approach and mount, (2) the maneuvers, that take up most of the exercise, and, (3) the dismount. Each gymnastics event is different from the others and, thus there are many exercises which can be performed.

According to Penn State coach Gene Wettstone, there are several basic keys to getting a high score on a piece of apparatus. The performer must have style, rhythm, form, poise, variety, difficulty and must successfully complete his exercise.

The gymnast must also know his limitations and stress the maneuvers in which he looks Coach Wettstone said that sophomore sensation Greg Weiss' main strong point is the steadiness he shows on all events. So when Weiss is planning a routine, he picks maneuvers which emphasize poise, form and style. Because of this, he has great ability to complete his entire exercise.

Lee Cunningham has entirely different problems. Wetistone said he combines elegance with difficulty. On the side horse, he stresses style and difficulty along with variety. Also he usu-ally completes his routines. Therefore, he will pick difficult maneuvers and one which can be executed with a lot of style.

Jay Werner's main feature is his strength on the various events. However, on the flying rings, besides displaying strength, he is also a spectacular performer. He chooses routines which stress these.

These are the silver wings of a U. S. Air Force Navigator. As a flying officer on the Aerospace team, he has chosen a career of leadership, a career that has meaning, rewards and executive opportunity.

The Aviation Cadet Program is the gateway to this career. To qualify for this rigorous and professional training, a high school diploma is required; however, two or more years of college are highly desirable. Upon completion of the program the Air Force encourages the new officer to earn his degree so he can better handle the responsibilities of his position. This includes full pay and allowances while taking off-duty courses under the Bootstrap education program. The Air Force will pay a substantial part of all tuition costs. After having attained enough credits so that he can complete course work and residence requirements for a college degree in 6 months or less, he is eligible to apply for temporary duty at the school of his choice.

If you think you have what it takes to earn the silver wings of an Air Force Navigator, see your local Air Force Recruiter. Ask him about Aviation Cadet Navigator training and the benefits which are available to a flying officer in the Air Force. Or fill in and mail this coupon.

There's a place for tomorrow's leaders on the Aerospace Team.
