

Assembly Approves Transfer Queries

The SGA Assembly last night approved a recommendation that questionnaires be sent to incoming transfer students asking them to indicate their preference for residence at the University next year.

Assembly also approved a change in the SGA by-laws which prohibits an Assembly member from missing more than three meetings during a semester and passed, for the second time, a change in the constitution which eliminates the alternate system.

The transfer housing questionnaire was presented by Philip Haines, chairman of a TIM-SGA committee which is investigating alternatives to the ruling requiring transfer students to live in the residence halls. His committee plans to tabulate the number of students who select residence halls voluntarily. If that number is more than 500, the committee will request that the executive committee of the Board of Trustees call a special meeting to rescind their action, Haines said.

He said that two members of the Board of Trustees, J. E. Holtzinger and Mary Jane Wyland, had already indicated sympathy toward the problem investigated by the committee.

The vote on the second approval of the constitutional change eliminating the alternate system was, as last week, barely audible. A feeble "aye," no "nays" and only one abstention approved deleting from the constitution the sections which make it possible for an Assemblyman to send an alternate when he is absent.
