

—Collegian Photo by Dave Trump

FISH ??? . . . A piece of modern art by Adolph Dioda is inspected by Carol Mezzo, freshman in Liberal Arts from Williamsport; Janine Mitchell, junior in bacteriology from Hollidaysburg, and James Cober, senior in management from Indiana. Also exhibited in the HUB art exhibit is a series of works by Paul Rand, noted advertising design artist.

More Government Jobs Put Under Civil Service

Young people with specialized governmental training may expect an increase in state and federal jobs available to them.

According to Dr. John H. Ferguson, professor of political science and director of the newly-established Institute of Public Administration, the increase in available jobs is due to revised civil service laws and a more unbiased selection of employees.

Music Series To Open With String Quartet

The ninth annual Chamber Music Series, sponsored by the State College Choral Society, will open its season of four concerts on Oct. 25 with the performance of the famous Hungarian String Quartet.

Other concerts scheduled in the coming series are: The New Art Wind Quintet, Dec. 6; The Saidenberg Players, March 6 and Thomas Richner, pianist, April 24. The concerts will begin at 8 p.m. in the State College High School Auditorium.

Tickets, sold only for the entire series at a cost of $5.50, will be on sale until Oct. 25, and are obtainable from society members, Keeler's Book Store, Harmony Shop, Music Room, the HUB desk, and Pifer's Music Store, Bellefonte.

The Hungarian String Quartet, which was well-received by local audiences in recent appearances, has arisen steadily to international prominence from its Budapest debut in 1935. The group is noted for its celebrated performances of the 17 quartets of Beethoven.

The Saidenberg Players, composed of seven key players from the Saidenberg Little Symphony, has presented chamber music highlights since 1952.

Tongue in Cheek--

(Continued from page four)

She's determined to lose 30 pounds by Saturday. She skips breakfast by sleeping late. She skips lunch by going to the library.

By 3 p.m., she's tired of eating her little heart out, so she's sitting in a restaurant filling her little figure out—with two hamburgers, a vanilla malt and a dish of strawberry ice cream. When she steps on the scale on Saturday, she's going to get the shock of her life.

All kidding aside, though, we do find coeds who watch their calories and benefit by it. Just look at Miss Pennsylvania. So I am watching my diet, too, but as soon as I am finished here I'll just have to have something to eat. After all, I passed up dinner to write this column.

Ed TV Will Link Buildings

(Continued from page one) not be used for educational purposes, according to Dennis.

If permission to use channel 3, which is very high frequency, were obtained, programs could be broadcast a distance of 75 miles. The broadcasting tower would be located on Rattlesnake Mountain, 12 miles northeast of Philipsburg and 40 miles from State College. FCC regulations do not permit more than one channel 3 within a 200 mile radius; but the FCC did not assign channel 3 in this area and the University could use it, Dennis said.

When work can get underway on this project depends on the initial financing and cost of operation, he said. The General State Authority would have to provide funds, and one of the buildings on campus would have to be converted for broadcasting, he added.

A committee consisting of representatives from Pennsylvania schools drew up a plan in 1959 for a state-wide educational TV network linking Pittsburgh, Erie, University Park, Harrisburg and Philadelphia, but the plan did not receive support in Harrisburg.

Dennis said this plan "hasn't been pressed particularly in the last five years." The committee is now inactive.

Each area has attempted to further educational television locally. "It has become a community affair," according to Dennis. "Since a network is impossible, each area looks to its own needs."

Darwinian--

(Continued from page one) Ross Lehman, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association; Dr. Harold O'Brien, assistant to the dean of the College of the Liberal Arts; Ralph Wherry, head of the Department of Commerce and Robert Beam, director of the Alumni Fund.

Student members are Leonard Julius, Sherry Parkin, Helen Skade, Alan Elms and Theodore Pauloski.

Nichols Publishes Article

Dr. Edward J. Nichols, professor of English composition, is the author of an article, "The Military Record of General John F. Reynolds," published in the July issue of the Journal of the Lancaster County Historical Society.

Band to Perform In Rally Tomorrow

The Virginia Military Institute-Penn State football game pep rally will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow on the front steps of Old Main.

The Penn State Blue Band and cheerleaders will parade before the rally. The parade will start at Carnegie Building and proceed around the dorm areas.

Dave Williams, head manager of the football team, will speak at the rally, the first one of the season for a home game. Vincent Marino, senior in business administration from Clearfield, will be the master of ceremonies.

WSGA to Permit--

(Continued from page two) also be investigated.

Nominations for residence hall officers will be held Wednesday and elections Oct. 6. Primary elections for freshman senators will be held Oct. 20 and finals Oct. 22.

Any freshman who wants to run for senator may fill out an application in 101 McElwain or the dean of women's office beginning Monday. Applications will be available until Oct. 8.

The functions of the WSGA organization, offices and committees were also explained to about 35 freshman women who attended the meeting.

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER DOLLAR

Today I begin my sixth year of writing this column for the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro Cigarettes. For this I get money.

Not, let me hasten to state, that payment is necessary. "Sirs," I said a few days ago to the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro, "if I can introduce America's college men and women to Philip Morris and Marlboro, and thus enhance their happiness, heighten their zest, upgrade their gusto, magnify their cheer, and broaden their bliss, there is no need to pay me because I am more than amply rewarded."

We wept then. I'm not ashamed to say it. WE WEPT! I wish the wisecracks who say big business is cold and heartless could have been there that day. I wish they could have seen the great, shimmering tears that splashed on the board room table. We wept, every man jack of us. The makers wept—the secretaries wept—I wept—my agent, Clyde Greedy, wept. We wept all.

"No, no!" cried the makers. "We insist on paying you."

"There's no need to pay me...!"

"Oh, very well," I said, and the gloom passed like a summer shower. We laughed and we lit Philip Morris and Marlboros—and some of us lit Alpines—which is a brand-new cigarette from the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro—a fine new cigarette with a light touch of menthol and the rich taste of choice tobacco and the longest filter yet devised. And if you are one who likes a fine new cigarette with a light touch of menthol and the rich taste of choice tobacco and the longest filter yet devised, you would do well to ask for new king-size Alpines. If, on the other hand, you do not like menthol but do like better makin's and a filter that does what it's built for, ask for Marlboro. Or, if you don't like filters at all, but only mildness, ask for Philip Morris. Any way you play it, you're a winner.

But I digress. "Will you," said the makers of Philip Morris, Marlboro and Alpine, "write about the important issues that occupy the supple young minds of college America this year in your column?"

"But of course," I replied, with a kindly chuckle.

"And will you," asked the makers, "from time to time say a pleasant word about Philip Morris, Marlboro and Alpine?"

"Crazy kids!" I said with a wry grin, pushing my fist gently against their jaws. "You know I will."

And we all shook hands—silently, firmly, manfully. And I left, dabbing my eyes with my agent, and hurried to the nearest typewriter.

© 1959 Max Shulman

I Married Him for His Money !!

But, there just doesn't seem to be enough to go around now that he's in school! So . . . I gathered up all the unused items I could find and placed a For Sale Classified Ad in the Centre Daily Times. Now we have enough money for clothes and entertainment besides! You can get extra money too! To place your Classified Ad, just phone . . .

ADams 7-4964

The makers of Philip Morris, Marlboro and Alpine take great pleasure in bringing you another year of this uncensored, free-wheeling column.