Miller Proposes 'Closer Classes'

By SUSIE LINKROUM

Scheduling classes for required courses in specific curriculums in the same area may help relieve the problem of getting to classes promptly, according to John E. Miller, University Scheduling Officer.

Due to the ever-increasing enrollment, the University has had to increase the physical size of the campus, he said. Consequently, it is becoming more difficult for students to be on time to classes in the ten minutes allowed.

Flag Review To Begin UN Fete

The University's observance of United Nations Day will begin at 11 a.m. today at the south court of the Hetzel Union Building when the flags of 50 nations represented on campus will be raised in honor of the occasion.

At this ceremony, a plaque commemorating World Refugee Year will be dedicated at the foot of a sweet gum tree planted last spring in soil brought from several Pan-American countries.

The dedication plaque reads: "This tree is a symbol of our united efforts to meet the humanitarian challenge of World Refugee Year and to maintain international peace. The Students of the Pennsylvania State University."

The celebration will continue at 2:30 p.m. when a Community Peace Conference will be held in the HUB ballroom.

United Nations dinners with appropriate table decorations will be held at 5:30 tonight in campus residence halls, the HUB Terrace Room and fraternities.

The climax of the United Nations celebration will be the presentation of the musical show, "Getting to Know You," from 8 to 10 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

The Chapel Choir, Acacia Quartet, Thespians Chorus and many of the 210 international students enrolled at the University will participate in the program.

The Scheduling Office, Miller said, is developing a plan whereby students can attend their required courses in the same building or least in the same area of campus.

The system will require a lot of research, he said. In order to make the plan feasible, required courses in each curriculum, available hours and rooms, the number of professors and the number of students must be taken into consideration. All these factors must then be woven into a pattern, in order to have classes closer together.

"The system will be put into effect next fall, if all arrangements for it are completed," Miller said.

The students would have to follow the pattern of required courses, however, in order to have their classes closer to one another.

For example, students who are in the curriculum of arts and letters and are required to take three specific courses in a specific semester will have those classes scheduled in the same area. If they deviate from the pattern, they will have to suffer the consequences of possibly having a long distance between classes.

This system could limit the student's present choice of hours, Miller said. If a student wished to take the required course at a different hour than the one in the curriculum pattern, it is possible that it would be some distance from his other classes, he said.

Another exception to the system is that some courses which require special facilities such as laboratory or demonstration equipment may have to be scheduled away from the other classes.

Clocks Go Back; Daylight Time Ends

Daylight Saving Time will end tonight making this week-end the longest of the year.

Clocks will be set back an hour at 2 a.m.

Centre County will revert to Eastern Standard Time after five months of DST. This will allow residents and students alike to make use of the "extra" hour that they put in reserve back in May.

Beginning on Monday students will be able to go to their 8 o'clock's in daylight, instead of the semi-dark conditions of the past few weeks. However, those students having 4 o'clock classes will be leaving them in the dark, starting next week.

This is the first year that any towns in Central Pennsylvania retained DST into October. Previously the clocks were set back in the latter part of September.

Beginning with Church services Sunday and continuing into the opening of businesses on Monday, all county functions will return to Standard Time.

Greyhound and Edwards Lakes-to-Sea bus lines have made schedule adjustments to go with Standard Time. The following is the schedule that will now be in use:

• Westbound for Pittsburgh 7:49 a.m.; west via DuBois, 9:35 a.m.; west, 6:24 p.m.; west 8:19 p.m.; weekends, Friday to Sunday, 8:19 p.m.

• For Harrisburg, 9:36 a.m. and 10:16 p.m. weekdays, 4:36 p.m. Friday through Sunday. For Sunbury, 10:15 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 5 p.m. Friday to Sunday.

Cool, Dry Weather Predicted By Lion

A cooler drier air mass will bring gradually clearing skies and cooler weather to this area this afternoon and tonight.

Warm and humid conditions with occasional rain will persist this morning, but will give way to cloudy, windy and cooler weather this afternoon. Today's high will be reached around noon and it should be 70 degrees.

