

—Collegian Photo by Rich Bower
START OF AN INTRACAMPUS SUBWAY???—no, construction is the beginning of a steam tunnel for women's residence halls being built near Wagner Building. The new Beaver Field is in the background.

Instructor Explains Pitfalls of Education

By AMY ROSENTHAL

Three pitfalls faced by the educated person are exhibitionism, scientism, and the tendency to make sweeping generalizations, Walter Ralls, instructor in history, said Wednesday night.

Ralls, speaking to Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, said when educated people take themselves too seriously they become caught in one of these pitfalls.

He termed exhibitionism the showing off of knowledge. This, he said, has led to the new educational literature which describes learning as "a challenge." Because of exhibitionism, third grade arithmetic becomes described as living predicaments and biology is renamed living museums. Beginning teachers are told they must prepare themselves for the challenge of the parents, a new name for the PTA meeting.

Ralls also described as exhibitionism, the taking up of fads such as Zen Buddhism and Existentialism to show off intelligence.

He said that the professional and business world is being caught in scientism, they want to prove themselves scientific and so use charts, jargon and numbered lists of rules.

As an example of scientism he cited the educators who use jargon, terming discipline "high rimness correction." Rall also mentioned as another example the brochure put out by the Pentagon listing 10 rules on how to walk up its ramps to avoid tripping.

The third pitfall of sweeping generalization he described as the tendency of using basic knowledge to solve complicated problems. He used as an example the curbstone psychologists whose diagnosis of an alcoholic is "He's got suppressed homosexual tendencies."

Ralls warned his audience about using the knowledge gained in basic courses to solving complicated problems.

"There are two characteristics that distinguish humans from animals," Ralls said. "One is their spirit of unpossessive love and the other is their struggle upward on the road of the mind."

Symposium Participant

Dr. Clarence R. Carpenter, director of the Division of Academic Research and Services, will participate today and tomorrow in a symposium at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford, Calif.

CAMPUS ROOM

You may now have the most fashionable footwear at budget prices without sacrificing quality.

See our collection of low-priced shoes just right for any campus occasion. Flats $6.99-$8.99, high or low heels $8.99-$10.99

Conveniently located across from Atherton Hall

Season's First Snow Storm Expected to Arrive Today

The first snowfall of the season should hit this area today bringing cold weather and from two to three inches of snow.

The snow was expected to begin before dawn and continue most of the morning. It may change to rain this afternoon, but will probably turn back to snow tonight as much colder weather arrives on brisk northwesterly winds.

The storm will probably continue tomorrow in the form of intermittent snow flurries.

A storm system that is moving on an east northeasterly path through the Ohio Valley is the cause of the inclement weather. It is producing snow over a wide segment of the nation stretching from the Rockies to the Appalachians.

Meanwhile a huge mass of very cold arctic air covers the northwestern part of the country. This air, with temperatures as cold as 15 below zero in its core, should move into this region tomorrow night and on Saturday.

The air will be modified by the time it arrives in this area, but, nevertheless, temperatures will fall below 20 degrees by Sunday morning.

Tonight will be cloudy and windy with the rain changing back to snow. It will become much colder tonight with an overnight low of 22 degrees.

Occasional snow flurries, strong winds and much colder weather are expected tomorrow with temperatures falling to reach the freezing mark all day. The high will be a mighty cold 30 degrees.

Sunday will be partly cloudy and continued quite cold.

Ticket Sale Begins For Folk Concert

Tickets are now on sale for the concert of Pete Seeger, an American folk singer.

The concert, sponsored by the University Christian Association, will be held at 8 p.m. next Friday in Schwab Auditorium.

Student tickets at $1 and non-student tickets at $1.50 are on sale at the Hetzel Union desk, the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel and the Music Room.

For CLASSIFIEDS Call UN 5-2531

DORMS —
—FRATERNITIES

Save 25% on orders of ten or more hoagies

delivered to you AD 8-8381
 (delivery 9 to midnight)

MORRELL'S
 112 S. Frazier St.

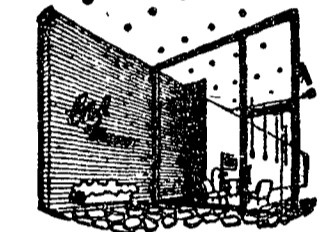

Avoid the last-minute rush

Our Hallmark Cards Are On Display Now

Shop now for all your Christmas needs at your Hallmark headquarters. Choose from our wide selection of Hallmark Christmas cards in boxes, albums, or in individual displays.

The enchanting designs of Hallmark gift wraps add excitement to every gift, while Hall Sheen ribbon and coordinated Hallmark gift enclosures supply "the added touch that means so much."

McLanahan's 134 S. ALLEN STREET and the new
McLanahan's Self-Service 414 E. COLLEGE AVENUE

Through the Looking Glass with Gabbi

I'm sitting here with a bit of a nostalgic lump in my throat because this coming Saturday will be the last game to be played on Beaver Field. In honor of the event, I've communicated with the Muses and come up with a little ditty for tomorrow. "Let's be boss, in the game with Holy Cross" has such a variety of new fall purses. Especially stylish are the bags of coarse-weave linen trimmed in mahogany leather. For dressy occasions, there are fur purses in the autumn shades or satins bags in neutral, wear - with - everything beige.

ONLY ETHEL

ON THE PETER PAUPER GIFT RACK

you will find, for only $1.00, such interesting books as The World's Best Limericks, Sayings of Mohammed, and (if you're tired of dorm food), one entitled Simple French Cookery.

COMPLETELY IMPRACTICAL

and designed to catch your lighter moods is "Hector." He is a flexible doll coming in shades of pink, green, blue, and yellow with white fuzzy hair and a pink bulbous-nose. Wrap "Hector" around your desk lamp or sit him on your book shelf.

IF YOU'RE STUMPED

on a gift selection, why not surprise your friend with a Hummel figurine. Ethel has a lovely selection of Hummel children in all sizes.

TIRED OF BRIDGE

Russian roulette, and table tennis? For a new indoor sport, try "Spill and Spell." The game consists of dice with letters rather than numbers which, when rolled, can be used to spell a variety of word.

See your soon?
 Gabbi

Ethel Meserve

For Football Weekends—
 You need the beautiful All-American look in casuals . . .

You'll find furry sweaters, tapered slacks and burmudas, kilts and bright leotards with comfort, warmth and beauty in lively colors and every style, at . . .

Clearfield's

MIL BALL

December 4