

Student to Perform In Stuttgart Concert

Ronald Dekker, junior in music education from Altoona, will appear with the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra when they perform at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

"Wednesday morning I planned to be a listener," Dekker said yesterday, "and today I found I was going to be a performer. It certainly is a thrill."

IFC Group Fines Three Fraternities

Three fraternities were fined a total of $135 by the Interfraternity Council Board of Control Wednesday night for pledge registration violations.

Sigma Chi drew the heaviest fine—$85 for two counts of failing to register pledges with the IFC and 11 late pledge registration violations. Kappa Delta Rho was fined $25 for failure to register one pledge and was acquitted on three other charges of failing to register pledges.

Sigma Phi Epsilon successfully appealed a $25 fine given it Jan. 11 for failure to register one pledge. Sigma Chi had been fined $75 at the January meeting and appealed their case Wednesday night.

The board fined six fraternities $250 in December for pledge registration violations.

Ronald Siders, board chairman, said the board still has several cases pending. After those are heard the board will hear about ten cases of fraternities charged with pledging men without the required pledging averages.

Under the present system, fraternities are required to register all pledges with the Fraternity Affairs Office within two weeks of their pledging date. A $2 fee is required with each registration.

Summary of Cabinet Action Presented

The Cabinet Public Relations Committee has prepared a report on proposed legislation brought before All-University Cabinet and what action was taken on this legislation.

The report, compiled three times yearly, is designed to educate the students concerning their student government and to serve as a reference for Cabinet members.

A recommendation that political parties be financed by All-University Cabinet was defeated on Oct. 30 on the grounds that political parties should be self-sufficient.

Highlights are as follows: Cabinet also decided on that date to look into the feasibility of having decentralized voting in the spring elections.

Cabinet also set up a committee on integration of the various campuses with the main campus.

The amended HUB expansion report was adopted on Nov. 20 and then sent to Robert G. Bernrueter, dean of admissions, who presented it to a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees.

The make-up of the freshman customs board was changed to include six sophomore men and six sophomore women.

John Bott was appointed chairman of a committee to investigate ROTC as to whether it be voluntary or compulsory. Bott will present a report on this question to All-University Cabinet this semester.

Ronald Dekker, junior in music education from Altoona, will appear with the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra when they perform at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

"Wednesday morning I planned to be a listener," Dekker said yesterday, "and today I found I was going to be a performer. It certainly is a thrill."

Dekker was sitting in class Wednesday morning when a secretary came in to tell him he was wanted on the phone. The call was from Mrs. Nina Brown, coordinator of the Artists Series. She had a problem, she said. The Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra needed a trumpet player to perform a passage in the third movement of Honegger's "Symphony No. 2 for Strings." Would he do it?

Despite the fact that he had never heard the symphony or seen the music for it, Dekker said he would. He tried to get the music at a local music shop but no one had it. Finally, last night he procured a recording of the piece to study.

Dekker will have a first and last rehearsal with the orchestra at 11 this morning. "They want to finish the rehearsal in an hour," he said.

Can he learn the piece that quickly? "I guess I can," he said. "I'll listen to the record very carefully. I can pick up music by ear and sight-read anything—within reason."

Dekker, who is attending college on the G.I. Bill, has had symphonic experience before, but this will be his first performance with a professional orchestra. He played with the Air Force Band and Orchestra from 1952-56 and before that had eight years of trumpet lessons.

They say that spring comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb. Truer words were never spoken. If you're hardy enough to brave that walk up Ag Hill for your 8:00 a.m. class tomorrow, you'll see what I mean. This all reminds me of an ancient Chinese proverb that I just made up... Confucius say, "When shoppee in State College, wise students stoppee at Ethel Meserve's. Ah so."

If you want to drop a hint to letter writing friends who seem to have lost the noble art, send them a box of writing paper from Ethel's beautiful assortment. Choose from a wide variety including Japanese prints, French cafe scenes, Italian country paintings, flower and animal prints. The price tag isn't hard on the eyes either—only $1.00. On the very next counter are several volumes of poetry and an especially charming book of Japanese fairy tales for the young at heart. If you have another dollar bill floating around in your pocket somewhere, one of these volumes would be a pleasant surprise for an aesthetically (not athletically) minded friend.

If you ever feel extravagant

Ethel had you in mind when she stocked up on some of the most lovely vanity sets I've ever seen. Most of these sets include a perfume atomizer, powder container, and pin box. They come in pink, blue, or white with an abundance of gold and flowers, and the matching gold or marble trays compliment the sets perfectly.

For the monsoon season that every weather beaten Penn Stater looks forward to (with heavy heart), buy a light weight dacron raincoat. They come in all sizes for men, and each is packaged in a dacron bag for ease of packing. Makes more room for the books in your suitcase.

See you soon, at Ethel's.
