

Lions Win NCAA Gym Title

By LARRY ROTH

Prior to last weekend, Penn State Coach Gene Wettstone said that his gymnasts could, at their very best, score around 115 points and retain their national championship.

A few days later the host Lions, led by Jay Werner's magnificent effort, scored 112.5 to easily outdistance the field and win their sixth NCAA team title before 6000 fans at Recreation Hall.

In winning, the Lions became the fifth team in the 18-year-old history of the NCAA gym tourney to break the century mark. Three of the previous teams were from Penn State and Illinois was the other.

Werner, who won the all-around title Friday, tied for first on the flying rings and placed in five other events in Saturday's finals to score 47.5 points in his final performance for the Blue and White.

"He made up his mind to win the all-around and he went out and did it," said Wettstone. "We always knew he could do it."

Just a few weeks ago, Wettstone said that he wished Werner could carry the enthusiasm he had on the rings over to the other events. "Potentially," Wettstone said, "he could be the greatest."

In fact, Werner and sophomore teammate Greg Weiss combined for 80 points to out-score runner-up Southern California's 65.5 total.

Illinois with 59 team points placed third and California was fourth with 56.5. Illinois has won the title eight times and has never finished lower than third.

Defending champ on the flying rings, Werner had to share the title this year with Army's Eastern ring champ, Jon Aaronsohn. Both scored 93.5.

Lion sophomore Jerry Schaefer, despite a fall following his double-flip dismount, managed to post an 87 for fifth place while co-captain Lee Cunningham added three points to the Nittanians' score with an eighth place finish.

Cunningham and Weiss tied for fifth on the horizontal bar with 92.5 but had to take a backseat to teammate Werner who took a surprising second behind Michigan State's Stan Tarshis, winner for the second straight year. Tarshis scored an outstanding 96.5 and Werner had a 95.

Werner took another second on the still rings with a 92 score. Little (5-1) Sam Garcia of Southern Cal took first place honors with 94.

Weiss, third place finisher in the all-around the night before, also took a runner-up spot when Southern Cal's Bob Lynn edged him on the parallel bars, 94.5-94. Werner placed sixth with 91.5.

Illinois sophomore Ray Hadley won the free exercise with 93. Weiss took fourth with 91.5 while Werner tied for tenth.

Iowa's Bill Buck, side horse winner in 1958 and Shurlock, last year's winner, took second and third as California's Jim Fairchild, a 6-1½ junior, scored 96 to cop the title.

Although the Nittanians qualified four men in the side horse finals it turned out to be the (Continued on page ten)

Home Economics in the Home Economics Building; Education in the Hetzel Union Building; Liberal Arts in the HUB and in Sparks; Engineering and Architecture in Sackett; Chemistry and Physics in Osmond lobby; Mineral Industries in the Mineral Industries Building; and Business Administration in Boucke and in the HUB.

Artist Tickets Available Today

Tickets for the Artists Series program to be presented by Jean Leon Destine and his Haitian Dance Company will be distributed to students at 1 p.m. today and will go on sale to others at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Hetzel Union desk.

The company replaced the planned appearance of Jose Limon and Dance Company after injuries suffered by several of the dancers forced cancellation of Limon's engagement.

Destine's program, which is scheduled for 8 p.m. Sunday in Recreation Hall, ranges from French-Haitian rhythms to primitive voodoo ritual dance. He also offers Afro-West Indian, modern Haitian and ancient slave dances. With the exception of occasional accompaniments on the flute, all the background for Destine's "Festival in Haiti" is furnished by bongo drums.

The program fuses the two cultural traditions of Haiti, the African and the French.

Citizens Ask Council For Tax Boost

By AMY ROSENTHAL

Citizens, representing 360 petitioners, asked State College Borough Council last night for a real estate tax increase.

They said they would pay a 4-mill increase rather than let the school board lose their extra 15 per cent of the wage tax.

Council in making their budget had avoided raising the real estate tax by taking their fair share, 50 per cent, of the wage tax.

