Oberly's Fall Gives Lions Tie With Pitt For EIWA Crown

By JOHN BLACK
Assistant Sports Editor

In everyday life he's just a bashful growing boy, but on the wrestling mats he's feared by grizzled veterans. And Saturday night the rosy-cheeked 250-pound Johnston Oberly became the hero of the Penn State wrestling team, pulling a despairing crew into a tie with Pitt for the Eastern Wrestling Tournament title with a clutch fall in the final bout.

The "Big O" of collegiate wrestling took only 3 minutes and 38 seconds to flatten Brown University's Bill Wood in the heavy-weight championship bout and salvage a 66-66 tie for the Lions in the 56th annual EIWA tourney at Princeton, N.J.

Pitt, which produced two individual champions to the Lions' one, had a four-point lead after the Panthers' Tom Hall nipped State's Phil Myer, 6-4, in the 191-pound title match.

A quick calculation of figures, showed that the Lions could not win and their only hope for a tie rested on Oberly's ability to throw Wood, a 215-pound muscleman whose build must have earned him a Mr. America title at some time in history.

The word was passed to Oberly and he carried out the assignment. Starting on top in the second period, "Big O," undefeated in 14 matches this year, applied a hammerlock, rolled his man over, and slipped on a head scissors.

Over 3200 screaming fans saw the jubilant Penn State team hoist their hero to their shoulders and move to the trophy table to claim their share of the spoils.

But even so, the Nittanians could not have claimed a share of the trophy without an assist from an outside benefactor.

Mike Leta, a dark-haired flash of lightning from Rutgers, who is a master with a double leg takedown, upset Pitt's Larry Lauchle for the 130-pound cup and shaved three points off Pitt's team score.

Leta used only that one maneuver, but it was enough to ensure him a 15-14 verdict over the defending champ.

University, Campus Select Candidates

John Brandt, temporary chairman of Campus Party, was nominated Sunday for the SGA presidency.

Brandt's nomination in the party preliminaries was followed by a heated discussion on the validity of his position as party chairman.

The debate was led by James Kridel, Campus majority leader, and Earl Gershenow, sophomore Assemblyman, who charged that Brandt was not legally the temporary chairman of the party.

Kridel accused Brandt of "unethical dealings regarding his attainment of the position." He pointed to a constitutional rule which states that the chairman must be elected with all members present.

In January, both the chairman and vice chairman of Campus party resigned. Brandt, who was then the treasurer, took over the chairmanship. This action was approved by the steering committee and it is on these grounds that Brandt claims his right to the position.

ICG parliamentarian Carl Smith, who was conducting the debate, called for a vote which approved Brandt's right to the chairmanship with five or six members dissenting.

Immediately after the vote, Gershenow, Kridel and several others stormed from the meeting.

The party also nominated candidates for other SGA positions.

For sophomore Assemblymen—George Henning, freshman in fuel technology from Shillington; Sandra Pohlman, freshman in journalism from Wayne; and Howard Creskoff, freshman in counseling from Philadelphia.

For junior Assemblymen—Suzanne Pohland, sophomore in arts and letters from Latrobe; and Lynn Marvel, sophomore in arts and letters from Northfield, N.J.

For senior Assemblymen—Judith High, junior in arts and letters from State College; and Herbert Krauss, junior in psychology from Philadelphia.

No one was nominated for senior class president, SGA secretary-treasurer or vice president.

Several party platforms were suggested including the University Book Store, transferable matriculation cards and meal tickets and many others. The final platforms will be voted on at a future meeting.

To date, 213 students have registered with Campus party, 157 of whom registered Sunday.

Donald Clagett, Jack Crosby, Walter Darran and Richard Haber declined nominations for SGA offices at the University Party meeting Sunday night.

Darran was nominated for senior class president. Haber, Clagett and Crosby were nominated for SGA president, vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

In a prepared statement read to party members by Haber, they gave their reasons for declining nomination.

