PSEA to Feature Educators Tonight

The Pennsylvania Student Education Association will hear three high school educators at 7:30 tonight in Hibbs lounge.

The guest speakers will be: F. R. Carstetter, from Kishacoquillas High School; Robert Yoho, from the Bald Eagle Area Joint Schools; and William Babcock, from the College Area Schools in State College. They will speak on the theme, "What We Look for in a Teacher."

Speech 200--

(continued from page one) speech could be obtained as the Senate and Board of Trustees have approved, as part of its general education objectives, a plan "to foster effective listening and speaking."

Reasons given by the committee for compulsory Speech 200 were that the course offered the best opportunity for learning how to speak effectively and it is the best place for evaluating the speaking of students.

The committee also compared the grades received in speech with the All-University averages of the students and found that those who could speak well were successful in most other courses.

2 Students Fined For Misbehavior

Two students were found guilty of disorderly conduct Tuesday in two separate cases before Justice of the Peace William Bell.

Karl Bopp, senior in journalism from Dixel Hill, was fined $21.50 for rolling a beer barrel down the street early Tuesday morning. The student was apprehended at the 100 block of S. Burrowes St., but his companions escaped.

Robert Wechsler, a sophomore in business administration from Cheltenham, was fined $25 and costs for driving his jeep through a stop sign and then along the sidewalk for a half a block.

Lit Prof Will Discuss Prerequisites for Peace

William L. Werner, professor of American literature, will discuss Norman Thomas' recent book, "Prerequisites for Peace," at 8 tonight in the Schlow Memorial Library.

This is the second in a series of monthly discussions of books dealing with the attainment of world peace, which is being sponsored by the State College Chapter of United World Federalists.

Scabbard and Blade

A company meeting of Scabbard and Blade, military recognition society, will be held at 7 tonight in 2 Carnegie.
