On Scholarships

Approximately $200,000 is available in student scholarships each year! But how many students are aware of this fact and know how to take advantage of it?

This article and those which will appear in subsequent issues of The Daily Collegian on this subject will inform the student on the matters of obtaining a scholarship how they are awarded, which ones are available and what the qualifications are.

Scholarships are awarded primarily on the bases of need and ability. Character and extracurricular activities also may play an important part in the choice of a recipient.

Each scholarship may have other qualifications in addition to those mentioned above. There are those reserved to incoming freshmen. Some state the specific class in which the winner must be enrolled, some request competition in collegiate sports and a few are reserved for foreign students.

Students who are interested in any of these general scholarships should apply before Nov. 1 if they wish to be considered for that academic year. Winners are announced early in January and are reimbursed for the fall semester.

Scholarship committees from each of the eight colleges award the scholarships reserved for a student in a specific curriculum or college. The committees begin reviewing applications on March 1. These awards are made for the following academic year.

Application forms may be obtained from the office of the coordinator of scholarships, now in 205C Old Main. A single application will insure consideration for every scholarship for which the student is qualified.

Fraternities--

(Continued from page one) "This is the worst time of the year for the survey to be taken," O. Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men, said. There were many January graduates, and with the deferred rushing program many of the fraternities neglected to rush upperclass men and concentrated on freshmen, he said.

The second in the series of articles on the fraternity system will discuss the reasons for the large number of vacancies in membership and housing. The views of Pollock and Edward Hintz, Interfraternity Council president, will be presented.

Library Expansion--

Also, plans attempting to introduce machine methods of storing and finding information are being developed. McComb said the University library may introduce this system in coming years. He added that he felt that a system like this could not sufficiently replace the use of a good old book to obtain information.
