

ICCB Assembly Plan Backed By 2 Councils, Opposed by 1

Two student councils voted for and one voted against the Intercollegiate Council Board's suggestion that the nine college council presidents be represented on the Student Government Association Assembly.

The most ironical thing about the councils' voting was that the Liberal Arts Student Council voted to go on record as being opposed to the ICCB's suggestion. The president of that council also heads ICCB, Education Student Council and Agriculture Student Council voted in favor of the plan.

There were strong debates in each of the council meetings last night. Dorothy Newman, former president of the Education Student Council, said that representation was definitely necessary because at present there is no close tie with representatives on Assembly and the students.

Douglas Pollak, an Education councilman, said that there was a link missing between present representatives and students, but this was because the present system covers a larger area. He suggested that council presidents campaign through political parties to obtain representation on the Assembly.

The council also voted on having the vice presidents of councils be Assembly representatives or that the ICCB president sit on the Assembly. Both proposals were defeated.

The Liberal Arts Student Council voted against the plan for two reasons: They said that the new system of government has not been given a fair chance to operate long enough to prove its effectiveness and that with the present system, representation of more students is possible and makes for better student government.

Council President David Epstein had proposed the plan and as ICCB president, was its chief advocate.

Charles Ault, president of the Agriculture Student Council, said that he favored the recommendation because the Assembly now has no means of communication with students in the Agriculture College and because council presidents have more experience in student government than many members of the Assembly.

He said that the council strongly opposed student reorganization last year because it felt that contact between student government and agriculture students would be greatly reduced. This has been the case, he said.

2 Delegates Alter Party Affiliations

By ELAINE MIELE

Two members of SGA Assembly who were elected on the Campus party ticket have switched their affiliation to University party.

Jack Crosby, junior class president, and Walter Darren, junior class representative, who were both elected on the Campus party ticket last spring registered for University party on Sunday night.

Crosby said he switched to University party because "it has much more to offer student government." He said that if he were nominated for the University ticket he would run for election.

Darran had no comment on his reason for switching parties. He said that he would probably be willing to run on the University party ticket if he were nominated. This would depend on the position he would be nominated for and on other reasons, he said.

David Byers, spokesman for Campus party, said he was behind the two-party system and what it stands for. "I am not denying the right of these people (Crosby and Darran) to change parties but I am opposed to what I think their motivation is," Byers said.

James Nelligan, University party chairman, said he thought Darran and Crosby were interested in running on the University party ticket. "It seems as if they just like University party better than the opposing party," he said.

A bill restricting an Assembly member from switching political affiliation while still in office was proposed to the SGA Rules Committee Monday.

Heavy Snow Due Tonight; Cold to Remain

A developing storm will bring more snow to an already snow ridden state this afternoon and tonight. The season's worst cold wave will continue.

The snow should begin late this afternoon and continue until tomorrow morning with an accumulation of three to six inches expected in all sections of the Commonwealth including this area.

This will be the third substantial snow storm to strike Central Pennsylvania within the last six days. The winter's worst storm dumped nearly a foot of snow last Thursday and almost three inches accumulated Monday afternoon from a light fluffy snow.

Chief of Borough police John Juba has urged all fraternities to clear their walks of snow today, if they have not already done so. A local ordinance requires that all sidewalks be cleared of snow within 12 hours after the snow stops falling. Juba feels that he has given the fraternities ample time to comply with the ordinance.

The forecast is for mostly cloudy and cold today with snow beginning late this afternoon and continuing tonight. Winds will become gusty tonight and some blowing and drifting snow is likely.

Today's high should be near 26 degrees and tonight's low will be near 18.

The snow should taper off to flurries tomorrow, but the cold weather will remain. Three to six inches of new snow is due by tomorrow afternoon.

Dean Lipp to Speak On Community Living

Dean of Women Dorothy J. Lipp will speak on her community living plan in relation to the Association of Independent Men-Leonides merger at the AIM Board of Governors meeting tonight.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. in 203 Hetzel Union Building.

Ike Discusses Latin Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower assured the American people last night that U.S. relationships with her sister republics of Latin America have—with very few exceptions—"reached an all-time high." He added that "an even firmer partnership must be our goal."

Eisenhower was reporting in a prepared nationwide radio-TV address on the grueling, 15,500-mile good-will mission to South America from which he returned Monday.

He called it "a most instructive and rewarding experience."

