

To Fulfill Pan-American Ideals:

Know Customs, Balgooyen Says

By CAROL BLAKESLEE

A knowledge of the traditions, customs and languages of other countries is necessary to fulfill the ideals of Pan-Americanism, Henry W. Balgooyen, executive vice president of the American Foreign Power Co., said last night.

Eng College Will Offer New Major

Effective with the Fall semester, the University will offer a curriculum in engineering mechanics.

The program approved by the Board of Trustees upon the recommendation of the University Senate, will lead to the bachelor of science degree.

The need for this type of program has been brought about partially because of the many important technological developments of recent years, Dr. Joseph Marin, professor and head of the Department of Engineering Mechanics, said.

He said the development of nuclear energy, high speed aircraft, missiles and satellites has increased the importance of a broad training in the basic principles of the physical sciences and the engineering sciences.

Students enrolling in the new curriculum will have the choice of two options.

The mechanics option covers the more mathematical aspects of mechanics and includes four elec-

Future" at a dinner in honor of Pan-American Day, Balgooyen advised Americans to replace "narrow nationalism" with a sympathetic understanding of their sister republics to the south.

Latin Americans are shocked, he said, with the number of Americans who do not possess even an elementary knowledge of the languages and customs of the Latin American countries.

A lack of educational opportunities is a basic obstacle which has impeded progress towards Pan-Americanism, Balgooyen said.

Nine Latin American countries have an illiteracy rate of over 50 per cent, he said.

Balgooyen cited the student exchange program between North and South or Central America as one of the best means to break down educational barriers.

However, he said, there are five times as many Latin Americans here as there are Americans in Latin America and of the 11,000 Latin Americans studying in the U.S., many have experienced discrimination of some sort, he said. There is no way of estimating how many but, according to Balgooyen, "even one per cent is too many."

This discrimination, he said, is based on the ignorance of Americans of their southern neighbors.

The task lies with the indi-

4 Officers Of AIM To Be Elected

The Association of Independent Men Board of Governors will elect officers at 7:30 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

Nominations will be taken for the offices of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

The Board will also consider for the second time an amendment to the AIM bylaws concerning judicial reorganization. The amendment had been passed on first reading at the last meeting.

It has been proposed that courts in each men's residence hall areas replace the AIM Judicial Board of Review, which now hears all cases concerning residence hall men.

The amendment is in accord with the judicial reorganization plan now under consideration by Cabinet.

The Board will discuss a proposal for the living area councils to share profits from vending machines not in designated food service areas. This would include machines in residence hall recreation rooms.

They will also hear a proposal for the organization of a North Halls Council.

Two Drill Teams Place at Festival

The University's Navy ROTC Drill Team and the Pershing Rifles Drill Team placed sixth and seventh respectively out of 56 teams entered from all parts of the United States in the National Drill Competition held last Friday at the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C.

The annual meet, held in the National Guard Armory, was won by a trick team from Purdue University with a total of 957 points out of a possible 1000. The Navy team had 848 points while the Pershing Rifles received a 811 point total. A parade held Saturday night was also won by Purdue.

The AFROTC Standard Drill Team and the AFROTC Trick Drill Team were also entered in the meet from the University. Both finished in the top half of the 56 competitors.

Second place was won by the Pershing Rifles from the University of Pittsburgh with 942 points; third place went to the ROTC Drill Team from Loyola University, Chicago, 901; fourth place was won by the Queen's Guard at Rutgers University, 899; and fifth place was taken by the Black Knights from Northwestern State College, Louisiana, with a 897 total.

Three coed teams were also entered in the meet, two from Utah State University and one from East Tennessee College.

According to Harlan E. Williams, junior in industrial arts from Laraysville and a member of the Navy ROTC Drill Team here, the outstanding feature of the Navy's routine was the finale.

"It depicted the slaying of one of the members of the team who dropped his rifle (accidentally on purpose). He marched forward, was stabbed by the commander with a bayonet, and fell back on a coffin of rifles supported by six other members of the team. They carried him off the floor amidst choruses of the funeral dirge sung by the team."

The Navy ROTC Drill Team was led by Midshipman Second

Class Earl R. Riffle, junior in arts and letters from Adah, and the Pershing Rifles was led by Cadet Col. William C. Westgard, senior in arts and letters from Moores-town, N.J.
