'Three C's' Ruin Lions As 46,109 Watch Finale

By SANDY PADWE
Sports Editor

Fred Cox, Bob Clemens, and Jim Cunningham, better known as the "three C's" are the latest rage in Pittsburgh. And these guys don't even sing, dance, or play the electric guitar, they just play a mean game of football. If you don't believe it, just ask Rip Engle or any of his Penn State football players.

Saturday, the "three C's" ran roughshod over the fifth ranked Nittany Lions and handed them a 22-7 shellacking in the final regular season game for both squads.

Action On Bid Held Off Again

Action on Penn State's Liberty Bowl invitation was held off yesterday because some officials involved in accepting the bid had not yet been contacted.

James H. Coogan, director of Public Information, said President Eric A. Walker postponed action on the bid until Walker spoke to all those involved in making the decision. According to Coogan, any matter such as a bowl bid, must first go through the Athletic Advisory Board, the University Senate Committee on Athletics and the Board of Trustees.

Coogan said that a decision might be reached later today or maybe tomorrow. But he emphasized that no announcement would be made until the proper channels were cleared.

It is also believed that the University might still be waiting until the Liberty Bowl announces its visiting team.

In Philadelphia, George Kerrigan, the co-promoter of the Liberty Bowl, said that despite Penn State's 22-7 loss to Pittsburgh Saturday, the Lions still were the "number one team" for the Dec. 19 game.

However, the visiting team berth resembled a jigsaw puzzle and the Liberty Bowl promoters were waiting for the pieces to fall in place.

Kerrigan said that the top four teams in line for the visiting team bid now are Georgia, Georgia Tech, Southern Methodist, and Clemson.

Kerrigan said the decision on the visiting team berth depends on the outcome of the Georgia-Georgia Tech, and the SMU-TCU games this week.

Sunny Sky, Warm Weather Expected To Provide Good Travel Conditions

By JOEL MYERS

Sunny skies and warm temperatures are expected to provide excellent traveling conditions throughout Pennsylvania today as thousands of University students leave for the Thanksgiving Vacation.

A few light showers may occur in northern and western sections of the Commonwealth tonight and in the eastern two-thirds of the state tomorrow, but they should not have much effect on homebound students.

Bright sunshine should boost afternoon temperatures above the 50 degrees mark in all sections of the state today.

Readings will range from the 50's in the extreme northeast corner to the low or middle 60's in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh areas. Other sections should be in the middle or upper 50's.

Slightly cooler weather is anticipated for tomorrow since clouds will reduce the amount of sunshine.

The forecast for the State College area is for mostly clear skies and warm temperatures today with a high of 57 degrees. Tonight should be mostly cloudy with a few light showers likely.

Over the last four Thanksgiving vacations, three students have been killed and nine injured. All were involved in auto accidents, while either going home or returning to the University.

DRIVE SAFELY!

The low will be about 40 degrees. Mostly cloudy and slightly cooler weather is expected tomorrow.

Thanksgiving day promises to be one of the quietest days on campus all year. Most students will be enjoying a turkey dinner at home and all University offices, the Hetzel Union Building and Pattee Library will be closed.

Residence halls will close for the Thanksgiving Vacation at noon on Wednesday and re-open at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The last meal in the residence halls will be dinner tomorrow and the first meal after the vacation will be breakfast next Monday. The Lions Den will close at

Two Students In Accidents

James Vitale, junior in counseling from Lancaster, was involved in a four car accident at 3 p.m. yesterday five miles west of Monroeville on his way back from Pittsburgh.

An auto driven by Thomas Haje, Monroeville, stopped suddenly while driving east on Rt. 22. Vitale stopped in time to avoid a collision but an auto driven by Herman Alexander, Montoursville, plowed into his car, forcing him into the rear of Haje's car.

An auto driven by William Schiffmacher, Forest Hills, Pa., crashed into Alexander's auto forcing him forward into Vitale. The front and rear of Vitale's car was demolished. No one was injured.

The accident tied up traffic on Rt. 22, which is a four lane highway, for approximately an hour.

In another accident early Saturday, Bruce Denning, a University student, ran through the Centre Furnace barricade on Benner Pike at approximately 2:30 a.m.

Denning was admitted to the University Hospital with a back injury.

Hospital officials refused last night to give any information concerning Denning's condition.

WDFM to Present Opera by Weisgall

A one-act opera, "The Tenor" by Hugo Weisgall, distinguished visiting professor of music, will be presented over WDFM at 8 tonight.

Albert G. Tsugawa, instructor of philosophy, will interview Weisgall and discuss the opera, which is based on "Der Kammersanger," a play written by Frank Wedekind.

The opera was premiered in 1952 by the Peabody Opera Company and was conducted by Weisgall. WDFM will play the Westminster recording, conducted by Herbert Grossman.

Hot Paraffin Causes Fire In Infirmary

A smoky fire in the physical therapy room of the Rite-nour Health Center caused an estimated $30,000 worth of damage early Saturday morning.

The fire was caused by a faulty thermostat control on a paraffin wax bath, according to Alpha fireman Hal Dillenback. A pan 1-foot deep, holding about five gallons of melted paraffin, overheated and spattered wax on the curtains, setting them on fire.

According to Dr. Herbert Glenn, University physician, smoke completely ruined valuable machines in the room.

The fire was discovered at 1:14 a.m. by James Neidhardt, freshman in engineering from Towanda, who was walking toward Nittany residence halls.

Alpha firemen answered the alarm soon after Neidhardt reported the fire to a night nurse on duty in the health center.

The siren alarm system stuck and blew continuously for 15 minutes, rousing University and State College residents out of bed.

The fire, which was confined to the physical therapy room, was extinguished with water fog. Although there was extensive (Continued on page three)

No Budget Statement Made by Walker

By NICKI WOLFORD

President Eric A. Walker will make no statement concerning the low $34.2 million state appropriation because there is "lots of work to be done to decide what to do," a University spokesman said yesterday.

The appropriation bill was signed into law by Gov. David L. Lawrence Saturday.

The President "hasn't reached any formal conclusions on what must be done or how we'll live with it, but we must live with it," James H. Coogan, director of public information, said.

Anything the President could say has already been said for him and he cannot, at this time, predict the effect of the appropriation on the University, was the way Coogan described the President's attitude.

The Council of Deans has been working on budgetary matters such as salary adjustments within the nine colleges for presentation to Walker, according to Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs and chairman of the council.

The final approval of the budget ended four months of operation on a "zero budget" which necessitated using funds from fees, board and room rent to keep going.

Since the University fiscal year ended on June 30, no salary adjustments have been made and no projects were begun while officials waited for the appropriation to move, on a twisted path, through the State Legislature.

This year's budget history is unique both because of the time it took to become law and because President Walker made his request for the University public on January 26, the first time a University president has ever made a request public right from the start.
