Assembly Membership

Julius Backs Seating Council Heads

By ELAINE MIELE

Including college council presidents as members of SGA Assembly would be "a step in the right direction," Leonard Julius, SGA president, said yesterday.

Student government would be strengthened if council presidents sat on SGA, he said, because communications between students and the Assembly would be improved.

The Intercollege Council Board recommended Monday night that all college council presidents should sit on the Assembly. The ICCB members agreed that the council presidents were well-informed and qualified student leaders who had been by-passed in the present system.

Walter Darran (C.Jr.), minority party leader, said yesterday that the new form of student government should be given a chance to succeed. He opposed including the council presidents as members of SGA.

Representation by colleges (rather than by classes) would hamper student government, he said. "I am opposed to small interest groups controlling the affairs of students," he said.

The system is new but in time Assembly members will become just as informed as council presidents, Darran said.

The recommendation for council presidents to sit on the Assembly was made as a suggestion to the SGA Committee on Reorganization and Re-evaluation of Student Government. Jessie Janjigian, chairman, attended the ICCB meeting on Monday night in order to receive the opinion of the council presidents.

The ICCB members discussed the possibility of adding council presidents to the present membership or dropping some of the present members in order to include the council presidents. No decision was reached.

Julius said that if no members were dropped the number of people sitting on the Assembly would be too large. A proportionate number from each of the classes probably would have to be eliminated, he said.

Fraternities to Get Data On SGA-Backed Flight

Representatives of the Student Government Association will visit fraternities starting Monday night to give them first-hand information about the SGA-sponsored flight to Europe this summer.

SGA President Leonard Julius said last night that representatives may also be sent to college councils and sororities, but plans for this are not definite.

SGA has chartered an 80-passenger plane to provide students with low-cost transportation to Europe. The plane is scheduled to leave New York for London June 13 and return from Paris July 23.

The deadline for making reservations is March 1. A $100 deposit is required.

Anyone who has been officially associated with the University for at least six months and his (her) wife (husband), children or parents are eligible.

The cost for a round-trip ticket is $285, based on a minimum of 75 passengers. Julius said that if the minimum is not reached and the definite number of reservations is close to 75 a small extra charge would be assessed each passenger.

If a great increase was involved, $40 or $50, the passengers would determine whether this would be acceptable.

Students may obtain information on the flight and applications at the SGA office in 203A Hetzel Union.

SGA also has information available about summer jobs in Europe.

Storm May Bring Light Snow Today

A weak storm is expected to deposit between one and three inches of snow on this area within the next 24 hours.

Cloudiness will increase this morning and light snow will begin this afternoon and continue intermittently until tomorrow morning.

Temperatures will remain below freezing for the next few days. Today's high should be about 30 degrees and tonight's low will be near 25 degrees.

Tomorrow will be mostly cloudy and cold with a chance of a few snow flurries. The high will be 32 degrees.

The 16-voice ensemble, a small unit of the Glee Club that sings light and humorous numbers, will also sing for the performance.

Counseling Program Initiated for Rushees

By SUSIE LINKROOM

An experimental counseling program for women rushees and sorority chapters is now being used for guidance in rushing difficulties and problems throughout the two-week Panhellenic Council rushing period.

Mrs. Hugh Davison and Mrs. William Muschlitz have been hired by the University to act as counsellors specifically for sorority rushing. Both women have had extensive experience and training in the field of counseling and working with people, Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, said.

According to Dean Lipp, the main objective of the program is to extend guidance to a rushing system that has been haphazard in the past. By giving such guidance to sororities and rushees, "we hope to strengthen sorority membership," she said.

Dean Lipp said that by counseling the rushees, the purpose is not to guide them toward any specific sorority, but to aid them in making wise decisions in accepting and declining invitations to the sororities.

She said the counseling program is meant to "prevent heartache" among rushees who may be dropped from the sorority they thought was their favorite, to keep rushees from panicking when deciding what sororities they should regret or accept, and to identify both rushees and sororities that are having problems.

As the visit to Brazil began, Eisenhower joined Kubitschek in a Declaration of Brasilia pledging their determination to help develop the Western Hemisphere materially and morally with the goal of "greater prosperity and harmony for all."

Issuance of that declaration helped set the tenor for the 10-day trip that will take Eisenhower across Brazil to Argentina, Chile and Uruguay on a mission that he hopes will strengthen hemispheric unity and stiffen defenses against potential enemies.

The two presidents expressed confidence in the success of a hemispheric crusade for economic development.

"Economic development cannot be disassociated from the preservation of peace and democratic rights," they said.

They asserted their support of "the fight against racial discrimination" and their belief in freedom of thought and religion.

Almost all the population of Brasilia — mostly construction workers and their families — turned out to hail President Eisenhower. Several hundred spilled onto the field when Eisenhower's big jet roared in after a 5½-hour, 2700-mile flight from Ramey Air Force Base in Puerto Rico.

Eisenhower shook hands with ambassadors of the diplomatic corps who had flown here from Rio de Janeiro to meet him. Then he and Kubitschek took off in Eisenhower's bubble car, flown here in advance.

A throng grouped behind a wire fence on a side road broke into cheers, hoisted a Brazilian and two American flags, then surged through the fence to the side of the car. The President reached to shake outthrust hands.

Counseling Program Initiated for Rushees

Any sorority who feels that it is having difficulty in their rushing program is also welcome to counseling — in fact, urged to take advantage of it, Dean Lipp said.

The counseling schedule for the remainder of the week is:

One to 5 p.m. Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday, 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

Brazilians Give Ike Rousing Reception

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP)—President Eisenhower received a rousing reception yesterday from Brazil's President Juscelino Kubitschek and the men building the new capital city of Brasilia.

The President began a 3-day tour of Brazil which associates expect will turn into a personal triumph rivaling his reception in Asia two months ago.

Here in Brasilia, where only about 70,000 were available to greet him, crowds cheered and waved U.S. and Brazilian flags. Some spilled through airport police lines.
