'Mockery of Justice'

Student 'Knifer' Court-martialed

By NEAL FRIEDMAN
A University student is being court-martialed by the U.S. Navy on charges of failure to obey orders and assault with a knife.

However, there is little chance he will be thrown in the brig—it is only a mock trial being conducted by seniors in Naval ROTC as part of their military justice course.

Actually, there are three students on trial in each of the course's three sections.

The defendants, who go by the name "Henry J. Persecuted," were found guilty on the first count of failure to obey orders, but were acquitted on the second count of assault in two sections yesterday morning.

The third trial was not concluded yesterday afternoon.

Persecuted is alleged to have gone into a bar in Okinawa and gotten into a fight with another sailor over a native girl. An argument followed and Persecuted is alleged to have drawn a knife from his jacket and stabbed the other man, Iben Had.

In yesterday afternoon's trial, Persecuted testified that he had come to the bar with several friends and the native girl. He said he got up to go to the "head" (Navy jargon for rest room) and when he returned Had was talking to the girl and Persecuted asked Had to leave. Persecuted said that Had raised a beer bottle as if to strike him and he then took a knife from his pocket and stabbed Had.

The defense called Thad P. Straightarrow, a member of the Shore Patrol (Navy police). Straightarrow said he was called to the bar where the alleged stabbing took place and was told that the participants had left, but that Persecuted could be found at the house of the native girl.

Straightarrow testified that he went to the house and found the pair. He said he informed Persecuted that he had disobeyed an order by being off the base after curfew. Persecuted testified he had never heard of the curfew.

Some of the names which the students gave participants in the trial were very interesting. For instance, the name of a medical corpsman who gave evidence as to Had's blood type was A. Bloodclot. Hiram Walker and Jack Daniels were called upon to testify also. A Lt. Bud Weiser was also called to the stand, but first had to cease being trial counsel (prosecuting attorney).

The object of the mock trial was not humor, as it was carried on in a serious vein in order to give the future officers some practical experience in Navy judicial procedure.

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF ROOM-MATES

Room-mates are not only heaps of fun, but they are also very educational, for the proper study of mankind is man, and there is no better way to learn the dreams and drives of another man than to share a room with him.

This being the case, it is wise not to keep the same room-mate too long, because the more room-mates you have, the more you will know about the dreams and drives of your fellow man. So try to change room-mates as often as you can. A recent study made by Sigafos of Princeton shows that the best interval for changing room-mates is every four hours.

How do you choose a room-mate? Most counselors agree that the most important thing to look for in room-mates is that they be people of regular habits. This, I say, is arrant nonsense. What if one of their regular habits happens to be beating a Chinese gong from midnight to dawn? Or growing cultures in your tooth glass? Or reciting the Articles of War?

Regular habits, my foot! The most important quality in a room-mate is that he should be exactly your size. Otherwise you will have to have his clothes altered to fit you, which can be a considerable nuisance. In fact, it is sometimes flatly impossible. I recollect one time I roomed with a man named Osage Tremblatt who was just under seven feet tall and weighed nearly four hundred pounds. There wasn't a blessed thing I could use in his entire wardrobe—until one night when I was invited to a masquerade party. I cut one leg off a pair of Tremblatt's trousers, jumped into it, sewed up both ends, and went to the party as a bolster. I took second prize. First prize went to a girl named Antenna Radnitz who poured molasses over her head and went as a candied apple.

But I digress. Let us turn back to the qualities that make desirable room-mates. Not the least of these is the cigarettes they smoke. When we bum cigarettes, do we want them to be shoddy and nondescript? Certainly not! We want them to be distinguished, gently reared, zestful and zingy. And what cigarette is distinguished, gently reared, zestful and zingy? Why, Philip Morris, of corris! Any further questions?

To go on. In selecting a room-mate, find someone who will wear well, whom you'd like to keep as a permanent friend. Many of history's great friendships first started in college. Are you aware, for example, of the remarkable fact that Johnson and Boswell were room-mates at Oxford in 1712? What makes this fact so remarkable is that in 1712 Johnson was only three years old and Boswell had not yet been born. But, of course, children matured earlier in those days. Take Mozart, who wrote his first symphony at four. Or Titian, who painted his first masterpiece at five. Or Hanso Felbgung, who was in many ways the most remarkable of all; he was appointed chief of the Copenhagen police department at the age of six!

It must be admitted, however, that he did badly. Criminals roamed the city, robbing and looting at will. They knew little Hanso would never pursue them—he was not allowed to cross the street.
