

8 Fireside Chats Set for Thursday

The coeds of Atherton will use a "democratic" method of questioning a speaker who will talk on an undemocratic topic, one of eight fireside chats to be held in women's residence halls Thursday.

Dr. Laurence Lattman, associate professor of geomorphology, will speak in "The Necessity of the Undemocratic Process in Education," at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Atherton lounge.

Congress Gives Four Awards To Debators

Alan Elms and Peter Galie received two of four Parliamentary Speaker awards at the Joseph F. O'Brien Interstate Debaters' Congress last weekend.

Other recipients of the awards were Richard Tan and Richard Jones of Toronto. The awards are given to the four outstanding speakers of the congress, as judged by the coaches of the participating schools.

Jacqueline Leavitt, a member of the women's debate squad, was elected secretary of the congress. No bills were passed at the session, which was attended by only 7 out of the 20 schools which were invited.

The debate squad will next travel to Washington, D.C. on March 18 to participate in the District Seven elimination tourney.

Kenney Appointed To Nuclear Staff

Edward S. Kenney, formerly health physicist and radiological safety officer, has been named to the nuclear reactor facility staff.

He will serve as assistant to the director of the reactor facility and as research associate in the Department of Nuclear Engineering.

Kenney is a graduate in physics of Saint Bonaventure University and also of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies program for radiological physics at the University of Rochester.

Students Fined For Misconduct

Robert Alman, sophomore in forestry from Rochester, N.Y., was fined $88.50 for disorderly conduct by Justice of the Peace William Bell.

Alman was arrested by borough police about 4:30 a.m. Sunday when he was found sleeping, in an intoxicated condition in the 3rd floor hallway of the Locust Lane Apts. He had broken a window in order to secure entrance into the premises.

Apparently Alman was under the impression that he was entering his fraternity when he broke into the building.

In another case, Roger Phillips, sophomore in meteorology from Hyattsville, Md., was arrested for swinging on an awning in front of Danks & Co. early Sunday morning. He was ordered to pay a fine and the cost of the bent awning.

After the 20-minute talk, coeds will gather in groups of six to plan what question each group will ask the speaker.

Miss Lois McColla, advisor of Women's Student Government, which sponsors the chats, said this form of questioning will give all women a chance to ask questions. Women from each hall will choose the subject they wish to hear initially, she said, and then the vice presidents of each hall will select the speaker to present it.

Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, will speak to the girls of West Halls in McKee lounge on "What Penn State Women Will Be."

Dr. Donald Kuspit, instructor of philosophy, will speak in Hibbs lounge on "Contemporary Philosophy" and Dr. Joseph Faulkner, instructor of sociology, will speak on the "Dilemma of the Contemporary Woman" in McElwain lounge.

Dr. Philip Young, professor of American literature will speak on "Catcher in the Rye and the Beat Generation" in Cooper lounge and Mrs. Alberta Siegel, assistant professor of child development, will speak on "The College Woman — After Graduation What?" in Cross lounge.

Karole Panameroff, graduate student in political science from Erie, will give her impression of Russia in Simmons lounge and Carole Krumlish will speak on Turkey in Haller lounge.
