Ike-'K' Discuss Issues

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower and Russia's Premier Khrushchev met last night on the summit of a mountain to discuss cold war issues between their countries.

The leaders of the world's two most powerful nations began their historic conference within 10 minutes after they flew together in a helicopter to Eisenhower's Camp David, Md., mountain retreat some 25 miles from here.

Their initial face-to-face meeting, on the sunporch of Eisenhower's mountain lodge, got under way with a White House reminder that Eisenhower would avoid negotiating behind the backs of U.S. allies on problems involving them.

Word that the two leaders had begun their talks was relayed to newsmen here by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty.

Hagerty said the opening meeting was "a general discussion of the world situation rather than any specific topic as such."

In response to questions, Hagerty said the only negotiations would be on strictly Soviet-American matters such as a new agreement to exchange educational, scientific and cultural delegations.

Hagerty did not, of course, rule out discussion between the two leaders of such crucial issues as Berlin, disarmament and nuclear tests.

In saying that Eisenhower would "negotiate" only on U.S.-Soviet matters, he made it clear it is the President's position that no final decisions will be reached on matters which directly concern U.S. allies, without first consulting them.

Even though the White House stressed Eisenhower would steer clear of "negotiations," there was (Continued on page five)

"FIGHT ON STATE"—Hundreds of students cheer on the hopes of the Nittany Lions at last night's pep rally on the Old Main steps in anticipation of victory in today's game with VMI.

Students Cheer At Pep Rally

About 1000 students cheered for a football victory at the pep rally last night.

The rally was held on the steps of Old Main after the cheerleaders and Blue Band paraded around campus.

Dave Williams, head manager of the football team, spoke at the rally. He expressed high hopes for a winning season. He said that he thought this year's team was probably the best Penn State has had in 10 years.

Vincent Marino, master of ceremonies, drew applause from the crowd with his jokes about the campus and "beatniks."

Frothy and the Nittany Lion entertained with a sword duel.

Interviews To Be Held For SGA Candidates

Students who applied for positions in the Student Government Association will be notified by mail this week when to report for interviews, SGA President Leonard Julius said.

Students Urged To Remember Traffic Rules

State College Police Chief John R. Juba yesterday urged all students to be aware of new borough traffic regulations during weekdays and on football or big weekends.

He pointed out that State College streets are more crowded this year, due to increased student enrollment and the number of student-driven cars.

Traffic regulation changes in the borough this year include 4-lane traffic along S. Atherton St., parking restrictions on College Ave. near the Garner St. intersection, and No Parking restrictions on the south side of Atherton St.

Juba urged special student cooperation on big weekends, when borough streets virtually overflow with traffic. "We will do all we can to help with traffic," he said, "but the big responsibility is the student's."

Pleasant Weather Expected Today

Partly cloudy skies, pleasant temperatures, and low humidity will continue until late this afternoon.

Temperatures at game time will be in the low 70's and the humidity should be in the comfortable 40 per cent bracket. Although there will be considerable cloudiness, occasional sunshine is likely, especially during the first half.

Sunday should be mostly cloudy and mild with occasional showers and possibly some thunderstorms, especially during the afternoon and evening hours.

Botany Club Will Meet

The Botany Club will hold an organization meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in 218 Buckhout. Students interested in the biological sciences are welcome.

Game Marks 50th Year On New Beaver Field

By SANDY PADWE
Collegian Sports Editor

One of the most exciting Penn State football teams in years opens the 50th and last Beaver Field season this afternoon when it tangles with a fired up V.M.I. eleven at 1:30 p.m.

The first game on Beaver Field was played Oct. 2, 1909 when the Lions beat Grove City, 31-0.

Next season Penn State will be playing its home games in a brand new 42,500 seat stadium at the northeast end of campus.

The Lions, with Riverboat Richie Lucas at the helm, will be looking for their second win of the young campaign this afternoon. They beat Missouri last week, 19-8.

V.M.I. will be without the services of their top back, Sam Horner, today, but the Keydets aren't conceding anything. Horner, the V.M.I. captain will be used only to kick. He suffered a pulled tendon last week in V.M.I.'s win over Marshall College and the injury didn't respond to treatment.

