

Dean of Women Speaks

Decisions Will Be Left To WSGA, Lipp Says

By JEFF POLLACK
Dean of Women Dr. Dorothy J. Lipp talked yesterday about her job.

She said she would leave decisions directly affecting students to the Women's Student Government Association. Dean Lipp pointed to the recent smoking-in-the-dining-hall vote held by WSGA as a method of making desired changes in the present coed regulations.

How does she see her job? "The dean of women is an educator outside the classroom," she said. "She must keep the environment positive so the coeds can profit by the classroom experience. I know it sounds stuffy, but everything that happens on campus is an education."

"I believe in student government and I hope WSGA will tackle the problems it faces with realism and courage."

Dean Lipp said her job was completely different from that of a dean of women 20 years ago because of the change in the type of coed attending college.

"We will have to start with a whole new approach to women's problems. The day is past when we have to protect, with a capital P, women students."

She said today's students are "not children. We are forcing the present generation to grow up very fast, and we must make them responsible free people, not protect them."

What changes would she like to see?

Dean Lipp said she feels women's hours and especially freshmen hours are too early. "Friday and Saturday night hours should be the same for everybody," she said.

"Juniors and senior women should be in whenever the lock-up time is. They will know themselves when to be in."

Under the University's present financial situation, the dean said, no other system is possible except to lock the doors.

"Before any radical change in regulations can be undertaken," she said, "we must decide how much protection and education we have to give the present freshmen and sophomore classes. I am afraid if we threw them out on their own we would run into many problems."

To find out more about some of the problems facing coeds, Dean Lipp said she will encourage research along social science lines to determine the best solution to the problems.

"One of our biggest problems is boy meets girl, especially freshmen boys and girls," she said. "We think we have one solution for this problem. During the next two weeks 64 mixers for freshmen are being held. Every available lounge, including those in the men's residence halls, is being utilized."

"The University policy on drinking is sound," she said, "it is just about as sound a policy as any institution could come up with." She said she thought the policy was the most realistic possible.

The University regulations on drinking state that the University discourages drinking by students, but it does not prohibit it.

"My colleagues told me to wait about a year before undertaking any changes," she said, "but I don't want to see a year go to waste."

SCCA Will Begin After October 15

A Student Check Cashing Agency located at the Hetzel Union desk will be in operation each afternoon sometime after Oct. 15 to make it easier for students to cash checks.

Marcus Katzen, sophomore in business administration from Sykesville, SCCA chairman, said he hopes the agency will be open to students by the weekend of Oct. 17.

Personal checks up to $25 may be cashed seven-days-a-week and non-personal checks up to $125 may be cashed Monday through Friday.

The SCCA will be open from 12:30 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Students will have to present their matriculation card and some other means of identification, such as a meal ticket, driver's license or draft card, for their checks to be cashed.

Fees for cashing the checks will be graduated, rising with the amount of the check. A fee of 10 cents will be charged for checks up to $10, 20 cents for checks from $10.01 to $25, 30 cents for checks from $25.01 to $50 and 40 cents for checks from $50.01 to $125.

The SCCA will be operated as a student activity with a faculty or administrative advisor. Personnel will include a 4-member board of control and a six-member staff.

A chairman, treasurer, secretary and a personnel-advertising manager will make up the Board of Control.

Applications, available at the HUB desk, are being accepted for positions on the staff. Interviews will be held from Oct. 1 to Oct. 10 and the staff will be announced by Oct. 15.

Through the Looking Glass

with Gabbi

First off, Ethel and I want to issue a hardy 'Welcome' to the Class of 1963. We want to dedicate this column to you—you with your snappy dinks set at a rakish angle, your slightly dog-eared name cards and the inevitable Freshman bible clutched in your right hand. Now that you've survived (we hope you have survived, at any rate) the lines in the bookstores and the nasty Sophomores who insist on knowing where Borland Lab is, Ethel and I would like to acquaint you with a few of the items to be found in this shop.

Hexter

is a delightful fellow with a mop of pure white hair. He is a very cooperative little man, and completely wired so that he can be twisted and turned in any direction you choose. Hang Hexter from your mirror. Wind him around your bulletin board. He won't mind. Hexter comes in a delightful array of colors anywhere from green to purple. The price? Why, just like Hexter—a delightfully small $2.00.

Webster Never Had It So Good

and you won't either when you stop in Ethel's for a pocket size dictionary. Italian, German and Latin, to name a few, are included. I can't guarantee you a straight "A" transcript, but it sure impresses profs to see you took the time to find the exact meaning of a word. The price should do some impressing, too. Only $1.00. While we're on a book jag, how about the next counter where we can pick up a book on Italian cookery (in case you tire of pot roast in the dorm). Or how about a book of Shakespeare sonnets? Ah, fellows, if you only knew how poetry impresses the feminine gender. The conversation lags, the moon is full, what to do? Why, just whip out your handy, dandy, book of sonnets and the pin is practically hers. How about a book of Russian Fairy Tales? Read the very stories that Momma Khrushchev recited to Nikita in his rosy youth.

You know, I could go on and on about Ethel's. I could talk about the striking contemporary jewelry in gold, copper and satiny silver. Or I could mention the fast selling, get 'im while they're hot, mohair scarves in plaid and solid colors. I could even give passing note to the large and exclusive selection of Tucker ties at Ethel's tie bar, but why don't you come in and see for yourself. We won't bother you.

So Long,
Gabbi

Queen Photo Deadline Scheduled for October 6

A card giving the entrant's name, campus address, extension, semester, curriculum and sponsor, if she has one, should be handed in with the picture.

IFCPA Supplies Food, House Needs

The Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association is a pioneer among Eastern colleges in co-operative buying of food, house furnishings and other house necessities for fraternities, according to Robert Ritchey, president.

IFCPA is a non-profit organization which coordinates the buying power of its member fraternities in order to reduce their operating costs and to provide quality products.

Robert Ritchey, student president of the board, said: "We are specialists in purchasing, accounting procedures and food preparation. The board is always looking for new products to add to the IFCPA list. A linen service is expected to be added this fall, Ritchey said."

The IFCPA with 29 members, has been continuously expanding its size and sales volume. Last year its sales increased from $126,000 to $156,000.

The purpose of the IFCPA is to buy top grade products in large quantities, therefore reducing the cost to the fraternities. A senior board composed of five students and seven faculty members controls the organization of this association.

Alpha Sigma Phi and Tau Kappa Epsilon are the newest members of the IFCPA.

Math 43 Review Class Will Be Held Evenings

Council Debates New Program

A motion was made at the Business Administration Student Council meeting Wednesday to include non-senior council members in the pre-registration program organized for seniors in the College of Business Administration.

The suggestion will be discussed with Dr. William M. Hench, head of the college's pre-registration program, before the council takes further action on the motion Oct. 7.

Discussion revealed a difference of opinion on the advisability of including the 13 non-senior council members in the program.

Several council members felt it would increase incentive to run for council positions and would provide a reward for time put into the activity.

Other members disagreed, saying pre-registration was intended to be a special privilege for seniors. They added that such an action would reduce the number of class openings provided for seniors during pre-registration.

The council will also discuss with Mr. Hench methods of improving the system used in pre-registration this fall.

The University established its student health service 45 years ago—in 1914.
