

Diem Says:

Grads May Benefit From Parking Rules

By NICKI WOLFORD

Graduate students would get top priority if changes in the parking regulations were made, according to Albert E. Diem, vice president for business administration.

Both the Student Government Association and the Graduate Student Association are protesting the present parking regulations which restrict student parking in lots enclosed by Curtin, Burrows and Shortlidge Rds.

"If we were going to change any of the parking rules for students, I think we would have to consider graduate students before undergraduates," Diem said.

One of the reasons graduate students would be considered first is because they must come to the campus at all hours of the day and night to check on research projects, Diem said.

In discussing SGA's protest of the parking regulations, Diem said, "we try to put ourselves in the students' shoes."

Diem said members of the faculty and administration, when working in their offices at night, need places to park. If the lots were opened to the 3,453 students who have paid permits, University personnel would not have places to park, he said.

In the parking areas in question there is only room for 827 cars or about 25 per cent of the student cars registered. If half of those students were to bring their cars to campus, congestion in the parking lots would be the result, he said.

Visitors who come to the campus must have reasonable access to parking facilities, he said.

In looking at the parking situation, Diem said, the whole year—not just one night in which there are few cars on campus—must be considered.

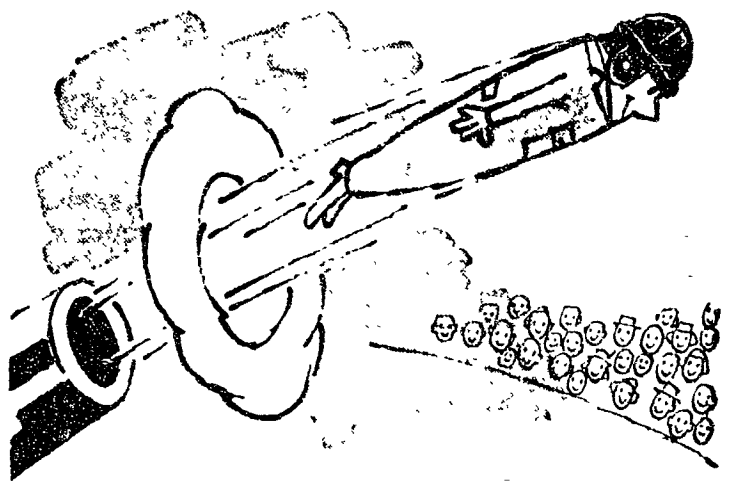

Krogman Lecture Moved to Schwab

The second lecture of the University Lecture Series, scheduled for 8 p.m. next Sunday, will be held in Schwab Auditorium instead of Recreation Hall as originally planned.

The lecture, "The Origin and Physical Development of Man," will be given by Wilton Krogman, professor of physical anthropology at the Graduate School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania.

Distribution of student tickets will begin at 1 p.m. Thursday and the sale of tickets to non-students is scheduled for 9 a.m. the following day.

Phi Beta Kappa to Buy Madrigals for Library

Lambda Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa has voted to buy as a gift for the Pattee Library three sets of books on English madrigals.

These sets, "The English Madrigal School" and two series of "The English School of Lutenist Song Writers," comprising sixty-eight volumes, were edited by Edmund Horace Fellowes, and were published during the years 1913-32.

Enrollment Rises--

The next article in this series will deal with the College of Education which has shown an increase of over 900 students in the past five years.

Pep Rally--

The parading and cheering did not end at the rally. When it was over students paraded to the Nittany Lion shrine and continued to cheer. The Blue Band provided entertainment for the noisemaking crowd.
