

Lion Booters Face Rams On Beaver Field Today

By BILL BARBER

Smarting from last Saturday's loss at the hands of Bucknell, the Penn State soccer team will once again attempt to start out on the path to its 15th consecutive winning season when it meets West Chester at 10:00 a.m. tomorrow on Beaver Field.

West Chester holds the upper hand in the six clashes between the Lions and the Rams. The Teachers have won three games while the Nittany booters have only taken two. One contest ended in a 0-0 stalemate.

Hosterman has made almost a complete shakeup of the starting lineup for today's game with only five positions remaining unchanged from last week's team.

Sophomore, Dave Grubbs, will get the starting post in the goal. Grubbs will replace Larry Fegley who is still suffering from a charleyhorse received in practice. However, Fegley should see limited service in today's game, according to Hosterman.

The fullback duo remains the same as last week with Wayne Rodgers and Al Neito drawing the starting assignments.

Howard Farrer is the new name in the halfback contingent. Farrer replaces injured Gene Raiford at left half. Right half will be taken by Mike Ackley while center half falls to Bill Rierson.

The forward line has been almost completely shaken up as Lou Van Rafelghem, holding the outside left slot, is the only player to keep his original line spot. Captain Pete Wadsworth has been moved to inside right while Jim Hockenbrock has taken over Wadsworth's old position at outside right. Tony Mattei will move in at inside left while Gary Miller will return to the lineup at the difficult forward slot.

The Rams should hold an ad-

Diminutive Neal Gains Recognition

By CHARLES MAHER

Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (P) — Charlie

Neal, a skinny little guy with arms no bigger than his bat, was standing quietly in the limelight occupied Thursday by a man nearly twice his size.

Neal, who looks as though he might need the wind behind him to drive the ball over the infield, had just belted two mighty home runs—the second of which made the difference in the Dodgers' 4-3 victory over Chicago.

"Man, this is different from 'I wasn't thinking when I hit the regular season,'" said Neal. "This is for the big money."

"I wasn't thinking when I hit that second one that it might win the game, but I was sure glad to see it go. I knew we'd need some runs against these guys."

"Yes, that was one of the biggest thrills of my career."

On the perimeter of the gang of reporters throwing questions at the 155-pound second baseman was Coach Chuck Dressen, who has been giving Neal some batting tips this season.

Dressen said Neal had a weakness, but Chuck wouldn't say what it was until a newsman suggested: "A fast ball, high and inside."

"Yeah," said Dressen "I had him tape the end of his bat, so he couldn't get his hands down so far. Now he doesn't have such a long bat and he can hit those high inside pitches better."

Standing next to Ted Kluszewski, the enormous first baseman who hit two homers for Chicago Thursday, Neal would need only a slingshot to give a perfect impersonation of David in the story of Goliath's demise.

But there was no question of the authority in the little fellow's home runs yesterday.

Left-hander Johnny Bodres, who got the victory yesterday although he was pulled for a pinch hitter in the seventh, had trouble getting started as usual. The Sox got to him for two runs in the opening inning.

"I don't know what it is about that first inning," Johnny said. "It's been a jinx for me all through my career."

"I was throwing good yesterday, but I was a little wider than usual at the start."

Halfback Jim Kerr, who hails from St. Clairsville, Ohio, is the only non-Pennsylvanian in Penn State's starting football lineup. There are only eight out-of-staters on State's 55-man squad.

Harriers Open Slate, Meet Cornell Today

By DICK GOLDBERG

Take five returning lettermen, add two top sophomore prospects, and put them under the tutelage of one of the finest cross country coaches in the nation—What do you get? The top-notch Nittany Lion harriers who will meet Cornell this afternoon at 1 p.m. on the University Golf course.

Coming back from last year's team, which finished with a 4-1 record, are captain Dick Engelbrink, and Chick King, both winners of two letters, Herm Weber, Denny Johnson and George Jones. Engelbrink, Penn State's number one runner, was a mainstay of the team of a year ago, finishing first on two separate occasions and placing in each meet he ran. This year, in a timed workout, Engelbrink finished 13 seconds ahead of his nearest Nittany mate.