Horner was the leading ground gainer in the southern conference last year and finished fifth in the nation. He also was the fifth leading punter in the country.

"Horner's loss is a tough thing to take," said V.M.I. coach John McKenna yesterday as he watched his spirited team go through a light workout. "Sam's a real fine football player."

"This is one of the toughest games on our schedule and our boys are up for it," he added. Horner expressed similar feelings: "The boys are really keyed up for this one and they think they can take it. They'll sure be in there fighting." The Keydets will have to do (Continued on page six)

30 Student Tickets Left For Artist Series Event

Thirty student tickets remain for the opening Artists' Series attraction and will be available from 9 a.m. to noon today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Tossy Spivakovsky, violin virtuoso, will be the first performer in the 1959-60 Artists' Series lineup. The program will be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

Spivakovsky will play compositions by Mozart, Bach, Beethoven, and Debussy.

PA System To be Used 'Frequently'

The Athletic Advisory Board last night approved a plan for increased use of the Beaver Field public address system at future football games.

The board adopted a recommendation to give "a more complete pinpointing of action" within the 25-yard lines.

Dean Ernest B. McCoy, director of athletics, said the action was taken too late for a change in today's program. However, increased use would be made of the system for the Colgate game next Saturday, he said.

The system has not been used extensively in the past due to poor location of the speakers which are now on the scoreboard.

However, in looking to next year, McCoy said an excellent public address system will be installed in the new stadium. This will cut down the interference the system creates for the radio and television broadcasters in the present stadium.

Increased use of the system was recommended last year by All-University Cabinet. Announcement of touchdowns and a summary of the scoring drives was added.

Architecture Class Plans Shopping Mall

Toledo, Ohio, and Kalamazoo, Mich., may soon have nothing on State College—if the Architecture 411 classes' plan for a shopping mall proves feasible and is accepted by the borough.

The project, under the direction of William A. Hajjar, professor of architecture, is now in the study stage with a pedestrian count and numerous interviews being taken on S. Allen St. A tally of the number of cars being driven on the street is also being made.

Students in the class are interviewing storekeepers along the proposed mall to discover their feelings on the idea.

The pedestrian mall project has not been officially requested by the borough officials, although they have been contacted about the idea.

The pedestrian mall idea for shopping areas became popular earlier this year. Many cities are giving the idea serious consideration and several, including Toledo and Kalamazoo, are now conducting trial malls.

During the tests, which are expected to continue until Tuesday, the 15-man class, all fifth year students, will check how long cars are parked on the street as well as keeping the traffic and pedestrian counts.

Letters have been written to other cities studying the possibility of pedestrian malls to obtain their opinions on such a project.

Once all the information is collected it will be correlated and analyzed to determine whether or not such a project is necessary or feasible.

If the test results show a need for the mall, preliminary sketches, charts and diagrams will be made up. Finally a complete scale model of the area will be constructed showing the location of trees and benches.

Also involved in the project would be provisions for parking cars near the mall so shoppers could drive close to the area.

IFC Open Houses To Be Held Sunday

The Interfraternity Council will sponsor fraternity open houses for freshmen from 2 to 5 p.m. tomorrow.

All fraternities will be open during this period and freshmen are urged to visit as many as possible.

According to Donald Orr, IFC rushing chairman, at least three more open houses are planned this semester to give freshmen a chance to visit all the fraternities.

The area in which the fraternities are located has been divided into three sections; those located from Prospect to Fairmont Ave., those located from Fairmont to Beaver Ave. and those on Campus and S. Allen St.

IFC open houses were instituted last year as a result of the new deferred rushing plan. Under the present rushing regulations, freshman men are not permitted in fraternity houses without special permission from the Dean of Men's office.

In mid-October, the IFC Rushing Committee will give talks to men living in dormitories, explain in detail the rushing regulations.

At this time the committee will also distribute rushing booklets which give locations of the fraternities and a brief description and history of each chapter. The booklet also contains rushing regulations.

Commenting on the deferred rushing plan, Orr said that it is hard to tell if the students and fraternities are benefitting by the new rules. Higher University entrance requirements may be changing freshman academic standards as much as the new rushing regulations. Also many of the fraternities which hoped to save money with deferred rushing last year, spent about the same amount as in previous semesters, he said.