But if the nations of Latin America were expecting any concrete plans for assistance or specific offers of U.S. help, now that Eisenhower has seen their immense problems first hand, the speech was a disappointment.

Eisenhower renewed offers he made many times on his tour to hold out the hand of this country in cooperation. But he spelled out no wealth of details.

Eisenhower was warmly received by the countries he visited—Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay. And he said his first words must be a heartfelt expression of gratitude for the friendly receptions wherever he went.

Referring to demonstrations in which police used tear gas and fire hoses in Montevideo, Uruguay, Eisenhower said the exceptions made headlines. But he dismissed them as minor incidents, lost in the massed welcome.

He repeated that this country stands firmly by its commitment under the Rio Treaty of 1947 to regard an attack on one American republic as an attack on all.

"This mutual security system, proved by time," he said, "should now enable some of the American republics to reduce expenditures for armaments, and thus make funds available for constructive purposes."

One of the most far-reaching continental problems, Eisenhower said, is that Latin-American republics are largely single-commodity nations in exports, with the prices of things they buy going up and the world market prices of what they sell fluctuating widely.

The real solution here, he said, is in agricultural and industrial diversification.

"Despite such problems as these," the President declared, "our relationships with our sister republics have, with notable—and very few—exceptions, reached an all-time high. But an even firmer partnership must be our goal."

Petition On Book Tax Circulated

A petition is now circulating which asks the State legislature to take action on a bill which would exempt students from paying sales tax on college text books.

An SGA committee headed by James Kridel (C.-Soph.) has posted petitions in the Hetzel Union, Boucke, Mineral Sciences, Sackett and Forestry buildings. Committee members are also circulating the petition to the residence halls on a room-to-room basis and to fraternity houses.

The bill was presented to the State House of Representatives in the fall but was committed to the Rules Committee at that time and no action has been taken on it since.

Last week SGA received a letter from Albright College in Reading asking cooperation in a move to get the bill out of committee and before the House. The SGA committee was organized over the weekend and began circulating petitions Monday.

Kridel said last night he could give no estimate of the number of students who have already signed the petitions. He said he has gotten about 200 signatures himself and that students seemed very willing to sign the petition.

Kridel set 50 per cent of the student body as the goal to be reached. Albright asked that the petition be sent to them by Saturday, therefore the drive on campus will end Friday.

Registration Extended For Angel Flight Rush

Registration for Angel Flight rushing has been extended to March 15. Applications are available at the Hetzel Union desk.

The spring rush program has been postponed until next week due to scheduling conflicts at Simmons lounge. The first tea has been changed to 7 p.m., March 17, in Simmons lounge.

Nittany Men to Eat in Pollock Halls

The Nittany Area dining hall will not be used by students living in the area next fall.

The men students in the Nittany residence halls will join the 1000 women living in the Pollock residence halls and use the new dining hall now nearing completion in the Pollock area, University officials said yesterday.

All of the Nittany residence halls will undergo extensive alterations this summer and be ready for occupancy next fall. However, some interior painting may be continued into the fall semester, officials said.

Built-in dressers will replace the movable furniture and wall-mounted mirrors will be placed above the dressers in their new locations.

Study desks with book shelves mounted on the wall above them will be placed next to the dressers. Closet facilities will be improved with the installation of additional storage shelves and new hanging rods.

The improvements planned for the lobby areas of each of the buildings include:

• Installation of an additional campus phone and a tack board for phone messages.

• Use of wainscoting to improve the appearance of the walls inside the entrance.

• Installation of a built-in booth to one side of the lobby to provide facilities for playing games.

• Addition of two writing tables and upholstered furniture.

Work has already started on a storm sewer system for the Nittany area. Walter W. Trainer, head of the division of landscape planning, said work is now being completed on the first phase of the drainage system and that, weather permitting, the remaining storm sewer will be installed before spring.

As a part of the program to improve the drainage system, a main sidewalk of concrete, seven-feet wide, will be built along the south side of Pollock Rd. A curb will be installed along this walk.

Some new sidewalks will be built and others will be elevated.

It is also planned to install new street lights along Pollock, officials said. Planting of 40 different kinds of shrubs and trees will be undertaken in the fall.

"IF THE PLUG IS PULLED in the Northern Hemisphere the water will travel the opposite way than if the plug is pulled in the Southern Hemisphere," claims C. Northcote Parkinson, advocate of this law and many other satirical comments on bureaucracy. Parkinson spoke last night in Schwab Auditorium. (Story.
