

Mortimer Crowned King At Mardi Brawl in HUB

By Amy Rosenthal

Samuel Mortimer, senior in industrial engineering from Johnsonburg, was crowned Mardi Gras King Saturday afternoon at Mardi Brawl, the jam session sponsored by Chimes, junior women's hat society. He was sponsored by Chi Omega sorority.

Kappa Delta was awarded the trophy for the best open booth of the Mardi Gras and Alpha Zeta Delta was given the trophy for the best closed booth. Trophies were presented by Dorothy Tynan, president of Scrolls, senior women's hat society.

Margaret Hulse, treasurer of Scrolls, reported that Mardi Gras took in a total of $1634.56. A total of $47.50 was contributed in penny votes cast for the king candidates, and $1162.06 was the total of admission and booth tickets sold. The money will be used by Scrolls for awarding two scholarships next fall.

Mortimer was chosen king on the basis of voting by admission tickets to the jam session and by competing in a talent show with the four other king finalists.

Mortimer won the talent show with a clarinet solo of "Lullaby of Birdland." He was accompanied by the Four Demensions Combo.

Two of the other finalists read or recited poems. Kenneth Florence, sponsored by Delta Zeta, read poems by Ogden Nash and Stephen Ott, after a singing introduction by five sponsoring Alpha Epsilon Phi's, recited "The Jabberwock."

Lawrence Byers did a soft shoe cowboy dance aided by six Phi Sigma Sigma can-can girls and Garry Gentzler and four Sigma Delta Tau girls put on a get-rich-quick pantomime entitled "The Old Man and the Seaweed."

The Mardi Gras King was crowned by Jessie Janjigian and the king and runners-up were awarded gift certificates from men's clothing stores and record shops.

Four hundred and fifty people attended the brawl to dance to the music of Don Grebbs and the Four Dimensions. "Effie," Alpha Tau Omega's St. Bernard dog also attended and although she had bought a ticket she was asked to leave four times by a disturbed member of the campus patrol.

BEAT SYRACUSE

Senior FFA Members Will Speak at Meeting

The Penn State Collegiate Chapter of the Future Farmers of America will meet at 7 tonight in 112 Buckhout Laboratory.

The opportunities in extension work and summer employment will be discussed by Charles Ault, David Jayne and Richard Stuby, senior FFA members.

Chem Prof to Speak

Joseph Jordon, associate professor of chemistry, will present a talk tomorrow in New York, N. Y., on "Hydrodynamic Voltammetry." He will speak before the Eastern Analytical Symposium sponsored by Analytical Groups of the American Chemical Society; Society for Applied Spectroscopy and Metropolitan Microchemical Society.

Meserole to Address Belles Lettres Meeting

Harrison T. Meserole, English instructor, will be featured speaker at Belles Lettres Club meeting 7 tonight in Simmons lounge.

He will speak on "Pages From Forgotten Periodical; Courtship and Marriage in Early America."

BEAT SYRACUSE

PENN STATE Laundry and Dry-Cleaners

Helps You Look Your Best

for the Junior Prom

You can get 24-hour service at PENN STATE LAUNDRY AND DRY-CLEANERS through your STUDENT AGENCY or same-day service at the plant at 320 W. BEAVER AVE.

ALL MEMBERS OF CREDIT STAFF

OLD and NEW

7:30 TONIGHT 9 Carnegie

RAY McKINLEY

leading the band and playing in the same tradition with the authentic MILLER arrangements

TICKETS

ON SALE FRIDAY

AT THE HUB DESK

From 9-1 o'clock it's the

GLENN MILLER ORCHESTRA

Semi-formal at Rec Hall for the

"THE BEST DANCE OF THE YEAR"

JUNIOR PROM