

Band Day Will Begin With Parade

Fifty-six high school bands will parade up College Ave. from Pugh to Burrowes Sts. at 11.10 a.m. today, in a preview of their appearance on Beaver Field this afternoon.

The parade, to be led by the State College High School band, is scheduled to leave Recreation Hall at 11 a.m. The bands will march to Pollock Rd., then east to McAllister Hall, south on the little mall to the Pugh St. campus entrance, west on College to Burrowes and north on Burrowes to Beaver Field. It will take approximately one-and-a-quarter hours to complete the route.

Coming from 24 Pennsylvania counties, many of the bands will be led by Blue Band alumni, including three former presidents of the Blue Band. The groups will be designated special seating sections on their arrival at Beaver Field.

From their positions on the sidelines, the cheerleaders, majorettes and twirlers will add to the colorful spectacle with special cheers and stunts.

At halftime, led by the Blue Band, all 56 groups will take to the field to form the letters PSU. This will be followed by the playing of two marches and the alma mater.

A pre-game Blue Band performance will consist of a series of formations centered about the theme, "holidays."

Among the formations will be a sleigh to the tune of "Over the River and Through the Woods," a Christmas tree to the melodies of "White Christmas" and "Auld Lang Syne," a valentine to the strains of "Funny Valentine" and a shamrock to the notes of "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

In addition, they will march to the "Easter Parade," proceeding down the field to form the letters USA. The band will then play the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Victory."

Dr. Hummel Fishburn, head of the Department of Music, is in charge of all band day activities. James Dunlop is director of the Blue Band.

Nittanies Play Colgate 1:30 Today

By SANDY PADWE

The Red Raiders from Colgate University will be after some Penn State scalps this afternoon when they invade Beaver Field at 1:30 for the 10th annual Band Day game.

The Red Raiders come into today's game with an 0-1 record, having lost to Cornell last week, 20-15. Penn State is 2-0. The Lions have beaten Missouri, 19-8 and V.M.I., 21-0.

Rip Engle's Lions are heavily favored by the oddsmakers, but Colgate captain Joe Wignot says the Raiders haven't been reading the papers.

"We're here to play a ball game and that's what Penn State is going to get," he said yesterday after working out on the Beaver Field turf.

"This team has been beaten pretty badly in past years, but we'll be going all out against Penn State."

Lion captain Pat Botula echoed the same sentiments as Wignot. "The boys are ready for this one," he said, "they really want to play ball. We've got a tremendous amount of competition between the first, second and third units and everyone will be out to play their best games."

So Beaver Field should be the scene of plenty of action today.

Rip Engle will go with much the same team that has started the first two encounters. There are only two changes.

Tackle Charlie Janerette moves to his first unit slot after a week's absence and guard Bill Popp will move up too.

Team Urged to 'Brush the Field With Colgate'

"Brush the field with Colgate, Colgate football team," chorused members of Delta Gamma sorority and Chi Phi fraternity at last night's pep rally.

The Nittany Lions meet Colgate today in the third game of the season.

James Ettelson, vice president of the Hat Society Council, was master of ceremonies at the rally, held on the steps of Old Main. Frothy and the Nittany Lion were on hand as well as the cheerleaders and the Blue Band. Among the Band's selections was "September Song."

Joe Paterno, quarterback coach and guest speaker, said that in the 10 years he has been here, the faculty, alumni, and students have shown a great and increasing interest in Penn State.

Paterno also said: "pride in achievement" is a must for a winning school. He stressed student enthusiasm for all Penn State activities as well as for the football team.

Following the talk, the cheerleaders introduced the new cheer, "Ying Yang," to the upperclassmen.

"Ying Yang" is the new nickname introduced by Pat Botula, team captain, at the Freshman pep rally before the Missouri game. The cheer was first used at last Saturday's game.

Encampment Report

Funds Asked for Flashcard System

By CATHY FLECK
Assistant Editor
(Fifth in a Series)

The Student Government Association will be asked to appropriate initial funds this year for equipment for a flashcard system in the new football stadium.

Encampment members approved this recommendation of the School Spirit workshop and endorsed the flash card system for the 1960 football season.

The SGA will also be asked to help the Pep Club secure the seating section necessary for its success next year.

The setting up of a Pep Club with a three-fold purpose — pep rallies, receptions for homecoming teams, and the flashcard system — was also approved. Workshop members recommended that cars for pep rallies save space to pick up students in outlying areas of the campus and bring them to the rallies.

In order to stimulate more interest in elections, the workshop asked that more emphasis be placed on decentralized voting so as to afford easier opportunity for voting to a greater number of students.

An active program to introduce freshmen to the voting system, political parties and student government early in their college career was suggested.

This would be done through impartial election rallies with both political parties present to better inform the students of the issues and to acquaint them with the candidates.

In order to increase interest in the Alumni Association, workshop members recommended that it receive more publicity through a series of informative articles in campus publications, and that there be an expansion of person-to-person soliciting early in the senior year.

In considering the question of Senior Class Night, it was recommended that the function be maintained but moved back about three weeks. This was suggested to improve the attendance, the lack of which was attributed to the time at which the event had been held in previous years.

80 Tickets Remain For Addison Concert

Approximately 80 student tickets will be distributed beginning at 8 a.m. today for the Adele Addison - Albert Fuller Artist Series concert tonight.

The remaining tickets for the second of this year's programs, which will begin at 8:30 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium, will be distributed at the Hetzel Union desk.

Miss Addison, a well-known soprano from Springfield, Mass., began her singing career in eighth grade when she sang "America the Beautiful" in a school assembly. This early interest in music led to lessons with one of Boston's best vocal instructors.

Following graduation she received scholarships to Westminster Choir College, the Berkshire School of Music and the New England Conservatory of Music.

She made her debut in Boston two years later, and her road to fame was established. A tour to Europe followed with the Boston Cecilia Choral Society and her established fame began to soar.

After the Europe tour she spent more time at the Juilliard School of Music and then in 1952 she appeared in New York. This first New York appearance was followed by appearances with the New York City Opera Company and with the symphony orchestras of Cleveland, Boston and New York.

Fuller and Miss Addison combined last spring during the Handel Festival and have since made several appearances together.

Fuller started his musical career as a chorister in the National Cathedral, Washington, D.C. He then studied choral and organ music under Paul Callaway. Following his choice of the harpsichord for performances, he began studying at the Yale School of Music. His studies there were followed by a year abroad in the study of Baroque music.
