

Talks Collapse In Steel Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Fruitless negotiations in the nation's 73-day steel strike collapsed completely yesterday. The breakdown heightened the possibility of Taft-Hartley law intervention by the government to open the struck mills.

The striking United Steelworkers Union said it saw no point in continuing the talks as long as industry insists on work regulating concessions. The union says these are aimed at "union busting."

Mrs. 'K' Hopes For Return Visit to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev said yesterday she'd like to come back to the United States again and she believes cultural exchange visits "make for better understanding, better knowledge of one another."

"Contacts between women," she added, "would be equally conducive to solution of problems of the world"

Sometimes smiling and sometimes serious, Mrs. Khrushchev handled her very first news conference with apparent ease.

She acknowledged she was worried about it. And at the start she smilingly called Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, wife of the U.S. ambassador to the UN, and Mrs. Llewellyn Thompson, wife of the American ambassador to the Soviet Union, to sit beside her.

Both women have been traveling with Mrs. Khrushchev across country. "If you attack me too much, they'll defend me," she said with a smile. But she needed no defense as she answered a wide range of questions about herself and her country.

Mrs. K said she doesn't like housework—which drew applause from the 20 newspaperwomen, some of whom came from as far away as London.

Farm matters, political economy and topics of interest to her husband seemed mostly to interest Mrs. Khrushchev.

Teenagers Rob Teacher In Classroom Holdup

NEW YORK (AP) — Two teen-aged boys boldly invaded a fifth grade classroom yesterday and at knifepoint robbed a teacher while her small pupils screamed in terror.

The teacher, Mrs. Betty Koffer, lost $39 in a pocketbook the two Negro youths took from her. They both were said to be about 16 years old.

16 Die In Airline Crash Over Aleutian Islands

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Sixteen persons died last night when a commercial airliner flying over the wild, rugged Aleutian Islands smashed into a mountainside and burst into flames.

A search party worked its way up to the 2000-foot level on the side of an unnamed 5000-foot peak of Great Sitkin Island and reported there were no survivors in the wreckage of the Reeve Aleutian Airways DC4.

A Navy pilot who first spotted the wreckage said only the tail section of the four-engined airliner was intact. The remainder of the plane was still burning when first sighted.

The airliner, piloted by Eugene Strouse, widely known Alaska airman, carried a crew of five, two civilians and nine military men—seven from the Air Force, one Army, one Navy. Strouse, as a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, once commanded an air rescue squadron in Alaska. His wife and two children live here and his father, O. B. Strouse at Topeka, Kan.

Names of the passengers were withheld by the airline and the military until relatives were notified.

The plane was outbound from Anchorage to Adak on a flight that serves military bases and small communities of the island chain.

"We are going home," announced the union president, David J. McDonald. "This farcical filibuster has ended."

He added that the union stands ready to resume talks if it receives from industry "an honest offer worthy of consideration by self-respecting steel workers."

McDonald was asked if the union would resume talks if the government requests it.

"We have never resisted a call of our government. But we see no sense in coming back to New York City. The seat of the government is in Washington. The seat of the steel industry is in Pittsburgh," he replied.

Chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper said the industry still is prepared to resume negotiations Monday.

"We hope that the union will reconsider its position and join with us then in a renewed effort to break the deadlock. This has been our agreed seat of negotiations. We plan to be here. We want to bargain and we want to reach an agreement," he added in a statement.

The chief federal mediator, Joseph F. Finnegan said: "We don't intend to let this thing drift, in view of its impact on 500,000 souls and its impact on the national economy."

The right to set the time and place of meetings is a function of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service."

Finnegan indicated there might be a change of locale when talks resume—presumably in Washington.

More than 500,000 steelworkers, plus thousands of workers in related industries, have been made idle since the strike began July 14. The union is seeking unspecified wage increases, which the industry claims would be inflationary.

France Quits UN Meeting By Monk in Ceylon In Protest

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—France walked out of the UN General Assembly yesterday in protest against charges by Saudi Arabia's chief delegate that the French army in Algeria were torturers thirsting for blood.

But members of the French delegation returned at the conclusion of a vitriolic speech by Ahmad Shukairy, 51, a Palestinian Arab who at one time represented Syria at the United Nations.

Shukairy referred to the statement by French President Charles de Gaulle offering self-determination to the Algerian people provided peace is restored.

De Gaulle said Algeria would be considered at peace if no more than 200 violent deaths occurred in a year.

"We know there are some bloodthirsty French colonists who are ready to step up the maximum figure of President de Gaulle," Shukairy said.

We know such thirst for blood is to be found in the French army itself—as evidenced by the most brutal acts of torture committed against the people of Algeria," he added.

Victor A. Belaunde of Peru, 75-year-old Assembly president, interrupted Shukairy and asked him not to use language "that might disturb the atmosphere of the Assembly."

Shukairy replied that he believed freedom of speech was guaranteed at the United Nations, then went on with his prepared text.

Later he remarked to a reporter on the French action: "I hope they walk out of Algeria."

Prime Minister Shot By Monk in Ceylon

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—A professed Buddhist medical monk whipped a pistol from his saffron robes yesterday and critically wounded Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike, who led this island nation into the Asian neutral bloc.

The attacker was captured. He was shot in one knee by a sentry as he sought to flee the Prime Minister's private bungalow at Rosmead Place, Colombo's most luxurious residential area.

Three of his burst of six bullets hit Bandaranaike, damaging the liver, spleen and one arm of the frail British-educated aristocrat who was a champion of Ceylonese independence from Britain.

On a hospital stretcher, the 60-year-old Prime Minister forgave him and appealed for compassion for "this foolish man."

The bullets were removed and Bandaranaike was given four pints of blood during five hours of corrective surgery. Doctors said he stood the operation well and that, although he was still in danger, his condition was satisfactory.

"He is still gravely ill," a medical bulletin said.

The shooting came just three days before Bandaranaike was to leave for New York to address the UN General Assembly.

After a speech there Tuesday,
