

1961 Possibility:

Required Year 'Round Classes

By DENNY MALICK

Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for residence instruction, indicated yesterday that after 1961 students may have to attend year 'round classes without the usual three-month summer vacation.

Dennis said such a situation may be necessitated by the tremendous increase in college enrollment predicted by that time

"If the enrollment in colleges in this state increases as predicted," he said, "after 1961, there just isn't going to be room enough for everyone."

Realizing this pressing problem, the University has begun a big push to enroll students in summer sessions. This is designed to make better year 'round use of the University facilities.

"In the near future, colleges will have to operate at continual full capacity to handle the increased enrollments," Dennis said.

Besides the usual 3-6-3 week summer sessions, the University has added two six-week sessions this year especially geared for undergraduates.

The new sessions were established after the University Senate considered both trimester and quartermaster systems.

In connection with the new sessions, the College of Mineral Industries has established the first three-year curriculum leading to a bachelor's degree. Several other colleges are following this lead to help students accelerate.

The University has built up the summer sessions by offering a large number of undergraduate courses in the 6-6 program.

"We have never tried such a campaign for summer sessions before," Dennis said, "so we have no idea how successful it will be."

This semester's campaign is aimed at undergraduate students, but next fall attention will be carried into high schools, also.

Dr. C. O. Williams, special assistant to the president, will direct the program to contact high school seniors and acquaint them with the opportunity of telescoping their college education into three years.

As part of the present campaign, a letter from President Eric A. Walker was sent to the parents of freshmen, sophomores and juniors urging them to encourage enrollment in the summer programs.

Other than the accelerating aspect, the letter recommended extra credits be taken in the summer to develop "depth and breadth of knowledge" becoming so important in today's world.

3 Counties Set Pace

The traditional pace-setters, Philadelphia, Allegheny and Centre counties, led in the number of students during the University's first year of operation.

Of the 119 students who enrolled during the session of 1959, 24 came from Philadelphia county, 9 from Allegheny county, and 9 from Centre county.

Zepp Calls Cabinet Plan 'Ridiculous'

By BETSY ANDERSON

"One representative for every 300 students is ridiculous," Donald Zepp, president of the Chemistry-Physics Council, said at the meeting last night.

Zepp was referring to one of the proposed plans in student government reorganization. "The elections of class representatives for the proposed cabinet system would be left up to political parties and would indicate popularity. With council elections, the vote tends to be for the capable person," he said.

"A few run the whole show when political parties are involved. I know, being a class officer," George Bentrem, vice president of sophomore class, said. "The council system is better for All-University Cabinet," he said.

Other points brought out at the meeting were:

• Student representation — the representatives would not be responsible to a group other than their class; the colleges would not be represented.

• Increasing the representation of freshmen — freshmen are less mature than upperclassmen, are less knowing about campus activities until their second semester and past freshmen have frequently lost their offices due to low averages.

• The power of student council executives — councils of the various colleges would be extremely limited in power; since council presidents would lose importance under the proposed system, there would be difficulty in getting competent people to run for council offices — they would be attracted to positions on cabinet. Zepp said that possibly a person could hold a position on both.

At the conclusion of discussion, Zepp said that the council would not go on record one way or the other at Cabinet, but would necessarily be against the proposal if it came to a vote.

Liquor Bottle Hunt Denied by Housing

By DIANE DIECK

Reports that housing authorities are searching rooms in McElwain in search of empty liquor bottles were denied last night by Mrs. Leora Weaver, housing supervisor of the residence hall.

Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston said the only bottles taken from rooms by order of the dean's office were two which she removed herself.

Dean Weston said that all the girls understand that no liquor bottles are allowed in the rooms for any purpose.

When it was reported that increasing number of girls were bringing in bottles to use for decoration, the dean's office issued a notice to all hostesses requesting them to ask their girls to dispose of the bottles.

It is a University ruling, Miss Weston continued, to have no liquor in either men's or women's residence hall rooms. The casual observer does not notice whether the bottles are full or not.

"To eliminate gossip or unfavorable comment and in the interest of good taste, women students have never been allowed to have bottles in their rooms," Dean Weston said.

Several girls reported that they had been told it might be considered permissible to use the bottles in their rooms if ivy or candles were put in them. The candle must be burned sufficiently to allow some of the wax to dribble down and obscure the label, they said they had been informed. This would make the liquor bottles look like pretty ornamental bottles.

Mrs. Marion H. Barrett, head hostess at McElwain, said that hostesses are not removing the bottles. She said the hostesses are asking the girls to remove the bottles themselves.

Teacher Injured In Fraternity Fall

John McLean, a local school teacher, suffered a severe cut of the left hip in a fall at Phi Kappa Psi fraternity early Sunday morning.

According to Harold Zimmerman, fraternity president, McLean fell on a glass somewhere in the fraternity about 12:30 a.m. Sunday. He was treated by Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of the Rutenour Health Center, and removed to the hospital by an Alpha Fire Co ambulance.

McLean, from Newburgh, N.Y., was attending a party at the fraternity at the time of the accident. Zimmerman did not know where McLean fell or the cause of the accident.
