

Eisenhower Hints Governmental Move On Steel Question

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower hinted yesterday the government may be considering an extraordinary move to settle the prolonged steel dispute. Unless that is, an early voluntary agreement is reached.

Eisenhower said at his news conference he has brought

ChemPhys Will Take 'Cuts' Poll

By JOEL MYERS

A proposed plan that would allow unlimited cuts for all students having at least a 3.5 average will be presented to the University Senate as soon as the results of a College of Chemistry-Physics faculty poll on the matter is completed.

The Chemistry-Physics student council in its regular bi-monthly meeting, which was held last night, decided to send questionnaires to all faculty members of the college in order to determine their opinion on the proposed plan. The council also agreed to question other Universities and Colleges on their success with similar plans.

Irving Klein, council president, pointed out the two main goals of the proposal as being:

• To develop mature attitudes in students.

• To benefit students who will be on their own more and more due to the greater use of televised courses as Penn State's enrollment increases.

The questions that the professors will be asked are divided into three main categories. The first one asks if the individual professor would be in favor of exempting students from compulsory attendance. It also requests that the professor qualify what average he believes denotes a superior student.

The second question asks if the plan would be feasible for that particular professor's course.

The professor's opinion toward extending this plan to exclude the superior students from taking quizzes is the contents of the third question.

In other business, the council decided to begin binding the vast supply of bluebooks that they have on hand, in order to make them available for student use. Beginning the end of next week students will be able to use the bluebook file, which will be kept in the Chemistry-Physics library.

every bit of official and personal influence to bear on both sides to reach an agreement on their own, and will renew that appeal in his nationwide address tonight.

But if the point comes that the government has to act to end the dispute, he said, it will be a "sad day for the United States."

Mediators, meanwhile, toiled at separate sessions with industry and union negotiators without much hope that an agreement can be reached before the present 80-day injunction expires on Jan. 26.

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers Union president, charged in an address to a labor union convention here Wednesday morning that the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. has ordered a worker speed-up and has lowered quality standards to recoup strike losses.

McDonald called for an investigation on whether the purported J&L orders to foremen violate "the status quo" terms of the injunction.

Senior Coeds Offered Grant

Information and application forms for the Electrical Women's Round Table Julia Kien Fellowship are now available for senior women in 101 Home Economics.

The fellowship, given by the Electrical Living Women's Round Table, Inc., worth $1000, will be awarded to a senior woman who is going to do advanced study in any phase of electrical living.

Electrical living careers include advertising, business, electrical engineering, electrical utilities, housing and home furnishings, magazine and newspaper work, manufacturing of electrical household equipment, radio, teaching and television.

The recipient of the fellowship will be able to do advanced study in any accredited college or university of her choice which has been approved by the EWRT fellowship committee.

The recipient will be selected on the basis of her scholastic accomplishments, personal qualities, future promise and financial need.

Bowl Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the Liberty Bowl game, priced at $5.65, will go on sale at 8 a.m. today at the ticket office in Recreation Hall.

SGA Will Install 24 New Members

By CAROL BLAKESLEE

The SGA Assembly's "other half" will be installed tonight when the assembly meets for the first time with full constitutional membership.

Twenty-four students elected this fall will join 18 who began their terms as assemblymen last May when the Student Government Association came into being. These assemblymen sat on an interim body which served as the legislative arm of the SGA until the whole assembly was elected. When the full assembly meets at 7 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union Building, it must approve all actions taken by the interim body in its three months of operation. This is in accordance with the SGA constitution.

SGA vice president Larry Byers, who is also assembly chairman, said last night that unless there is a great deal of debate on the issues, the assembly will probably approve all of the interim body's actions tonight.

Among these actions are the approval of the 1959 Student Encampment workshop reports, the Student Check Cashing Agency and recommended changes in the traffic code.

Assembly will also tackle the controversial question of compulsory ROTC which was revived at the Nov. 12 meeting.

Walt Darran (C.-Jr.) at that time asked that the assembly take action on a report made last year by All-University Cabinet which recommended establishing a one-year ROTC program.

Copies of the recommendations in the report were distributed to the assembly for study before debate tonight.

New assemblymen who will take office tonight are: Robert Carson (U) and Duane Alexander (C), presidents of the freshman and sophomore classes, respectively; Anna Cimmons (U), Richard Goodman (U), Barbara Isaacson (U), William Rothman (U), Harold Scott (U), Stephen Lenhardt (C), Patricia McGee (C), and Jacquelyn Trone (C), freshman representatives.

