

Lucas-Toncic Duel Expected

Hoak, Neff Return To First Unit

 the air and 316 on the ground.
 Toncic isn't as good a runner, but he's an accomplished passer and has gained 634 yards in the air, good for eight touchdowns. Three of those touchdowns came in the last quarter of the UCLA game and gave the Panthers the win.

Also featured in the Pitt lineup are All-American end Mike Ditka and fullback Jim Cunningham, the bruising fullback who leads the team in rushing despite having missed some early season games because of injuries.

Ditka played his greatest game in a Pitt uniform last weekend against Notre Dame. He was a standout on defense against The Fighting Irish and he's just waiting for a chance to get at Lucas and the Nittany Lions.

"Cunningham," says Pitt coach Johnny Michlosen, is the person most responsible for upsurge in the last two games. We're a new team with him in there."

The rest of Pitt's starting lineup will be made of the "C" boys, Fred Cox and Bob Clemens at halfback, Bill Lindner and Ken Montanari at tackles, Regis Coustalic and Larry Vignalli at guards and Serafino Fazio at center. The other end will be Ron Delfino.

Penn State coach Rip Engle has made two changes in his starting lineup for tomorrow's game.

Norm Neff moves up from the second unit to take over at right end, and Dick Hoak moves back into his left halfback position in place of sophomore star Roger Kochman, who isn't expected to see action because of a sprained knee.

Lucas will be the quarterback and captain Pat Botula will be the fullback. Hoak is at left half and Jimmy Kerr is on the other side.

The line has Neff and John Bozick at ends, Andy Stynchula and Charley Janerette at tackles, Bud Kohlhaas and Frank Korbini at guards and Jay Huffman at center.

Engle will be seeking his sixth win against the arch rival Panthers today. He has lost three times and tied once.

Sugar Classic May Feature LSU, Ole' Miss

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Sugar Bowl may see a rematch of the epic football struggle between Louisiana State and Mississippi on New Year's Day. And nothing could be sweeter for the Rebels.

LSU and Mississippi met in Baton Rouge Oct. 31 in one of the season's top games. LSU then was ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll and Mississippi third.

All-America halfback Billy Cannon went 89 yards on an incredible punt return in the last 10 minutes and LSU defenses stopped a Rebel drive on the 1 in the last few seconds for a 7-3 victory.

Mississippi is rated No. 2 in this week's AP rankings while LSU is third.

Top Bowl Invitations On Line In Grid Action Across Nation

By JACK CLARY
 Associated Press Sports Writer

There are six major conference titles and 13 top bowl invitations on the line today as the 1959 college football season begins its slowing process — schedule-wise only. The intensity of the conference and bowl races is reflected in the triple tie for first place in the Big Ten between Wisconsin, Northwestern and Michigan State, one of whom will wind up in the Rose Bowl. All have 4-2 conference marks. The host team in the granddaddy of the bowls could be decided if Washington beats Washington State.

But there are only 4 of 17 teams involved in conference titles, with 11 considered as possible contestants in the Sugar, Cotton, Orange, Gator, Liberty and Blue Bonnet bowls.

Top-ranked Syracuse, No. 1 for the second straight week in the Associated Press poll, and Arkansas are the only ones assured of a bowl. The Orange accepted the visitor's spot in the Cotton Bowl last week.

Arkansas has accepted a spot in the Gator Bowl, but can withdraw if it wins the Southwest Conference title outright and gets the host invitation to the Cotton Bowl.

Syracuse (8-0) plays tricky Boston University (4-4) Saturday, then has a week off until it ends the regular season at UCLA Dec. 5.

Wisconsin, No. 9, supposedly has an easier task than Northwestern, No. 8. The Badgers face lowly Minnesota (2-6) while the Wildcats must battle a tough Illinois (4-3-1) team that upset Wisconsin last week. Michigan State ended its Big Ten season last Saturday. A loss by both Wisconsin and Northwestern would give Michigan State the title and Rose Bowl trip.

Washington's Huskies, second to unbeaten Southern California in the Far West Five, are being dogged by independent Oregon. Both have 8-1 over-all records. Southern Cal is under suspension by the NCAA and can't go to the Rose Bowl. It's 8-0 record is matched only by Syracuse, and victory No. 9, by the fourth-ranked Trojans may come Saturday against cross-town rival UCLA.

A Washington loss to Washington State and a win by Oregon over Oregon State would throw the Rose Bowl spot to a vote of the old Pacific Coast Conference members, five of whom comprise the Far West Five.

Southwest Conference leader Arkansas (5-1) meets nonconference Texas Tech. Third-place Texas Christian, No. 10, faces Rice and a victory ties it with runner-up Texas (4-1).

The Longhorns, No. 5, could get the Cotton Bowl's host spot if they beat Texas A&M on Thanksgiving. They would be SWC co-champion with Arkansas, but have been away longer from the bowl.

All three teams are considered prime bowl possibilities elsewhere if they continue to win.

Georgia, No. 6, won the Southeastern Conference title last week and does not play until a week from Saturday when it meets Georgia Tech. But other SEC members are battling for bowl spots.

Third-ranked Louisiana State (8-1) faces Tulane and may wind up in the Sugar or Blue Bonnet Bowl. Second-ranked Mississippi is idle but is also a candidate for the same bowls while unranked Tennessee and Alabama, meeting Kentucky and Memphis State, respectively, hope to improve their bowl status.

Elsewhere, in the conferences the Big Eight's fight for second place is tied right to the Orange Bowl's host spot Oklahoma, the leader, can't return to defend its crown, but could crush Iowa State's hopes with a victory over the Cyclones. Kansas and Missouri, also tied with Iowa State for second, play each other.
