to pay for coming to the exposition, they would have every right to recruit.

Cook pointed out that a contribution to the Career Day exposition had not been figured into this year's budget and many organizations that Kendall asked for money were not in a position to contribute.

Kendall told ICCB members Tuesday that the exposition would be held in the Hetzel Union Building at a minimum cost. It would probably include only the fees for extra services and should not run over $50, he said.

Handbook Applications

The deadline for Student Handbook business staff applications has been extended to Feb. 14. Applications may be picked up at the Hetzel Union desk.

WHO'S BEEN AT YOUR PIGGY BANK?

Every year, some of your tax money is poured into unnecessary federal "public power" dams and plants in remote areas of the U.S. This is money you might have saved—or spent for things your family needs. For there's no need for this federal electricity. Independent electric companies are ready and able to provide all the electricity the nation needs.

Who's behind this needless billion-dollar spending of tax money? The lobbyists for federal "public power," the bureaucrats, the socialists. Every time they push another "public power" project through Congress, your family is taxed to pay the bill.

What can you do? Spread the word about this needless spending of your money. If enough families speak out publicly, you can be sure something will be done about it.
