

Press Leaders To Hold Forum

By NICKI WOLFORD

Leaders of the press and broadcasting in Pennsylvania and the United States will assemble on campus in November for the University's first annual Communications Forums.

The first forum, scheduled for Nov. 8, 9, 10, will be attended by editors and publishers. The forum's theme will be "The Press: Old Freedoms and New Responsibility."

The second forum is scheduled to be held Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1. Broadcasters will attend this forum whose theme will be "Broadcasting: The Challenge of Responsibility."

Both forums are being sponsored by the School of Journalism and the Center for Continuing Liberal Education, a branch of the College of the Liberal Arts concerned with adult education.

H. Eugene Goodwin, director of the School of Journalism, said both forums are designed "to provoke thought and discussion of social responsibility."

Virtually all other meetings of editors and publishers are only concerned with the mechanics involved in the mass media but this will be a place for discussion of the media's responsibility to their readers, viewers and listeners, Goodwin said.

In the first forum, the 40 editors and publishers invited to attend will be given reading assignments before the discussions. They will be treated "a little bit like graduate students at a high level seminar," according to Goodwin.

Among the topics to be discussed in the press forum are "Pressure on Journalists," "Social Responsibility, Theory and Practice" and "Newspapers and Educators."

Among the speakers for the forum is Herbert Brucker, editor of the Hartford Courant (Conn.) and author of "Freedom of Information" and "The Changing American Newspaper." Brucker is the director of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and was the winner of the Tau Kappa Alpha Award for journalism research in 1949.

Sevellon Brown, editor of the Providence Bulletin and Journal (R.I.) and chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of ASNE, will also talk to the group.

Another forum speaker will be Dr. Theodore Peterson, dean of the College of Journalism and Communications at the University of Illinois. Peterson is the author of "Magazines in the Twentieth Century" and joint author of "Four Theories of the Press."

Both forums will open with a dinner meeting Sunday evening and close with a summary address after the dinner on Tuesday.

A record of the addresses and discussions will be kept and then published.

120 Non-Student Series Tickets Left

Less than 120 non-student tickets remain for the Artist Series program with soprano Adele Addison and harpsichord player Albert Fuller tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

All student tickets have been distributed.

Miss Addison's career began in Springfield, Mass., where she was born and raised. Her life has unfolded in a "small town" girl makes good" fashion during her rapid rise to fame.

Miss Addison's talents were first recognized by a high school teacher during an assembly program in which she sang "America the Beautiful" with her eighth grade class. This led to music lessons with one of Boston's best teachers.

After graduation from high school, Miss Addison received scholarships to Westminster Choir College, the Berkshire School of Music, and the New England

Conservatory of Music. Two years later, she made her debut in Boston and immediately received high acclaim. Since that time her career has soared.

In 1951, Miss Addison went on her first national tour, singing. (Continued on page eight)

Positions Open For Tutoring

Persons interested in tutoring this semester should report to 110 Old Main or call the Division of Counseling at UN 5-7576.

The office serves as a clearing house for students seeking a tutor and for persons willing to accept part-time employment as tutors. It does not supervise the service beyond compiling the list.

All arrangements concerning rates, times and places are handled by the individual tutors and the students requesting their services.

Tutors should specify by department and course number the work they are prepared to undertake. Students, graduates and faculty may register. Undergraduates should have a grade of "B" or better in courses they wish to tutor.

His topic will be "The Challenge of Islam to Christian Faith"

Students May Obtain Loan Checks Today

Students who were granted loans under the National Defense Education Act may pick up their checks at the student loan office, 6 Willard.

About $175 thousand has been loaned to students for the fall semester, according to Harold R. Gilbert, administrative

Carpenters Hammer Out Labor Spat

A jurisdictional labor dispute has caused carpenters engaged in campus construction to be pulled off their jobs for two days.

The question of whether iron workers or carpenters should install the wooden portions of the seats in the new Beaver Field has caused the dispute. The carpenters were pulled from their jobs when it was found that the iron workers were doing the job.

The walkoff involves construction of dormitories and work on the new engineering buildings on W. College Ave.

Company officials on the various projects said that the walk-off is a serious situation since contractors are working against time to "close up" the various buildings before colder weather sets in. The contractors will lose large sums of money if the race with time is not won.

Gilbert especially urged students who have deferred fees to pick up the checks as soon as possible.

National Defense Student Loans are available to any full-time student in good academic standing. Preference is given, however, to prospective elementary and secondary school teachers or students who show a superior capacity in science, mathematics, engineering or modern foreign languages.

The maximum loan is $1000 per year with a total maximum of $5000.

The interest rate on these government loans is 3 per cent. Loans must be repaid within 10 years with the payments and interest beginning the first year after graduation.

Students who plan to teach in a public elementary or secondary school will repay only part of the loan, since the act provides that for each year a student teaches, 10 per cent of the loan is waived up to a maximum of 50 per cent.

Loans are still available under the Defense Act for any full-time student who can qualify. Information may be obtained through the dean of men's or dean of women's offices in Old Main.
