Nature Theme Shown in Cote' Photo Display

The underlying unity in nature is the theme of the photographs in the Harvey Cote' collection currently on display in Gallery 105, Temporary Building.

The sequence of photographs entitled "Forms in Nature" demonstrates the design qualities to be found in natural objects and the use of photography in advertising. Also in the exhibit are examples of advertising art, including book jackets, letterheads and folios.

Cote is a graduate of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and of Tufts College. He studies with Gyorgy Kepes at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Gallery 105 is the scene of student art displays and displays of work of outside artists relating to various areas of study at the University. Students in fields other than art, especially those in advertising and journalism and those interested in photography, should find the exhibits interesting and useful and it is hoped they will take advantage of them. William Hanson, instructor of art, said.

The current showing will be on view to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, until Feb. 26.
