

President Gives Panel Three Day Extension

WASHINGTON (P) — President Eisenhower's inquiry panel still plugging against odds for settlement of the marathon steel strike, yesterday was granted an added three days for handing its report to the White House.

Eisenhower agreed to move ahead his deadline for receiving the report from Friday to Monday. The President must get the report, detailing the facts in the dispute, before he can order the Justice Department to seek an 80-day, strike-stopping injunction.

Poll Sought On Nittany Dining Wish

Nittany men will be polled this week to find out if they would like to eat in the women's residence halls dining rooms.

The announcement of the poll was made last night by Harold Sandstrom, president of the Association of Independent Men, at the organization's first Board of Governors' meeting.

Sandstrom instructed the Nittany area delegates to take the poll. He said the request had come from Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs.

If passed, the change in eating places would probably take place after the Thanksgiving vacation, Sandstrom said. He added that no definite dining halls had been selected for the plan.

The Board of Governors also approved a change in the sharing of expenses on joint projects with the Leonides Council, independent women's organization. Under the old system AIM paid two-thirds of all costs on joint projects. Last night the board agreed to pay three-fourths of all costs. This was done to bring the amount paid into line with the approximate ratio of independent men to women.

Club Hubana, an AIM offspring two years ago, was brought back under the direct control of the Board of Governors. The board voted to require the chairman of the Club Hubana committee to report monthly on the progress and financial standing of the organization.

The motion also gives the Board of Governors the final say on all financial responsibilities and expenses of the group.

The extension gives the three-man inquiry board more time to try to wangle a peace pact. That would make a report unnecessary. Panel Chairman George W. Taylor, a veteran mediator of labor disputes, said: "Naturally, our aim is to avoid filing any report at all."

Taylor said his panel needed more time anyway to assemble the voluminous testimony and exhibits presented by both sides and put them in shape for a report. In the likely event one must be filed.

The panel, on receiving word that Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell had obtained the time extension, arranged to meet separately in secret sessions with top negotiators of the union and industry.

It was clear the panel was driving hard in the time left to break the deadlock that has blocked settlement of the 92-day strike, worst in steel industry history.

The striking United Steelworkers Union completed its arguments on the strike issues Tuesday night.

R. Conrad Cooper, executive vice president of U.S. Steel Corp., and chief industry negotiator, kicked off the companies' side Wednesday.

There was little outward evidence Taylor's panel has yet scored any gain toward moving both sides toward agreement.

Cool Temperatures To Continue Today

Cloudy and cool weather will continue again today.

The forecast is for cloudy skies and continued cold today with afternoon temperatures in the upper 40's. A few sprinkles of rain may fall on occasions, but no steady rain is expected.

Tonight should be partly cloudy and cold. The low temperature will be 40 degrees.

Tomorrow will be partly cloudy and a little warmer with a high of 60 degrees.

Informal Dinner Planned For Hat Society Women

A dinner for all hat society women will be held at 5 p.m. today in Haller lounge by Mortar Board, senior women's hat society. Appetizers will be served at that time, after which the group will go to dinner in the Haller dining area in Redifer.

School clothes should be worn and students should bring meal tickets.

Assembly Leader To Be Discussed

The Student Government Association Assembly will hear a recommendation tonight to have the SGA President chair the Assembly.

The recommendation is part of a report from the Student Encampment Workshop on the New Student Government Association. Jessie Janjigian, workshop chairman, will ask the Assembly to approve the report at 7:30 p.m. in 215 Hetzel Union Building.

Committees Named For UN Celebration

The United Nations Weekend Committee named eight special committees last night to begin plans for the opening phase of the University's UN Weekend Celebration.

Carmella LaSpada, general chairman for the committee, said that each group would have the responsibility of setting up an international display for the first event of the celebration, the UN Festival, which will take place from 9 to 12 p.m. Oct. 23 in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

The displays will show cultural works from six geographical regions of the world, plus displays concerning the United Nations at work, she said.

