

Ike Denies Missile Lag; Justifies Cuts in Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States now has the first Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles ready for use and by 1965 is expected to have four strategic rocket weapons systems in operation, President Eisenhower told Congress yesterday.

Questions Plague Tampa Air Crash

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Was a Dallas naturopath with a criminal record on a National Airlines plane which crashed into the Gulf of Mexico killing all 42 aboard? Or did Dr. Robert V. Spears persuade—perhaps hypnotize—a Tampa man into taking his place? Or were both aboard the ill-fated plane which plunged into the water on Nov. 16?

The Tampan, missing since the day of the crash, was William Allen Taylor, 60, who was sentenced to prison with Dr. Spears in 1936 for operating a confidence scheme.

Spears was listed as one of the passengers who died in the crash. Taylor bought flight insurance just before the takeoff from here, but was not on the passenger list. Only a few of the bodies and a portion of the wreckage have been recovered.

An FBI investigator has suggested the plane might have been sabotaged and Spears may have had someone else take his seat so his wife could collect on a large insurance policy.

recommendations, transmitted to a Congress in which leading Democratic members have been sharply critical of what they call the lagging missile program.

Eisenhower assured Congress that additional quantities of Air Force Atlas and Titan missiles and Navy Polaris rockets will be procured next year.

The four rocket weapons systems to be in use by 1965, his message said, are the Atlas, the Titan both liquid-fuel ICBM's, the Minuteman solid-fuel ICBM and the Polaris 1200 mile range, solid-fuel rocket designed for firing from submerged submarines.

Eisenhower listed these projects in the process of explaining why he opposed another project which Air Force officials are expected to back when congressional committees ask them questions during the next few weeks.

The President said these four missile systems will have been tested out and their reliability established during the time it would take to build and put the proposed B70 long-range, 2000-mile-per-hour bomber into the hands of the Air Force.

Therefore, he proposes to permit building only two of the planes for test purposes.

Federal Registrars Proposed to Insure Negro Suffrage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas member of the Civil Rights Commission argued yesterday for federal registrars to insure Negro voting rights, but a North Carolina senator disputed him all the way.

Their views provided a controversial start on hearings by the Senate Rules Committee, considering legislation to create the federal registrars as recommended by the rights commission last year.

The commission member was Robert G. Storey, a Dallas lawyer.

"Present denials of the right to vote on grounds of racial discrimination are an evil which promptly can be cured by forthright and direct action" by Congress, he said.

Dems Sees No Tax Increase; Hit Changes for Budget Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leading Democrats, joined by some Republicans, foresaw yesterday little chance Congress would raise postal rates or gasoline taxes. This deflated President Eisenhower's hopes for a big budget surplus next year.

For the most part, congressional reaction to Eisenhower's $79.8 billion budget for fiscal 1961 followed party lines. Republicans spoke of it glowingly as "sound and realistic and as presenting both promise and challenge."

Democrats said Eisenhower's budget proposals are not enough to keep the United States strong. They said his allotments for space work—though double this year's—still fall short and concede the Soviet Union a continuing lead. They criticized the new budget on many other counts, too. The comments reflected the political mood of Congress in this election year.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said he was glad Eisenhower has "decided to join" the Democratic-run Congress in trying to balance the budget.

Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, House Republican leader, obliquely advised Congress it will be hung with the spender tag if it doesn't heed Eisenhower's bid for a balanced budget.

"If the spenders prevail the American public can say goodbye to any hope for early tax cuts," Halleck declared.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee sought to turn the tables on the Republicans. Right after the budget message was read by clerks, Cannon went before the House and belabored Eisenhower for not cutting expenses.

Do You Think for Yourself?
