Election of Att'y General Considered

Should the Pennsylvania constitution be amended to make the state attorney general an elected officer, instead of one appointed by the governor?

"Yes," says State Rep. William K. Knecht (R-Schuylkill).

"No," says Gov. David L. Lawrence.

"Only if . . ." says State House Majority Leader Stephen McCann (D-Greene).

A bill to make the change has been introduced into the General Assembly.

Knecht believes in some cases an attorney general may tend to base a ruling on the governor's wishes as much as on legal reasoning, since he is appointed by the governor.

Attorney general's actions often are important and controversial, Knecht said, citing some recent rulings on the "right-to-know" laws, which provide for public access to meetings and records of some state and municipal agencies. These recent rulings may be partly responsible for the current agitation, Knecht told members of the University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity.

But Lawrence told the journalism students: "The attorney general should be in entire sympathy with the governor."

McCann said he believes the attorney general should not be made an elected officer "unless the Constitutional Revisions Committee changes a good many concepts of elected and appointed officers" makes a wager with the local hotel manager that no one can outshoot their star attraction, Frank Butler.

Annie, an Ohio hillbilly, played by Byrna Nelson, comes into town and offers to take Frank up on the wager. Annie outshoots Frank, played by Joseph Bohart, and joins the show.

Frank is forced to take a side seat when Annie is starred as the main attraction. He joins the rival show, owned by Pawnee Bill, and leaves Annie heartbroken.

In the end the two shows merge, Annie and Frank are reunited after Annie "allows" Frank to outshoot her.

Jay Feldstein is cast as Buffalo Bill, Tim Booher as Pawnee Bill, Michael Beattie as Charlie and Nina Baker as Dolly.

Also cast in the play are Constance Adler as Winnie, Robert McLean as Tommy, Ellis Grove as Sitting Bull and Samuel Parsons as Mr. Wilson.

The total production, including the cast, chorus, dancers and crew members, will involve about 75 students, said Ted Pauloski, director.

Assistant director is Nancy Kauchack; Richard Watson is the technical director and Kenneth Todd is musical director.

Familiar songs in the musical are: "Doin' What Comes Naturally," sung by Annie, the kids and Wilson; "The Girl That I Marry," sung by Frank; "No Business Like Show Business," by Annie, Frank, Buffalo Bill and Charlie; and "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better," sung by Annie and Frank.

In total Annie sings nine songs and Frank sings six.

Tickets for the production will go on sale March 9 at the Hetzel Union desk. Group reservations for Saturday matinee will be taken in advance.

Concert To Be Given By Conradi

Austin Conradi, distinguished pianist and head of the piano department at the Peabody Conservatory, will present a concert at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

He will play the following:

AUSTIN CONRADI
visiting pianist

Beethoven compositions: "Rondo, G Major, Op. 51, No. 2," "Bagatelle, C Major," and the "Maestoso," "Allegro Con brio," "Arietta," and "Adagio Molto" movements of "Sonata, C Minor, Op. 111."

Of Chopin's works Conradi will play, "Nocturne, B Major," "Prelude, D Minor," and "Scherzo, B Minor."

The program will also include "Intermezzo, Op. 116, No. 4," by Brahms, "Minuet and Musette," by Mantini, and "Rhapsody, No. XII," by Liszt.

Conradi has been head of the piano department at the Peabody Conservatory for a number of years.

He has also taught at the Fontainebleau Conservatory in France. Before joining the Peabody Conservatory, Conradi taught at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia.

The concert, presented by the Department of Music and the School of the Arts, is open to the public without charge.

Ryan Will Speak On 'St. Augustine'

The Rev. William G. Ryan, president of Seton Hill College, Greensburg, will speak at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks on "The Meaning of History According to St. Augustine."

His talk is part of a series sponsored by the Faculty Committee on Religious Studies, College of the Liberal Arts.

Ryan is the author of a two-volume translation from the Latin of "The Golden Legend" of Jacobus de Voragine. He is currently working on a translation of St. Augustine's "City of God."

After having been graduated from Brooklyn Cathedral College, Ryan spent six years in study and travel abroad.

He has degrees in philosophy, canon law and sacred theology from the Institute Catholique, Paris, and a doctor of philosophy degree from Columbia University.

Ryan was a parish curate in the Brooklyn Diocese from 1930 to 1945. He also was a part-time faculty member at St. Joseph's College for Women in Brooklyn from 1932 to 1941.

During recent years Ryan has traveled and lectured on education topics, literary subjects, topics of current import and art criticism, as well as on religious discussions.

During the summer of 1953,

REV. W. G. RYAN

he traveled throughout Europe observing activities leading to Christian reunion, and discussed this movement with a number of European leaders. He also gathered material for a series of lectures on church architecture.

In July 1956, Ryan was one of 14 United States college presidents who participated in a 10-day study workshop on liberal arts education held in Pugwash, Nova Scotia.

The lecture will be open to the public.

According to Bowman, these were in the planning stages before the October evaluation.

Nussbaum Gets Junior Class Presidency

The junior class, as well as the freshman class, has a new president.

James Nussbaum, former junior class vice president, has replaced Vincent Marino as president because Marino's All-University average has fallen below the required 2.4 for the office. Nussbaum will sit on All-University Cabinet.

Robin Brooks, former freshman class secretary, has replaced Jay Kahle as class president and Cabinet member because his average and that of the former vice president, James Terry, have also dropped below the required 2.4.

Because of a misinterpretation of a clause in the Student Government Association constitution, Marino served as class president last semester with an average below a 2.4. The rule had been interpreted as requiring a 2.4 average when elected, not while serving.

Marino said he did not know what provisions would be made to fill the vacant vice presidency.

Debators Place Third In 26-Team Tourney

Penn State's Men's Debate team took third place in the Kings College Debate Tournament, held Feb. 13 and 14.

Twenty-six teams participated in this meet. The affirmative team was composed of Marshall Jacobson, senior in business administration from Clearfield, and Arthur Ichter, junior in business administration from Ashley.

The negative team included Alan Elms, junior in psychology from La Center, Ky., and Leonard Julius, junior in journalism from West Palm Beach, Fla.

Walker Visits Air Force Academy

Ten University officials including President Eric A. Walker visited the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., last week on an inspection trip sponsored by the Campus Air Force ROTC unit.

The group left the University Thursday in a C-17 aircraft piloted by Col. Orin H. Rigley Jr., professor of air science. Enroute to the academy the party stopped at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., where they received a briefing on the Military Air Transport Service's mission and operation. Maj. Gen. Frederick E. Glatzberg, deputy commander of MATS, was host at a luncheon for the guests.

On Friday the group toured the academy with Maj. Gordon P. Culver, special assistant to the superintendent of the academy. The guests were briefed on the curriculum, toured the physical facilities and visited various classrooms.

The party lunched with the cadet staff in the service school's mess hall. A reception was given for Walker and his party by Maj. Gen. James E. Briggs, superintendent of the academy, later in the evening.

The return trip included a stop at Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., where the group received a Strategic Air Command briefing and a tour of the underground control center. The tour was conducted by Brig. Gen. James B. Knapp, director of engineering of the SAC base.

Participating in the trip were Walker; Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs; Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the President; Elbert F. Osborn, dean of the College of Mineral Industries; Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics; Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration; Merritt A. Williamson, dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture; Capt. John P. Roach, professor of naval science; Col. Arthur W. Kogstad, professor of military science and tactics; and Col. Rigley.

Crew members of the plane were Maj. Lloyd W. Hare, Capt. Alan E. Wolfe and First Lt. William M. Davis III, all members of the AFROTC staff.
