

Organization Reports Due Today for ASA

All student organizations must turn in to William Fuller, director of the Associated Student Activities, information concerning their present status as an active group by 5 p.m. today at 201 Hetzel Union.

All organizations who have not done so will be reported to the Senate sub-committee on Organization and their charters will be revoked. They will no longer be recognized on this campus, Larry Epstein, chairman of the Organizational Board of Control, said.

HEc Weekend Will Feature Student Panel

Students in home economics from other lands will present a panel discussion entitled "Our Life in the U.S.A." during the Home Economics Spring Weekend to be held April 8 and 9.

This presentation will be given three times during the weekend; at 11 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. on April 8, and at 10 a.m. on April 9 in 114 Home Economics.

The students will discuss the differences as well as the similarities of the family life in the United States as compared with life in their home lands.

The panel will be moderated by Dr. Hazel M. Hatcher, professor of home-community relationships and home economics education.

Members of this panel will be: Idith Castro, Puerto Rico; Willemin Storm van Gravesande, Netherlands; Mrs. Chosheng Chien Lee, Formosa; Malathi Karuven, India; Aileen Swansburg, Nova Scotia; Ellen Hansen, Denmark; Mrs. Mei Ying Tsiang, Formosa; Marcella Tu, Formosa, and Mrs. Ikuko Okaya, State College.

Clark, Williams Discuss Segregation

By JERRIE MARKOS
(This week's faculty and staff guests will discuss their views on the question "Is segregation a by-product of our society?" Commenting today are Dr. Robert E. Clark, acting head of the Department of Sociology, and Rev. Preston Williams, acting University Chaplain.)

It seems natural, Clark said, for people of the same backgrounds with similar problems and needs to group together.

Segregation is usually thought of as external pressures on a minority but Clark said he would rather think that there is a strong internal force which brings people together. He cited education and economic means as two bases by which people segregate themselves as to their housing and their associates.

Clark felt that it would take three or four generations to erase the social effects of segregation. The colleges, he said, can help balance the structure of our society only if an increased proportion come to college, but if for economic reasons they can't then the colleges really will not be able to help the situation.

Segregation is not inevitable; we often understand it to be a deliberate policy to deny privileges to a group but, said Rev. Preston Williams, it is a fact of life that in any democratic group somebody will get hurt.

Williams denied the majority absolute right to enforce its will. A majority rule should exist only when it can be justified in terms of the genuine well-being of the entire community.

This does not mean the pseudo-well-being of the South, he said, which claims stability where history proves there is none. Rights come from the Constitution rather than from the social mores of a particular section of the nation, he said.

Williams said he didn't think the recent lunch counter demonstrations would lead to real bloodshed. He said he wished there were more of them. He feels that the groups that were quiet until now, those on the side of law and order, will be freer in voicing their opinions and will give the Negroes some of the things they are campaigning for.

When asked if he could foresee an end to segregation in the near future, Williams said that social segregation would not end soon but opportunities for economic and political development and growth would not be long in being granted. The mere shortage of capable persons will necessitate drawing on the minorities.

"I hope," Williams said, "that my son will have an opportunity to realize his vocational desires as long as he is individually capable. A member of a segregated group who feels himself an object of prejudice hopes for a quick end to discrimination. He begins to realize that he has only one life to live and it becomes difficult for him to understand why he has to make all the sacrifices and the majority none."

Campus Busline Starts Services

The Suburban Express Co. started operating at 7:30 this morning and will make 17 bus trips between Park Forest Village and the campus by 9:20 tonight.

Two buses will operate daily except Sundays and University holidays. An express bus will travel from Park Forest Village straight to the corner of Pollock and Burrowes.

A second bus will stop only at the gate to Park Forest Village and then move through the College Heights area before reaching the campus.

The new bus line is owned by Lee Roy Toney.

Econ Prof Publishes Paper on Unemployment

Dr. Jacob J. Kaufman, professor of economics, recently published a paper on "Labor Mobility, Training and Retraining," with particular reference to chronically unemployed persons.

This paper was included in a volume of 15 special papers on "Studies in Unemployment" prepared by various specialists in the field of labor economics for the Senate Committee on Unemployment Problems.

Air Force Recruiter Will Arrive Next Friday

Capt. Clinton W. Hammond, officer procurement officer for Detachment 208, U.S. Air Force Recruiting, will be on campus next Friday, April 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Hetzel Union recreation area instead of today, as was erroneously stated in The Daily Collegian.

Programs available are the Officer Training School and Navigator Programs for men, and the Officer Training School and Nurse Programs for women.