The six regions to be represented are the Middle East, Europe, Latin America, the Far East, Africa and India.

Miss LaSpada said that the purpose of the UN Weekend is to create student concern with the World Refugee Year, which takes place from June 30 to July 1, 1960; international affairs; and the student's role within the world today.

Other displays to be included in the program will show the technical assistance provided by the United Nations and a refugee display.

The regional displays and the committees associated with each are as follows:

Middle East—faculty advisors for the committee are Eugene A. Myers, associate professor of economics and Margaret B. Matson, assistant professor of sociology.

Europe—faculty advisors are Mrs. James Gemmel and Hazel Hatcher, professor of home economics education.

Latin America—faculty advisor is Richard Renner, director of the Latin American Project.

Far East—faculty advisor is Rose Cologne, professor of education and of special adult education.

A special Committee of Understanding was established composed of faculty members of each college of the University.

Traffic Rule Prohibits Stopping on Pollock Rd.

People driving along Pollock Rd. were reminded yesterday that parking and traffic regulations prohibit stopping along the road to pick up or discharge passengers.

Col. Lucien E. Bolduc, head of the Campus Patrol, said the move, designed to speed up traffic, will be enforced starting today. Violators will be issued traffic violation notices, Bolduc said.

Miss Janjigian said yesterday that almost all those who participated in the workshop were in consensus that the president should preside over the Assembly. She added that this recommendation is the key to the rest of the report, since several other proposals depend on this issue.

Most of the discussion in the workshop was concerned with this suggestion, Miss Janjigian said. The discussion was very objective since most of the workshop members were "new on the job and didn't come with preconceived notions," she said.

Peter Luckie (C.-Sr.) chairman of the Rules Committee, said that he is "definitely in favor of" the recommendation.

Luckie said that having the president chair the Assembly would be a greater incentive for him to take part in Assembly business. A person is reluctant to give a report, Luckie said, if he is not actively participating.

SGA President Leonard Julius said last night he would make no comment on the recommendation until the Assembly meeting tonight. SGA Vice President Larry Byers could not be reached for comment.

Charles Steele, co-chairman of Campus party said his party executive committee has gone on record as favoring the Encampment recommendation.

Steele added that he personally thinks the recommendation is a "good thing." Since the president was elected as the most qualified student, he should chair the Assembly, Steele said.

University Party in an open meeting last week decided to oppose the encampment recommendation, at least under existing conditions and the facts known at present.

One of the arguments for keeping the vice president as the Assembly head, pointed out by Howard Byers, was that the president would be better informed if he were an onlooker rather than a participant "bogged down with parliamentary rigmarole."

Thespian Production To Open in Schwab

"It's in the Book," the fall Thespian production, will open at 8 tonight in Schwab Auditorium for a 3-day run.

Tickets for the production are on sale at the Hetzel Union desk. It will play at Schwab Auditorium tonight through Saturday evenings.

Tickets are still available for center seats on the main floor from the 13th row back, and good seats are available on the side aisle for tonight.

Good seats are also available for tomorrow and Saturday nights from the 16th center row to the back and from the sixth rows on the side.

Seats in the balcony are still available for all three performances.

The idea for a satire on children's stories was approved last May by Thespians. From that time on the problem of deciding what to put in the "book" became the responsibility of Ivan Ladizinsky, senior in arts from State College, and Raymond Fortunato, faculty advisor for Thespians.

"We first made a list of such children's stories as Mother Goose," Ladizinsky explained. "Then we thought!"

From the list they selected stories most adaptable to satire.

The next step was to write a brief description of the play, known as a scenario. The job of writing the dialogue and lyrics was completed by the end of August, according to Ladizinsky.

Lyrics were set to music by Fortunato and one of the skits was written by Samuel Parsons, senior in arts and letters from Allentown. Parsons is also directing a skit in which he has a part.

"It's in the Book," is the first musical Ladizinsky has written for production. "It has been quite (Continued on page eight)