"We want to serve Penn State," Haber said, "but not at the price of personality attacks and character assassinations."

"Each of us has planned for several weeks to seek office. The next decision was which party we wanted to run on. We wanted to run a campaign which would be in the best interests of SGA with a good platform and experienced candidates."

Haber said that Darran and Crosby had had "nebulous charges" thrown at them. The only thing they can be accused of, he said, is leaving a defunct party.

"They have been reviled because they crossed party lines to avoid being a part of the mud-slinging farce that some members of Campus hinted would ensue," Haber said.

They cannot fight the nebulous charges that have been thrown against them, he said.

"There has been much loose talk about running for personal gain, and now our names are thrown into the middle of stories on throwing elections," he continued.

"We want no part of this campaign if it is to result in student government by innuendo and election by smear," Haber said.

Two students accepted nominations for offices. They are Sandra Baker, sophomore in arts and letters from Langhorne, junior assemblyman; and Frank Milus, junior in landscape architecture from Colonia, N.J., senior class president.

In other business James Nelligan, University party chairman, made a statement to party members about the spring elections.

"I did not try to fix the spring elections," he said. I went to (John) Brandt's apartment to test the Campus party strength. "That is what I meant when I asked him to throw the elections," Nelligan said.

IFC Elects Novak, Lucido, Bronstein

By KAREN HYNCKEAL

Ronald Novak, president of Theta Xi, was elected Interfraternity Council president last night. The council also elected Chester Lucido, treasurer of Phi Kappa Psi, as vice president and Benjamin Bronstein, president of Phi Sigma Delta, as secretary-treasurer.

The new officers will be formally installed at the next IFC meeting which will be held March 28.

The council also defeated unanimously a motion to limit "Help Week" to those times when University classes are not in session.

A short but one-sided discussion preceded the vote. Council members argued that if the motion went through, pledges would know exactly when initiation would be and thus would bide their time until then.

One council member asked Gary Gentzler, IFC president, how the rule, if approved, would be enforced. Gentzler said the enforcement would probably be up to the Board of Control and to the individual houses.

Another council member argued that passage of such a restriction would be "just adding to all the rules which exist now concerning Help Week." Others felt that any additional restriction on "Help Week" should be up to the individual houses and not a general IFC rule.

When the vote was taken, not one council member voted for the motion.

In other business, the council voted to extend fraternity hours on April 1 and 2 (IFC Weekend) to 2 a.m. if and only if, the Women's Student Government Association passes the same ruling for that weekend.

The council also elected five members to the Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association. They are James Reeves, Theta Xi; Robert MacLean, Delta Chi; Frederick Phelps, Phi Kappa Psi; William Linder, Phi Kappa Psi,

Students Warned About Ice

A warning was issued by University officials yesterday to students and employes to use extra caution when walking near buildings because of the danger of falling ice.

'Western 5' Propose Disarmament Plan

GENEVA (AP) — Five Western powers unveiled today a dramatic disarmament plan to create an international group so powerful it eventually could veto a nation's military budget.

In three gradual stages, the world would disarm until each nation had only enough armed force to maintain internal order. All weapons of mass destruction would be junked. Space would be barred to military missiles.

In the second stage, another disarmament conference would be called to include Red China and all other nations with strong military forces. They would be invited to join the movement toward world disarmament.

The Western plan, carries the names of the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

Its central feature calls for establishment of an international disarmament organization which could be set up almost immediately.

If the Western plan wins the approval of the Communist powers, these studies would lead on step by step to international control over the world's weapons including everything from military vehicles cruising outer space to hand grenades.

An American source emphasized that the final stage of the plan — with its arrangements for arms control — would only come into force after the preliminary phases had been achieved. From beginning to end the emphasis would be placed on fool-proof controls.

If the Western plan ultimately is adopted and if the carefully planned reductions are carried out, most of the soldiers, sailors
