

SGA Plan Revises Executive Duties

By CATHY FLECK
First of a Series

Student government has come a long way since 1939 when the present executive-legislation branch was established. Its mistakes and good features both were taken into account to formulate the new reorganization plan.

Approximately six weeks ago, the new plan was presented to All-University Cabinet. The plan proposed the establishment of three separate branches—executive, legislative and judicial.

This was a revolutionary idea since Cabinet members by approving the plan put the power now exercised by them into the hands of students directly elected through classes on a pro-rated scale.

Through this plan all executive powers will be vested in the president of the Student Government Association. Other SGA officers will be the vice president and secretary-treasurer.

The SGA president would be responsible for the proper administration of student government. A Cabinet composed of both elected and appointed members would advise him on all issues that come before the legislative assembly.

The advisory Cabinet would be composed of the SGA officers and the presidents of Women's Student Government Association, the Association of Independent Men, Interfraternity Council, Leonides, Panhellenic Council and the Inter-College Council Board. The president may also appoint members from time to time with the advice and consent of the assembly.

The president would have the power of veto over all acts of the assembly which could be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the assembly.

The executive branch would also include a central secretariat to increase the efficiency of purely mechanical functions and to act as a central information center for all University organizations.

All chairmen and members of the various boards and commissions within the executive branch would also be appointed by the president subject to the approval of the assembly.

Art Department Opens Gallery

The opening of a new gallery of the Department of Art will be marked by an exhibition, titled, "Good Form: Man and Nature." The gallery, located in 105 Temporary and named, "105 Gallery," will be used primarily for student exhibitions and for exhibitions pertaining to the training of students in art.

The gallery was designed by Bill Hanson, instructor in art, and the exhibition is composed of the works of Hanson, Dr. George Pappas, assistant professor of art and art education, and Bruce Shobaken, instructor in art.

The first exhibition, which opened Friday and will continue through April 24, consists of man-made products in reference to nature and its influence on man and his work.
