

Collegian Offers Trip Information

Planning to travel this summer? The Daily Collegian has received many news releases about student tours to Europe and other countries. Since it is impossible to print all the information received, brochures and letters will be available to anyone wishing to look at them.

Represented are organizations sponsoring luxury, first-class accommodations, economy student tours, art and cultural programs, and a special trip to the Olympic games in Rome.

A brochure listing the schedules of economy class and student ships to and from Europe is also available.

Information will be available Monday through Friday, after 4:30 p.m. from Lolli Neubarth, Collegian office, basement of Carnegie.

Nittany to Ask State, Walker for Action--

(Continued from page one) sity and it was felt that such independent action might find objections in the administration. The council will investigate this problem and report their findings at the next meeting.

The general feeling of the group was that if objections were raised, they would proceed with the plan as individual citizens writing to their state representatives.

In other business the council went on record as opposing the recent change in IFC regulations permitting fraternity men in the men's residence halls at any hour. They felt that they were not sulted in this matter and also that added distractions in the already poor study conditions were unnecessary.

Nittany Council also defeated a motion to combine with the Town Independent Men for the upcoming Spring Week.
