

498 Student Tickets Left for Concert

Students mobbed the Hetzel Union desk yesterday afternoon as distribution of tickets for the Philadelphia Orchestra started.

Because of the large number of students waiting in line, distribution started at 12:30 p.m., half an hour earlier than scheduled. By the end of the first hour, 1400 tickets had been given out.

At the close of distribution yesterday afternoon 3500 of the 4000 student tickets had been distributed. The remaining 498 tickets will be available at 9 this morning.

Non-student tickets will go on sale at 9 tomorrow morning. They will cost $1.25.

The concert, eleventh in this year's Artist Series, will be held at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, in Recreation Hall.

The orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, will perform Bach's Chaconne; Beethoven's Symphony No. 2, in D major, Op. 36; Debussy's Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun"; and Stravinsky, Suite from "The Firebird."

Now in its 58th year, the orchestra gave its first performance on Friday evening, Nov. 16, 1900 at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia. The director was Fritz Scheel.

The orchestra gave six concerts during the first season and accumulated a $14,000 deficit. During their second season it ran its deficit to $72,000.

Carl Pohlig succeeded Scheel as conductor in 1907. It was Pohlig who established standards of performance and brought such greats as Sergei Rachmaninoff to the orchestra. Rachmaninoff appeared many times as pianist, composer and conductor.

In the orchestra's 13th season it was headed by Leopold Stokowski. It was Stokowski who championed new music and among his American firsts are Strauss' Alpine Symphony, 1916; Rachmaninoff's "The Bells," 1920; Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps," 1922 and "Oedipus Rex," 1931.

Stokowski had considerable assistance in his conductorial duties after 1926. Some of those invited to share the podium during the next decade were Fritz Reiner, Eugene Ormandy and Jose Iturbi.

In 1936 the decision was made to replace Stokowski. Ormandy was given a 3-year contract, but in 1938-39 he was signed for five years with the additional title of music director. He has been the orchestra's permanent conductor and music director ever since.

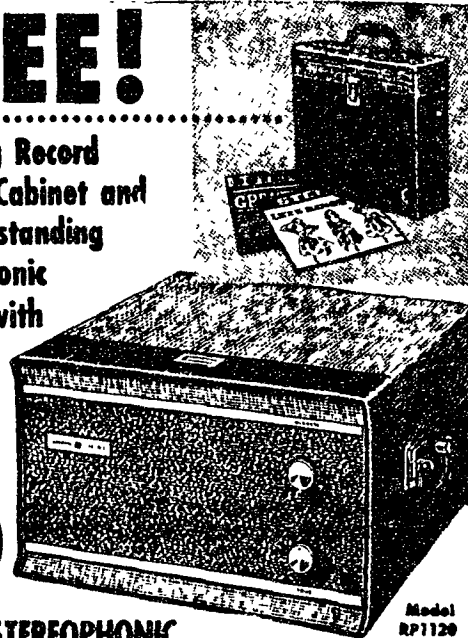

Temperature Drop Will Precede Rain

Sunny and a little colder weather will prevail today with considerable afternoon sunshine. Temperatures will be in the 30's all day, reaching an afternoon high of 38 degrees. It will be clear and slightly colder tonight with a low temperature of 23.

The combined effect of a storm system moving eastward from the western Great Plains and moisture flowing northward from the Gulf of Mexico will result in clouds and rain by tomorrow afternoon.

THEY SAY:

THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS ARE THE TOUGHEST...

We wouldn't know about that, for we're relative newcomers to the scene of things here at the Pennsylvania State University. We're in our fifty-sixth year, and for all fifty-six of them it has been our aim to serve the students, and faculty and our community to the best of our ability.

But if what they say about the first hundred years is true, then we know one thing for certain: In this Space-Age world of today, the opportunity of the Students at the Pennsylvania State University is unlimited. We certainly hope and pray that you make the most of it. Congratulations, on your first hundred years.
