'Dark of the Moon' To Open Tomorrow

By ZANDY SLOSSON

Mix a tablespoon of thunder and a pinch of lightening with a cup of "eerie" witch noise; bake in a chilly oven of superstition. The result is the Players' show, "Dark of the Moon," which opens at 8 tomorrow night in Schwab Auditorium.

Board Names Junior Prom Queen Finalists

The five finalists in the Junior Prom Queen contest have been announced by prom chairman James Ettelson.

They are Lani Barlow, arts and letters major from Harrisburg; Jane Wilby, elementary education major from Syracuse, N.Y.; Judy Norton, elementary education major from Merion Station; Joanna Moatz, business education major from Allentown; and Sue Sherman, elementary education major from Syracuse, N.Y.

An informal reception for the judges and the finalists will be held tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Chi Omega suite. The dance will begin at 9 p.m. Friday in Recreation Hall.

Charles Petnick, Ethel Meserve, Blaine Harvey, Bill McMullen and Ken Swanson will act as contest judges. The queen will be chosen on the basis of beauty, poise and personality.

Julius to Appear On TV Program

Student Government Association President Leonard Julius will appear on the nationwide televised program "College News Conference" at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Julius will be a member of a panel which will interview Secretary of the Army Wilbur M. Brucker.

The show appears weekly with participants from major universities around the country.

Blood Donor Forms Offered

Registration slips for donors to the Red Cross Bloodmobile, which will be on campus today and tomorrow, are still available at the Hetzel Union desk.

Two hundred and fifty people registered last week to donate blood. A chart designating the time of donation for each person who has registered is located near the cardroom. Postcards have also been sent to those who have already registered.

Lester Phillips, chairman of the Bloodmobile Drive, said that parents' consent slips will be accepted at the time of donation. These slips pertain only to those unmarried students who are between the ages of 18 and 20. Those donating blood must be 18 years of age or over.

Series to Feature Camera Concerti

Student tickets will be available at 1 p.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk for the Camera Concerti, chamber music orchestra, presentation.

The concert, sixth in the Artists Series, will be held at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium. Featured with the orchestra are Joseph Eger, director and French horn soloist, and Karen Tuttle, violist.

The group is composed of 12 other members. The instruments played by them are the piano, oboe, violin, viola, cello, and bass. The Camera Concerti is unique for its unusual arrangements of wind and string instruments.

Eger is noted for his effort to establish the French horn as an important concert instrument. He founded the Camera Concerti to uphold his belief in the importance and versatility of the French horn in combination with other instruments.

Eger was born in Connecticut and raised in Pittsburgh where he was first recognized for his music talents. He received a scholarship to Curtis Institute for his mastery of the French horn.

Eger has played all over this country and in Europe. His music is often heard in the scores of Hollywood films. Currently he is on the faculty at the Peabody Institute of Music.

Miss Tuttle has had many milestones in her career. She has appeared with the Little Orchestra and the Saldenburg Chamber Orchestra, and has participated in five Casals Music Festivals.

For two seasons she performed frequently with the NBC orchestra, and for 10 years was head of one of the departments at the Curtis Institute. In addition to her appearances with the Camera Concerti this year, she will be featured with orchestras in New York and Philadelphia.
