

Varsity, Cub Harriers Take Two from Cornell

By DICK GOLDBERG

The Nittany Lion harriers copped a double win Saturday as the varsity humbled Cornell, 18-37 and the Lion freshmen edged the Big Red fledglings, 27-28.

In the varsity meet, the Lions swept the top four places to smash the visiting harriers from Cornell. Lion Dick Engelbrink swept over the difficult course in 26.44 to finish first in the field. He took the lead from the onset of the meet and never gave it up. The Lion captain finished 100 yards ahead of his nearest competitor.

In second place was Herm Weber, with a time of 27:04. In the same manner as Engelbrink, Weber took a tight grip on the second position and maintained it throughout the race.

Up until the third mile, there was a nip and tuck race between two Penn State harriers, Steve Moorhead and Denny Johnson for third and fourth positions. Moorhead, the sophomore sensation, finally wrested the lead from Johnson at the four mile position and took third with a time of 27:09. Johnson finished fourth in 27:32.

The biggest battle of the afternoon was between Chick King, veteran Lion harrier, and three Cornell men. King, John Slater, Jack Groom and Jim Munday fought for the next four positions. The Lion hill-and-daler lead for the first three miles. He ran out of gas coming around the start of the second big loop. Groom took over, followed by Slater and Munday with King finishing in the eighth position.

Placing ninth and tenth for the Big Red were John Einaudi and Ted Bochman.

In the freshman meet, the Nittany Lions won but Dick Chapman of Cornell was the individual star. Chapman finished first with a time of 15:31, breaking the old three-mile record held by Denny Johnson. Chapman's feat was eight seconds under the existing mark.

Top placer for the Nittany Cubs was Jerry Norman. Norman finished second in a time of 15:42, just three seconds off the record. Third was Penn State's Lionel Bassett clocked in 16:10. Fourth was Howie Deardorff in 16:32.

Coach Chick Werner, commenting on the meet said all the boys showed potential but all of them would need more work.

"October 3 is too early to hold a varsity meet. It is only two weeks after the boys have returned to school and they are not in the peak of condition," Werner added.

Anderson's Injury Boosts Nittanies

By Sandy Padwe
Collegian Sports Editor

With Army's great All-American halfback Bob Anderson out of the lineup indefinitely, Penn State's chances for a win over the Cadets Saturday are a lot better.

Anderson, Army's leading ground gainer last year, injured his right knee Saturday when the Cadets' were upset by Illinois, 20-14.

But don't count the Nittany Lions in yet. There are a few other factors involved.

Namely Joe Caldwell, a fairly good quarterback, and William Carpenter, the big blond end who nobody likes, not even the men in the Army huddle.

Both are All-American candidates and are well on their way to achieving that status. Caldwell is one of the best passers in the nation, having completed 30 passes in the Cadets' first two games.

Carpenter, Army's famed lonely end is the captain of the Cadet squad and in the opener against Boston College two weeks ago, snagged nine passes.

That's as many as Penn State's leader Maurice Schleicher gathered in all last season.

When Caldwell's hitting and Carpenter's on the receiving end, they resemble Johnny Unitas and Ray Berry of the Baltimore Colts.

And if Penn State's pass defense is as leaky as it was the past two weeks against V.M.I. and Colgate, the Nittanies are in for trouble on the banks of the Hudson.

It's all right to let passes get by against a team like Colgate, but the Lions just can't afford to let it happen against Army.

Penn State's sudden downfall in the pass defense department was one of the biggest surprises to hit the Beaver Field press box during Saturday's game.

Scouts from Boston University, Army and Illinois watched silently but with smiles on their faces as Colgate's quarterback Bob Paske passed for 284 yards and three touchdowns.

Paske isn't even ranked as one of the better passers in the country, but Caldwell is, and Illinois' Bob Myers is fast becoming one of the select group.

Last night Rip Engle and company seemed a little worried over the pass defense situation.

"Our secondary men are just too small to break up some of those pass plays," Engle said. "That's where our main trouble is."

"Look who we have back there. Jim Kerr, Dick Hoak, Dick Pae, Jack Urban, Eddie Caye, Richie Lucas and Galen Hall. Only Lucas is over six foot.

"How can they get up there and break up passes intended for guys like Evans (V.M.I. end) and MacKinnon (Colgate)?"

Someone said they did it against Missouri, but then quarterback coach Joe Paterno chirped in and reminded him that the Tigers didn't throw that much—especially long ones.

"We've got a good pass defense. The guys always cover but sometimes they just can't break up the play," he said.

"That's football. Sometimes you can do some things and other times you can't."

Paterno's right, but against the Black Knights there won't be any room for mistakes or even one slip up.

The Lions haven't beaten Army since 1899. They've lost six and tied two in between.

The odds should switch to Penn State's favor with Anderson out but as Rip Engle says, "You can never tell what will happen when you play Army."

"And to make things worse," he added, "they'll be roaring mad because of their loss to Illinois last week."

So draw your own conclusions. The Cadets have lost Anderson, a two time All-American, and the Lions have their best team in years. It should be quite a ball game.

LA Dodgers Take 3rd Game As Hodges Blasts Home Run

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gil Hodges, a battle worn Dodger veteran of seven World Series, hammered a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning yesterday for a 5-4 Los Angeles victory over the Chicago White Sox. The Dodgers now hold a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven series with a chance to close it out this afternoon before another record Coliseum crowd.

The Dodgers appeared on the way to a shutout behind Roger Craig who was bombed in the 11-0 opener until the Sox rallied for four in the seventh. A screen-clearing three-run homer to left by Sherm Lollar tied the score. Los Angeles had chased Early Wynn in the four-run third inning.

A roaring throng of 92,550, that topped Sunday's series record turnout by 256, tooted on their toy trumpets and yelled "charge" and "go" as the Dodgers pulled this one out of the fire after blowing a 4-0 lead.

Outhit once again by the White Sox who combed Craig and winner Larry Sherry for 10 hits, the Dodgers simply were not to be denied.

Gerry Staley, the fourth Chicago pitcher, was on the mound when Hodges came up to lead off the eighth. Staley had worked the scoreless seventh and was making his 70th appearance for the Sox, including three in the series.

Hodges, the skillful 35-year-old first baseman who had been with the Dodgers since 1947, slammed Staley's second pitch over the extended screen in left. The ball sailed about 340 feet into a throng of delirious customers. It was Hodges' fifth in series competition.

True to the Dodger tradition in this series, they hadn't scored in the third until two men were out.

All through the long sunny afternoon the Dodgers were playing like the White Sox were supposed to play. They were the go-go team with the alert base runners and the solid defense while the Sox wobbled and fumbled, opening the gates to Los Angeles scoring.

Wynn could have sued for non-support in the frantic third when five Dodger singles, some of them of the scratch variety, combined with two errors and a passed ball for four runs. Early, the top winner among active pitchers in the majors with 271, was a glum, dejected man when he was relieved by Turk Lown. As usual, it started with two
