2 Students Penalized By Tribunal

Tribunal, with the approval of the dean of men's office, issued penalties to two sixth semester students Wednesday.

One of the students was given a suspended suspension from the University until the end of this semester and office probation for the next fall semester.

The student had been given a ticket for parking illegally in front of Cross Hall. He claimed that the student patrolman had been "contemptuous" and "over-zealous" while ticketing him. This angered the student and he threw the ticket away, put the car in gear and started to pull out from the curb. One of the patrolmen claims that the student brushed him with the car, but caused no physical injuries.

This is the student's second major judicial offense. He was placed on disciplinary probation for a semester in 1957. His case will be referred to the Senate subcommittee on discipline which must approve the recommendation.

Robert Gabos, junior in business administration from Pittsburgh, has been placed on office probation until June.

Gabos was charged by a local justice of the peace for going through a stop sign and going the wrong way on a one-way street while under the influence of alcohol. He was fined $150 and his driving license was revoked for one year.

Tribunal charged Gabos with conduct detrimental to the University.

Slobod to Further MI

Dr. Robert L. Slobod, professor and head of the Department of Petroleum and Natural Gas Engineering, has been appointed to the Committee on Campaign to Develop Interest in Earth Sciences and Mineral Industries of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

HomeEc Students Will Hear Sampson

Barbara A. Sampson, home economist with General Foods, will be one of the featured speakers during the tenth annual Home Economics Spring Weekend today and tomorrow.

Miss Sampson will speak at 2:15 p.m. today in 101 Hetzel Union Building on the "Reactions of Polish People at the International Trade Fair." Miss Sampson, who was in charge of the food demonstrations at International Trade Fairs in both Poland and Greece, will use a film to illustrate the reactions of the people.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota, Miss Sampson did graduate work and served as an exchange dietitian between the University of Michigan and the University of Indiana. For the past twelve years she has been with General Foods, working with research laboratories on basic product development.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, visiting professor of economics, will speak on "Responsibility for Administering the Family Income" at 4:15 p.m. today in Schwab Auditorium.

To complement this topic, home economics students from Africa, Denmark, Formosa, Lebanon, Okinawa and Puerto Rico will appear in native costume to discuss, "Who Handles the money in Our Families?" This program will be given at 3:15 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. today and again at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow in 114 HUB.

Ruby M. Loper, associate professor of housing and design and extension architect at Cornell University, will talk on "Fit the House to the Family." Miss Loper will speak at 1:15 p.m. today and again at 10 a.m. tomorrow in 101 HUB.

The two-day conference for high school students, adult consumers and professionals will feature events to illustrate the principles of buying wisely, understanding economic conditions and planning the use of money.

Construction On Rink Roof To Begin Soon

The University has let contracts for the erection of a roof over the present ice skating rink and construction will begin immediately.

The erection of a roof will convert the rink into a multi-purpose building available for academic and recreational purposes year-round.

Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics, said the ice skating facilities will be unchanged by the transformation. It is hoped the project will be substantially completed by late fall.

The project will be constructed with borrowed funds and the loans will be repaid from earnings of the Athletic Association, McCoy said. The 100 feet by 200 feet skating rink will be covered by a roof of 170 feet by 260 feet.

No cost estimates were available for the project.

The general contract, which involves foundation work, a concrete slab over the ice rink pipes, concrete floor, relocation of the fences and general site work was awarded to M. McCrossin Inc., Bellefonte.

Pollock Engineering Co. Inc., Pottstown, was awarded the contract to furnish, fabricate and erect the structural steel frame for the roof. Plumbing and electrical contracts were also awarded.

'Iphigenia at Aulis' To Open Tonight

New costumes and an original one-piece set designed by Joseph Servello, senior in art education from Altoona, will be used in the Players' production "Iphigenia at Aulis," beginning at 8 tonight at Center Stage.

"Iphigenia," a modern French-style play by Russell Graves, is the re-telling of the beginning of the Trojan War and includes gods, goddesses and Greek mortals.

Obtaining a clear distinction between the gods and mortals was the primary problem in designing the costumes and set, Servello said in an interview.

As this is the first time "Iphigenia" has been produced, the set resulted completely from Servello's imagination.

He described the set as formal, but not "Greek formal." "It is not made to look like rocks or wood, but just like a theatrical set," he said.

The set is comprised of a number of wooden blocks covered with a lavender muslin painted on the outside edge with a Greek motif. The blocks will be fitted together to form one spiralling ramp.

Servello said he was very conscious of the actors when he designed the set so that it would be easy for them to perform on and around it. He is playing the role of Agamemnon.

The play will be presented in-the-round; it is the first time this technique has been used in many years, Servello explained.

The costumes, which Servello also designed, represent a free adaptation of the Greek style. The most interesting part of designing the costumes was giving the "feeling that the gods are not as real as the mortals," he said.

Servello is currently participating in the WFBG program "Key to the Cupboard," a children's puppet show.

He has exhibited woodcuts in a one-man art show in Altoona and in the Temporary Building on campus.

Last year he appeared in "Carnival of Thieves," "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," and "Merchant of Venice."

In addition to having the lead role in "Merchant of Venice," Servello was also assistant designer.