Joan Cavanagh (U), Nancy Williams (U), Barbara Hackman (C), Rebecca Hadden (C), James Kridel (C), Richard Pigossi (C) and Karl Gershenow (C), sophomore representatives.

Constance Adler (U), Marilee Grabill (U), Donald Curry (C), Neil White (C) and Ronald Watzman (U), junior representatives.

Steven Ott (U) and Carole Cin (C), senior representatives.

Crash Victim Will Get Aid

Financial aid for Davoud Eshaghoff, junior in general agriculture for Tehran, Iran, who was critically injured in an auto crash last week, has been promised by both the Iranian Consulate and the Hillel Foundation.

All contributions should be sent to the Hillel Foundation, instead of to Susan Roschwald, sophomore in arts and letters from State College, as announced in yesterday's Collegian.

Eshaghoff is in an Easton hospital where he was taken after his car overturned on the Lehigh Valley Thruway. According to Miss Roschwald, who yesterday appealed for donations for Eshaghoff, the Iranian student has no relatives in this country besides a 16 year-old brother and has no way of meeting his hospital expenses.

Rain, Cool Air Expected Today

Considerable cloudiness and cool weather is expected today, but much warmer temperatures are due tomorrow.

A few sprinkles of light rain may fall today from mostly cloudy skies. The high temperature should be about 47 degrees.

Partly cloudy and rather mild weather is forecast for tonight with a low of 38 degrees expected.

A major warming trend will begin tomorrow as afternoon temperatures soar to the 55 degree mark.

Student's Car Collides With Empty School Bus

Barry Dovidas, sophomore in electrical engineering from Wilkes-Barre, was involved in an accident at 8:30 a.m. yesterday when the car he was driving collided with an empty school bus on Spring Creek Rd.

The two vehicles were heading in opposite directions when Dovidas' auto skidded to the left side of the road.

Damages amounted to $150. There were no injuries.

Upperclass Hours Given By WSGA

By ELAINE MIELE

Second semester freshmen women will receive upperclass women's hours starting tomorrow.

Sandra Slisk, acting judicial chairman, announced the change in permission at the WSGA Senate meeting last night.

Upperclass women may take 2 a.m. permissions tomorrow and Saturday night this weekend. Freshman women may take two 1 a.m. permissions.

A large number of women were given penalties for not signing out for Thanksgiving vacation, Miss Slisk said. She said that women who forget to sign out should call their house-mother or the dean of women's office during the vacation.

If women do not call they will receive a lenient weekend campus when they return to school, she said.

Jessie Janjigian, WSGA president, asked the Senate for its feeling on the possible half-holiday for the Liberty Bowl game. A large majority of the members agreed that the holiday should be granted.

The general feeling was that University officials should not require students to make up the time lost by the holiday on the day before final examinations.

In other business, Sue Huston, standards chairman, reported that girls will be appointed as monitors in the residence halls to enforce quiet hours.

A different girl will be appointed on each hall every week, she said.

Senate May Consider Half-Holiday

The University Senate will meet at 4:15 p.m. today but whether or not it will consider the bowl half-holiday has not been determined.

Dr. Benjamin A. Whisler, chairman of the Committee on Calendar and Class Schedule, said the holiday, proposed by the Student Government Association, would be acted upon at the committee's meeting scheduled for 3 p.m. today.

If the committee approves the half-holiday, it would then have to have the entire Senate body's approval before it is added to today's agenda.

President Eric A. Walker's attitude toward the holiday is that it would be feasible if the Saturday morning classes missed Dec. 19 were to be made up on Jan. 20, the free day allowed for final exam preparation, SGA President Leonard Julius said.

The recommendation to be considered by the Calendar and Class Schedule Committee this afternoon includes this stipulation, he said.

In other business, the Senate is expected to act on an amendment to the by-laws which would increase the number of the Committee on Athletics from four to five members.

The amendment was proposed at the last Senate meeting on Dec. 4 by the Committee on Committees and must be passed by a two-thirds majority of Senate members for adoption.

In presenting the amendment, the committee report justified the increase by pointing out that it would give the Senate equal representation with the alumni on the Athletic Advisory Board.

The Committee on Athletics represents the faculty on the advisory board.

The Senate is also expected to act on a report of the Senate Committee on Rules which asks a constitutional amendment providing Senate membership for the directors of the commonwealth campuses.
