

Alumni Group Opposes Walker's Stand on Oath

A University Alumni group disagreed yesterday with the stand taken by President Eric A. Walker on the loyalty oath controversy.

Walker, while not objecting to the oath of allegiance, wrote a letter to Sen. Hugh Scott, (R-Pa.) objecting to the disclaimer affidavit requiring students to file a statement saying they were not members of and did not support subversive organizations.

The affidavit is required of students receiving loans under the National Defense Education Act. "The field of formal education has not been immune to disastrous subversive activities." The Pennsylvania State University Alumni Club of Greater Harrisburg said Wednesday.

Also writing to Scott, Blair G. Husted, president of the club, said:

"Disloyalty is not confined to any particular field of endeavor and the misused, misunderstood and confusing cloak of academic freedom has not been a proud contribution to our heritage."

However, Walker had pointed out that the thousands receiving government aid in the form of farm subsidies and relief were not required to sign any affidavit.

The disclaimer affidavit discriminated against needy students, Walker said.

The Alumni Club is the second group to object to Walker's stand this week. District 23 of the American Legion passed a resolution to retain the disclaimer affidavit.

Both houses received plaques for prizes.

Small French Figurines Depict Nativity Scenes at the Library

In Provence in Southern France, families celebrate Christmas by building small nativity scenes in their homes.

They use small clay figurines such as those on display in the Pattee Library, near the entrance to the Periodicals room.

The figurines, called "santons," are from the collection of nativity scenes of Dr. Hugh H. Chapman Jr., associate professor of Romance languages.

Besides the Holy family, the conventional ox and ass and the traditional kings and shepherds, some picturesque local types are introduced into the scenes.

The fishwife, the chimney-sweep, the scissors-grinder, the gypsy dancer, the blind beggar, the tipsy farm-hand, the highwayman and many others are set along the road to Bethlehem.

Santons from Provence are generally made in three sizes. Chapman has arranged for display some of the smallest, said to be of "flea size," and two collections of medium-sized figurines.
