"TRY IT AGAIN, YOU CHICKENS"—were the cries from the courtyard gang in front of McKee Hall last night. The event was a full scale water battle that lasted from early yesterday morning until late last night.

375 Seniors Join Alumni Association

A total of 375 seniors have joined the Alumni Association and the senior class gift drive has collected $425.

An additional $75 has been pledged to the gift drive, John Bott, drive chairman, said.

Seniors can contribute to both the Alumni Association and the gift drive up to and after graduation. Seniors may join the association before graduation at a special membership price of $2.

The collection of books by contemporary American writers for the Pattee Library leads in the votes for the class gift. About 290 of the 500 postcards returned have this suggestion checked.

The collection would be named "Class of 1959 Pattee Collection of Contemporary American Literature" and would be commemorated by a plaque in the lobby of the library.

The other two suggestions are: ● A religious studies collection for the Pattee Library containing such works as copies of the Dead Sea Scrolls and histories of oriental religions.

● A set of reference books for each residence hall unit.

Journ 17 Final Will Be 'Picnic'

Students in one section of Journalism 17 will probably have the most enjoyable final examination of the semester.

H. Eugene Goodwin, director of the School of Journalism and an instructor in the course, has invited the 16 students in his section to his home for an informal dinner May 28.

Goodwin made the invitation with one stipulation. In order to get the dinner, the students must present a 500-word essay criticizing current news values.

"If you want to get a good grade in this course," Goodwin added, "you'll have to praise my wife's cooking."

MacKenzie Gets Position

Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, was elected to the membership committee of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business at the Miami Beach, Fla. meeting.

He will hold this position until 1964.

Splish, Splash, They Weren't Taking a Bath

Some of the students living in McKee Hall are all wet. At least they were last night.

A water battle, which began yesterday afternoon and lasted until late last night, brought many to the front windows of the building, but few to the courtyard below.

Water-filled plastic bags, cardboard containers, cups, and paper bags supplied the ammunition for the troops high in the McKee garrison.

Down below was a band of renegades who, clad in bathing suits, defied the marksmanship of their opponents by running back and forth between the court and the protection of the building. Each foray brought a rain of water down from all sides.

"Try it again," you chickens!" came the cry from above.

"What are you using to fling those things, a lacrosse stick?" retorted one below.

There then would follow a splash, an unprintable oath, and a roar of laughter.

It was a hot night.

Faculty Papers Given

Two papers by faculty members of the Department of Meteorology were presented last week at the national meeting of the American Meteorological Society in Washington, D.C.

One paper was by Richard E. Hallgren and Dr. Charles L. Hosler, Jr., and the other was by Dr. Alfred K. Blackadar and Abram B. Bernstein.

Dorm Assignments For Women Delayed

Men who have applied to live in the residence halls next year should get their room assignment slips by the end of the semester, but some women will probably have to wait until summer, James Kline, head of the Assignment Division of the Department of Housing, said yesterday.

One of the reasons for the delay in women's housing is the mix-up over sorority housing earlier this semester, Kline said.

The Department of Housing originally planned to cut sorority spaces to 25. When Panhellenic Council protested their decision in March, housing agreed to let the sororities have as many spaces as they can fill each year.

Independent women will be able to keep the rooms they lived in this year, Kline said, even if their plans interfere with a sorority's. He said any reasonable request for independent women to live together would be granted.

Assignment slips will be mailed as soon as physically possible, he said. He also said he did not know if any women would have to live in residence hall lounges at the beginning of the semester.

Women who will be freshmen next year were assigned rooms before women who will be upperclasswomen, but men who will be upperclassmen received assignments before men who will be freshmen.

The drawing for men's rooms were held in March, and for women's rooms, shortly after Easter. The men's drawing was held first, Kline said, because men are not required to live in the residence halls and they may change their minds after they have applied. The earlier date gives the Room Assignment Office more time to adjust difficulties.

Contest Photos Due Tomorrow

All photographs to be entered in the "The Boy Friend" premier contest must be submitted to the office of the theatre arts department, second floor of Schwab Auditorium, before 5 p.m. tomorrow.

A ticket stub from any performance of the Players production must be submitted with the entries.

The winner of the contest will be notified personally next Wednesday. Except for the winning photograph, all entries may be claimed at the office after Wednesday. The winning photograph will become the property of Players.

Judges for the contest are William Bennett, publicity chairman for the show; Robert Teifsneider, director; Ivan Ladizinsky, stage manager; Russell Whaley, set designer; and Stanley Epstein, vocal director.

Pictures of University

A new book about college, "College. The Life of a Student" by Jack Engeman, will include pictures taken at the University.

The book consists of photographs with an explanatory text. The photographer-author visited all types of colleges all over the country.
