

Eight Weather Flags Fly From Top of MI Building

By JOEL MYERS

Beginning today, students will be able to find out what the weather is going to be by merely casting a glance at the roof of the Mineral Industries Building.

One of eight various weather flags will fly from the anemometer pole atop the University Weather Station. The appropriate flag for each day will be selected according to the official forecast for this area as issued by the Harrisburg Weather Bureau. It will be hoisted at about 7:30 each morning during the week and at 11 a. m. on the weekends.

The idea to raise the weather flags was presented at the last meeting of the Penn State branch of the American Meteorological Society. Several members of the society volunteered their services to take turns hoisting the flags.

Yesterday several members of the junior class in meteorology, led by James Rahn, vice president of the society, lowered the pole that supports the anemometer and attached a new rope and pulley that will serve to hold up the flags.

The various designations for the different kinds of weather are:

- White . . . fair weather
- Red . . . warm
- Blue . . . cold
- Red and White checkered design . . . windy
- Red, White and Blue . . . cloudy
- Blue and White checkered design . . . precipitation
- Blue square surrounded by White . . . showers

The eighth flag has a question mark imposed on a white background. Robert Anderson, president of the society, said that this question mark flag may be the most commonly used one.

CE Prof Presents Paper

Samuel Shults, professor of civil engineering, presented a paper, "Talweg Stability in Natural Channels," before the Section of Geomorphology of the Geological Society of America at its annual convention in Pittsburgh.

Instead, he urged that the country teach its youth to appreciate "the blessings of liberty, the rights of freedom of speech and conscience upon which the republic was founded."

The education council's opposition in the form of a resolution said the oath is unfair because it places the signer in possible jeopardy because of his private beliefs, not his overt actions.

The resolution also said the oath was superfluous and ineffective as a means of combatting disloyalty and subversion.

Grad Student Fined $5 For Parking Violation

Mordecai Treblow, graduate in chemistry from Philadelphia, was fined $5 by Traffic Court Monday for parking in area 30.

It was the student's second violation for parking behind Osmond Laboratory.

Several members of the court have sent an appeal to Dean of Men Frank J. Simes, requesting that additional lots, including 30, be opened for night parking, but no action has been taken on the matter.

Top County Enrolls 1261

Allegheny County, with 1261 students, leads all other Pennsylvania counties in the number of students on campus.

Centre County is second with 777 students and Philadelphia County third with 755.

Every county of the state is represented along with 42 other states and the District of Columbia. Students from 32 foreign countries are also enrolled. Enrollees from other states and countries number 2430.

Phone Increase Not Vital--

ing to use the pay telephones. These conditions showed that there is no need for an increase in telephones in the residence halls at the present time, Diehl said.

Lines connecting the University with the town appear to be adequate, also, he said. About 76,000 calls come into the University each week from local telephones and through long distance lines, he said.

The lines are not tied up very often, Diehl said, but when they are they become free in about five minutes.

AMERICAN LITERATURE: ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Today, as a service to students of American literature, this column presents digests of two classic American novels:

THE SCARLET LETTER

by Nathaniel "Swift" Hawthorne

This is a heart-rending story of a humble New England lass named Hester Prynne who is so poor that she does not have what to eat nor a roof to cover her head. But she is a brave, brawny girl and she never complains, and by and by her patience is rewarded: in the summer of 1859 she wins a football scholarship to Alabama.

Hard-working Hester soon wins her letter and everyone says she is a shoo-in for All-Conference honors, but along comes the War Between the States and football, alas, is dropped for the duration.

Everyone says she's a shoo-in for All-conference honors

Poor Hester goes back to New England. It is a bitter cold winter and poor Hester, alas, does not have any warm clothing except for her football sweater from Alabama, but that, alas, has a big scarlet "A" on the front of it and she can hardly wear such a thing in New England where Union sentiment runs so high.

Poor Hester, alas, freezes to death.

LITTLE WOMEN

by Louisa May "Bubbles" Alcott

The Marches are a very happy family—and for no discernible reason. They are poor as snakes; they work from cockerow to evensong; their dear old father Philip is away with the Union armies; and they can't do a thing with their hair.

Still, nothing can dampen the spirits of madcap Meg, jocular Jo, buoyant Beth, animated Amy, and crazy old Marmee, as the merry March girls laughingly call their lovable mother.

Well sir, one Christmas the March girls get an invitation to a ball. They are dying to go because they never have any fun at all except maybe a few chuckles during the hog-rendering season. But Beth reminds her sisters that they can hardly go traipsing off to a ball and leave poor Marmee all alone at Christmas time. The sisters swear a lot, but they finally agree with Beth.

Marmee, however, will not hear of it. "Land's sakes, little women!" she cries. "You must go to the ball and have some fun. There will be fruit punch and Toll House cookies and Early American sandwiches. Best of all, there will be morris dancing. Oh, how your father and I used to love that!"

"I never knew father could dance," cries Meg.

"Oh yeah?" cries Marmee. "You should have seen Philip morris."

"Was Philip a good morriser?" cries Jo.

"The best!" cries Marmee. "Philip could morris in soft pack or flip-top box and was full of fine, fresh, natural mildness!"

The girls are cheered to hear this and go to the ball. Marmee stays home alone, but soon gets a wonderful surprise: Philip comes back from the war!

When the girls return from the ball, they find Marmee and Philip morrissing, and they cry "Huzzah!" and throw their poke bonnets in the air, where they are to this day.

And speaking of literature, in our book the best selection of cigarettes on the market today comes from Philip Morris Inc.—Marlboro filters; new Alpines, high filtration and light menthol—and, of course, mild, unfiltered Philip Morris.