The other double letter winner on the Lion squad is Chick King. King, star half-miler during the track season, played an important role in last year's cross country picture. He placed in the top seven harriers in every meet he ran. This year he got off to a slow start but Coach Chick Werner feels that he will come through.

Next returning letterman is Herm Weber. Weber, a year ago, was a very promising sophomore. This year, Werner stated, he has fully matured into a good cross country runner.

The other two returning monogammers are Denny Johnson and George Jones. Neither man saw a great deal of action but Werner is counting on them for good performances this year.

Both Steve Moorhead and Mike Miller have been hot sophomore prospects for the coming cross country season. Last year, Moorhead won both freshman meets in which he participated while Miller placed second and third. This year both looked very good in practice with Werner rating them among the top five harriers.

The coach of the harriers, Chick Werner, has been called one of the finest cross country coaches, resented the United States as a coach in international meets.

He was assistant coach of the 1952 Olympic track team and the head track coach of the 1959 Pan-American team.

Werner has also produced two of the nation's top cross country men, the Ashenfelter brothers. Horace Ashenfelter is Penn State's only Olympic gold medal winner, taking the steeplechase in 1952.

Penn State led the nation in pass interceptions last year with a total of 27. Halfback Jim Kerr, a regular again this season, was the individual leader with five steals good for 122 yards.

Former Brown Coaches Match Wits Saturday

Two former Brown University coaches will match wits in today's contest.

Rip Engle, now in his 10th campaign at Penn State, was head coach at Brown from 1944 until coming to Mt. Nittany in 1950. His six-year record at the New England school was 38 victories, 20 defeats, and 1 tie.

Alva Kelley was head coach at Brown from 1951 until February 1959, when he moved to Colgate.

Voight's 6 TD Passes Highlight IM Action

By CRAIG YERKES

Walt Voigt threw six TD passes for Nittany 25, to lead the way to a 45-0 romp over Nittany 44 last night on the IM gridiron. Voigt was the whole show as he completed passes at will. He also intercepted three enemy aeriels and ran for two PAT's.

IM sports director "Dutch" Sykes called the performance by Voigt "one of the best exhibitions of passing that I have seen on the IM grid."

Two games were played in the fraternity loop last night. Sigma Phi Epsilon edged Sigma Pi, 2-0. Acacia defeated Alpha Chi Rho, 7-0, on the strength of a strong pass defense.

Three crucial thefts, one by Skip Witmer for the games' only score, and two inside the Acacia 10, frustrated the AChiRhos. Sigma Phi Epsilon defeated Sigma Pi by virtue of a safety by Dick Nixxes. The two points stood up as both teams' offenses were hampered by penalties.

In other independent action Westmoreland defeated Cambria, 9-0, Schuylkill defeated Luzerne, 7-0, Blair edged Allegheny, 8-0, Erie nipped Dauphin, 6-0, in overtime and Nittany 31 beat Nittany 34, 6-2.

It was a night for safeties and shutouts as five "indie" teams shut out their opponents and four safeties were recorded.

The most thrilling game of the evening was the Erie-Dauphin overtime tilt. Erie, coached by ex-basketballer Bod Edwards, pulled it out of the fire, when Dave Wolff caught a pass in the flat and raced 40 yards to paydirt.

Gary Peak recovered a fumble in the end zone, midway through the second half, enabling Nittany 31 to top Nittany 34, 6-2.

In keeping with the defensive pattern of the night, Westmoreland used a safety and an intercepted pass to down Cambria, 9-0. Joe Byers plucked off a first half Cambria aerial and raced to paydirt, while Ed Phillips added two points on a safety.

It was Blair over Allegheny by the count of 8-0. Dave Albus scampered 20 yards to the goal after intercepting a first half Allegheny pass. The men from Blair added a safety in the second half for insurance.

In the final game of the evening, Schuylkill scored early in the first half and managed to hang on for the rest of the game to win, 7-0.