Steel Contract Talks To Resume Today

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The United Steel workers and the steel industry's four-man negotiating team agreed last night to resume contract talks Saturday 2 p.m. EDT in efforts to end the 101-day nationwide steel strike.

The new round of talks were scheduled in rapid fire developments that saw both sides requesting meetings.

The union asked the industry to meet Monday. The industry replied it would like to get started Saturday.

Both parties are under directive from the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals to resume bargaining quickly.

While the negotiations were being scheduled, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell urged negotiations "around the clock until an agreement is reached."

USW President David J. McDonald sent invitations to 96 steel companies to meet with the union in Pittsburgh Monday. All were named as defendants in a government request for a Taft-Hartley injunction.

Saturday's talks will bring together the union's four-man negotiating team and a four-member team that has represented industry in most of the talks since they began last May.

The union's invitation Friday called for separate meetings with each of the 96 companies closed by the strike. McDonald said he still hopes to hold individual meetings with each firm Monday.

in Municipal Stadium.

The Lions go into today's game with a 5-0 record and an eighth place national ranking, but the Fighting Illini rule a one touch-down favorite.

Ray Eliot's crew brings a 3-1 mark into this afternoon's contest. They will be after their fourth straight win, having topped Army, Ohio State, and Minnesota in their last three outings.

Illinois' only loss was to Indiana, 20-0, on opening day. The Illini have been improving with every game and are very much in the running for the Big Ten Title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

It's no secret that Penn State also has bowl aspirations and a win today would help the Lion cause quite a bit.

The Lions hold wins over Missouri, V.M.I., Colgate, Army and Boston University so far this year.

Penn State's hopes this afternoon will depend on their great all-around quarterback Riche Lucas.

Lucas, a contender for All-American honors, has been having a great year.

Going into today's game, he's second in the nation in total offense and 13th in passing.

In five games, Lucas has gained 729 yards in 113 plays, 533 of those yards came through the air. In addition, the Riverboat has one of the top pass completion percentages in the land. He's completed 39 of 71 for a .549 mark.

The Lions will also be counting quite a bit on the rest of their starting backfield composed of Dick Hoak and Jim Kerr at halfbacks and captain Pat Botula at fullback.

Hoak poses as a double threat to the tough Illini defense because of his rushing and pass receiving ability.

He is the second leading ground gainer on the Nittany squad with a 4.1 average. In the pass catching department he's second too, with eight completions for 105 yards.

The Penn State line which has the job of stopping some of the fastest backs in the Midwest, has Lucas' number one target Norm Neff at right end and Henry Opperman at the other terminal. Tom Mulraney and Andy Styn- (Continued on page six)

Two Students Arraigned For Traffic Violations

Two students were arraigned before Justice of the Peace William P. Bell this week for traffic violations.

Thomas L. McQuilkin, sophomore in business administration from Indiana, was found guilty of exceeding 35 miles per hour in a restricted zone and Marshall L. Goldstein, junior in zoology and entomology from Lewistown, was found not guilty of a stop sign violation.

LA Council Nomination

Freshman self-nomination blanks for the Liberal Arts Student Council are available in 138 Sparks.

They will be available until next Wednesday.

Marino to Be MC For Team Reception

Vincent Marino, senior in business administration from Clearfield, will act as master of ceremonies for the football team's welcome home reception tomorrow afternoon at Recreation Hall.

The exact time of the reception will be announced over radio station WMAJ after the Men's Hat Society Association finds out what time the team has departed from Cleveland.

Also featured at the reception will be Frank Gullo, professor of music, and the Men's Glee Club will lead singing. They will be aided by a band organized especially for the reception.

Hatmen in the motorcade will meet at Alpha Zeta at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow and will not start their tour of campus until they receive a phone call from David Williams, head manager of the team, telling them the time the team is expected to return.

The motorcade led by Acacia's model-T-Ford will start at Alpha Zeta and move to Burrowes Road, then to Curtin Road. It will travel along Curtin and down Shortlidge Road to the Nittany and South Halls area, then go through fraternity row, back up to Alpha Zeta, and finally end up at Recreation Hall.

Loud speakers will be set up at Recreation Hall so that Marino, Gullo and the Glee Club and members of the team who wish to speak will be heard more clearly.
