Three Cases Heard By Tribunal

The Off-Campus Tribunal recommended disciplinary probation and Tribunal warning to the three cases it heard at its meeting Thursday night. The Dean of Men's office supported all recommendations.

Robert Alman, sophomore in forestry from Rochester, N.Y., broke into the Locust Lane Apartments while intoxicated early Sunday morning. Thinking that he was in his fraternity house, Alman climbed to the third floor, tried to enter several rooms and then passed out. Tribunal recommended he be placed on disciplinary probation.

Given Tribunal warning was Roger Phillips, sophomore in meteorology from Hyattsville, Md.

In the third case the Borough police received a complaint from a neighbor of a house in the downtown district. The police investigated and turned over the six students who had been drinking to the University. They were each given Tribunal warning.

Photographs Shown In Pattee Library

By KAY MILLS

Photographs ranging in subject from Balinese women to New York architecture are currently displayed in the main lobby of the Pattee Library.

These pictures are a sampling of the work of Wendell MacRae, assistant to the curator of the library's Pennsylvania Historical Collection.

The exhibit includes photographs on architecture, colonial Williamsburg, music education and the State College area. Several photographic murals are also displayed.

Most of the photographs exhibited were taken in the 1930's and 1940's. Some are pictures of MacRae's murals in the RCA Building in New York.

Before coming to the University in 1949, MacRae was a commercial photographer in New York for about 15 years.

One photograph is of an office of the Consolidated Chemical Corp. in New York, which owns two of MacRae's skyscraper scenes. The pictures are of the view from the windows by which they now hang.

MacRae once made a mural from a photograph of the corner of a Spanish dancer's favorite shawl. The mural is now in the dancer's New York apartment. A photograph of it appears in the exhibit.

"A '$650,000 picture' is also included in the display," MacRae said. "It was the cover of a pamphlet appealing for funds for a New York home for delinquent girls."

"Some time after the pamphlet appeared, a copy of it was found attached to the will of a wealthy woman who had just died. The will stipulated that this home should receive 1/64 of her estate after taxes. That 1/64 turned out to be $650,000" MacRae said.

Other MacRae photographs have been in booklets on Williamsburg and New York City, especially Rockefeller Center. These are also in the present exhibit.
