

AIM to Decide on New Policy 3 Rallies--

The Association of Independent Men Board of Governors decided Wednesday night to vote whether or not to consider a campus-wide matter before the Student Government Association.

Harald Sandstrom, president of AIM, said the board had followed a policy in the past of staying out of matters which did not directly affect independents.

In other business, the board created a committee to look into the costs of publishing a printed monthly independent newspaper.

Sandstrom also announced the appointment of Stafford Friday,

Carl Smith, Roy LeBaron, Barry Rein and John Dively to the AIM-Leonides merger committee. Friday will head the group.

Architect to Speak Tonight in Boucke

John O. Simonds, well-known landscape architect, will speak at 7:15 tonight in 214 Boucke.

Simonds, who designed the Mellon Square Park in Pittsburgh, will lecture on "Lessons in Landscape Architecture from China and Japan" and will emphasize Japanese gardens.

The architect, who heads the Simonds and Simonds Company in Pittsburgh, has traveled widely in the Orient.

(Continued from page two) bers and momentum with every step. Students flowed in incessant waves across campus joining the crowd which numbered 2000 by the time it reached the Lion for the third demonstration within two hours.

WDFM's Starlite Revue program, which will also be broadcast over WMAJ from 8 to 9 p.m. tonight will feature spirit interviews on campus and fake comedy interviews with Orangemen. Campus patrol reported the crowd was orderly.