The citizens, led by the League of Women Voters, said that the school board should have the 15 extra per cent of the wage tax because it was easier for the council to tax and raise money, since the school board had to also rely on other counties.

They also said that under the 1961 reassessment of county property by the County Commissioners the borough would benefit if real estate taxes were raised this year.

If the borough should want to increase taxes in 1961 after the reassessment they would be limited to a 5 per cent increase over the millage of the previous year, under Pennsylvania law.

Citizens said if taxes were increased this year, council would be able to raise more money if it were needed.

Councilman P. J. Freed said that council will be able to raise enough money for next year's expenses under the present system.

Councilman Arnold Addison asked the council to consider (Continued on page five)

Galie to Head Campus Ticket

By KAREN HYNCKEAL

Peter Galie, junior in labor-management relations from Conshohocken, is Campus party's choice for All-University president.

Galie, unmentioned in last week's preliminaries, received the nomination and unanimous approval at Sunday night's meeting.

Winter Weather Expected Today

Light snow is expected today, with windy and very cold weather expected tonight and tomorrow.

A strong blast of arctic air is pushing toward Pennsylvania from the "ice box" of Central Canada. This is one of coldest outbreaks of arctic air this winter and temperatures may fall close to zero tonight.

Some snow is expected to precede the cold wave today, but no heavy accumulations are anticipated.

The forecast is for cloudy, windy and continued cold today with occasional snow—possibly 1 to 3 inches.

Strong and gusty winds, snow flurries and possibly a few snow squalls and much colder weather are due tonight. The mercury will dip to 14 degrees by dawn tomorrow.

Very cold and windy weather is expected tomorrow with a few snow flurries and a high of only 23 degrees.

John Brandt, party clique chairman, will run for the SGA vice presidency. Campus party also named Susan Sherman, junior in elementary education from Syracuse, N.Y., as its candidate for SGA secretary-treasurer.

The nominations for next month's elections came immediately after the party voted on clique officers.

Brandt's position as clique chairman was re-enforced Sunday when the party elected him after a week-long dispute concerning his previous holding of the office Brandt had assumed the position in January after both the chairman and vice chairman resigned. At last week's meeting, several Assemblymen charged that he had not been officially elected; however, there was no protest on Sunday.

Dennis Eisman, sophomore in arts and letters from Philadelphia, was elected vice chairman and Judith Norton, junior in elementary education from Merion, executive secretary.

Edwin Urie and Nancy Hughes maintained their positions as treasurer and secretary respectively as no other persons were nominated.

Other final Campus party nominations were as follows: for freshman class president, Edwin Urie, freshman in arts and letters from Harrisburg.

U.S. Urged to Support Red Proposal

GENEVA (AP)—The British government was reported yesterday night to be urging the United States to go along with the main lines of a new Soviet proposal for suspending nuclear tests.

This does not mean, informants said, that the British are ready to accept the proposal without question.

Both Western powers want to know more about the Soviet quota system for inspections of suspicious earth tremors.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin gave some of the answers to British and U.S. questions at Monday's session of the 17-month-old three-nation negotiations for a treaty banning nuclear tests.

The U.S.S.R. has proposed the conclusion of a partial treaty providing a controlled ban on all types of nuclear weapon explosions except small underground tests.

An accompanying three-power moratorium would prohibit small underground tests while a joint scientific study would attempt to solve difficult detection problems involved in such blasts.

Tsarapkin said both the moratorium and the study could remain in force for four or five years with the exception that the underground detection problem would be solved in that time.

If the four- or five-year period expired without results, Tsarapkin said, the moratorium and the studies could be continued for an additional time if the three nations agreed.

Tsarapkin wants no resumption of tests of any kind once the partial treaty and the moratorium go into force.

Neither Britain nor the United States intends to be trapped into a blank-check promise not to conduct tests until they see how the whole arrangement can be worked out.

Pa. Accident Rate Drops

HARRISBURG (AP)—The number of fatal accidents in Pennsylvania in 1959 was 2 per cent less than the previous year, the State Health Department reported yesterday.

A total of 4953 Pennsylvanians were killed in accidents last year, the department said, compared to 5044 in 1958.
