Prexy to Defend Budget Will Testify In Harrisburg

President Eric A. Walker will defend the University's need for more money before the Senate Budget Committee in Harrisburg tomorrow.

Walker will support the University's appropriation request for $43.9 million and present facts as to why the $34.2 million recommended by Gov. David L. Lawrence will not give the University sufficient operating funds.

His testimony before the committee, which will be subject to examination by Senators on the committee, will be the last of the group's hearings on the need for money for higher education. The Universities of Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh, Temple University and 14 Teacher Colleges have already testified.

The President had repeatedly pointed out that the University needs $44 million to meet higher operating costs, to make wage and salary adjustments and to expand enrollment and other University services.

The $34.2 million recommended by the Governor in his budget request will cover only the cost of present operating expenses and will not permit expansion. In the last biennium, 1957-59, the University received $29.7 million, an increase of $2.4 million over the amount proposed by Gov. George M. Leader.

Walker outlined his budget request and the University needs in his State of the University address to the faculty and administration in late January. Lawrence's budget message was sent to the State Assembly March 4.

The President will interrupt a five-day inspection trip of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., to attend the hearings. Walker left for Annapolis yesterday to join five other members of the Board of Visitors of the Academy in the inspection trip.

Also participating will be Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, former president of the University and now president of The Johns Hopkins University. Other board members are Capt. David S. H. Howard, vice president of Charles Willard and Sons, Inc.; the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame University; William G. Saltonstall, principal of Phillips Exeter Academy; and Sidney J. Weinberg, a New York City investment broker.

Walker will return to the campus Saturday.

McCone to Speak At Commencement

John A. McCone, who last year was named to succeed Adm. Lewis L. Strauss as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, will be the main speaker at the Commencement Exercises June 6.

McCone began his career as a construction engineer with the Llewellyn Iron Works and later moved to executive positions with several West Coast industries. He served in 1947-48 on the President's Air Policy Commission, then as deputy to the Secretary of Defense, and in 1950-51 as Undersecretary of the Air Force.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. on Beaver Field. In case of rain, two programs will be held in Recreation Hall.

At the 10.30 a.m. exercises, graduates in Business Administration, Education, Home Economics, the Liberal Arts, and Physical Education and Athletics will receive their degrees.

Students in the colleges of Agriculture, Chemistry and Physics, Engineering and Architecture, and Mineral Industries will be awarded diplomas at a 2 p.m. program.

Candidates for associate degrees and for advanced degrees will be graduated with the students from the College in which they have taken their major work.

Tickets for the exercises will be distributed when seniors pick up their caps and gowns. ROTC students who will be receiving a commission and will be graduating in uniform will receive their tickets from the ROTC office.

Each of the approximately 2500 seniors will receive two tickets which will be necessary only in case of rain. Any extra seats in Recreation Hall will be opened to the public 10 minutes before the exercises begin.

The large seating capacity in Beaver Field makes it unnecessary for visitors to have tickets for the outdoor exercises. According to Reed Ferguson, Director of University Relations, there has been clear weather for the past few years for commencement.

Candidates to Discuss Platforms Tomorrow

A debate on party platforms will be held by candidates of both Campus and University parties between 8 and 9 p.m. tomorrow, according to Campus party chairman Charles Steele. The discussion is scheduled to be broadcast over WDFM, Steele said.

Gilbert's Expenses Questioned by State

By MATT MATHEWS
Associate Sports Editor

The new state auditor-general, Republican Charles C. Smith, has twice rejected an expense account of Harold R. "Ike" Gilbert, administrative assistant to President Eric A. Walker.

Gilbert was hired by the Department of Agriculture as a consultant and promoter of athletic events at the Farm Show Arena in Harrisburg. During these activities, in which he also organized the new Christmas Holiday Basketball Tournament, Gilbert reported expenses of $1,019.03. The figure included a $35-a-day salary and traveling expenses for 21 days of activity in February and March.

But the auditor-general twice rejected the vouchers and asked Agriculture Secretary William L. Henning for justification of the expenses.

In rejecting Gilbert's voucher, the auditor general could "not understand how a man while employed by the Pennsylvania State University as full-time athletic director (Editors Note: Gilbert was the former Penn State business manager of athletics) is also available on a per diem basis to the state."

The auditor-general also could not understand "why the state of Pennsylvania should not only pay $35 per day to someone to attend PIAA playoffs but also to pay expenses of travel for that purpose." Agriculture Secretary Henning (Continued on page eight)

Career Exposition to Feature Calves

By NICKI WOLFORD

Two calves will take up temporary residence in the Hetzel Union Building tomorrow and Thursday until they are claimed by their future owners, two University students, on Thursday afternoon.

The calves will be part of a display that the Pennsylvania Farmers Cooperative Association will bring to campus tomorrow for the All-University Career Exposition.

Students attending the exposition may visit the display and attempt to estimate the age and weight of one of the calves. A record of their guesses will be kept and the two students who come closest to guessing the correct age and weight of each of the calves will win them.

The exposition's primary aim is to enable students to talk to 95 representatives from 35 companies and associations who will explain the various opportunities and limitations students may meet in their particular fields.

According to Donald Cook, assistant director of the Placement Service, many of the displays will post a list of the various colleges whose students they will be able to help.

The Radio Corporation of America is bringing to campus an electronics display which was first shown at the Institute for Radio Engineers in New York City last month.

The Federal Civil Service will represent all federal government agencies at the exposition. It will have representatives there who will explain to students how they will be able to get into civil service work.

Other companies and associations coming to the exposition are:

Alcoa, United States Army Medical Corps, Bethlehem Steel Company, Union Carbide Corporation, Corning Glass Works, United States General Accounting Office, International Business Machines, Joseph Horne and Company, National Bureau of Standards, National Restaurant Association, New York Life Insurance Company, Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, Pennsylvania Civil Service.
