Phil, PolSci Grad Grants To Be Given

Five additional fellowships, two in philosophy and three in political science, have been authorized for the University under the National Defense Education Act.

With these fellowships, there are now four available for graduate students in philosophy and five for graduate students in political science.

Applications for the grants must be filed with the dean of the Graduate School before Feb. 23. The Commissioner of Education will announce the fellowships awarded on March 10, giving the recipient until April 15 to accept or decline.

The fellowship is normally a three-year award, depending on continued satisfactory scholarship and congressional appropriations each year.

The stipend is $2000 for the first year, $2200 for the second year, $2400 for the third, plus an additional allowance of $400 a year for each dependent. The University gives a grant-in-aid to cover tuition.

Weaver Retires Next September

Dr. Palmer C. Weaver, dean of Summer Sessions at the University, will retire Sept. 30, marking the completion of 38 years of service.

In recognition of his years of service, both as a teacher in the College of Education and in administrative posts with the college and the Summer Sessions, the Board of Trustees has honored him with the title of dean emeritus of Summer Sessions.

Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs, added his personal tribute, noting that Dr. Weaver's "selfless dedication to the University had won him the respect of his colleagues both on the campus and throughout the State."

Following the completion of the 1960 summer program in August, the Office of the Summer Sessions will be discontinued with the administrative functions of that office to be assigned to the deans of the nine Colleges, the dean of the Graduate School, and other offices of the University.

Altoona Diocese Buys DU Land

Final negotiations for the purchase of a plot of ground from Delta Upsilon by the Diocese of Altoona-Johnstown have been concluded.

The property, 278 feet by 175 feet, is located at East Beaver Avenue and Locust Lane. It will be used as the site of a new Newman Club center.

The expansion of Catholic students at the University to an all-time high of 3050 students, representing 60 arch-dioceses and dioceses throughout the United States and 23 foreign countries has caused the local Newman Club to grow rapidly.

The planned facilities will provide added space for the religious, educational and social programs of the club.

Highwaymen Plague 'Kettle'

By JIM MORAN

Highwaymen struck yesterday under the sign of the Copper Kettle.

Peter Nastase, owner of the Copper Kettle Restaurant in the Campus shopping center, was closing his establishment about 12:30 a.m. In his hands were two kettles made from (sigh) aluminum. In one of the kettles was $275.

Nastase placed the loaded kettle on the back seat of his car and placed another pot on top. He then left the car for about 15 minutes. When he returned, both kettles and the money were gone.

This morning, two men walked into the police station with the kettles and the wayward dough. They said they found the articles in their cellar.
